LIVINGSTON, ILL.Victim Had Been Shot—Papers Bearing Name of Bobby Carr, St.
Louis Salesman, Are Discovered.The body of a man was found in the trunk of an automobile near Livingston, Ill., about 2:30 p.m. today. Livingston is 30 miles north of East St. Louis.Papers bearing the name of Bobby Carr, a St. Louis salesman, were found on the body, and the license on the automobile had been issued to Carr.The man had been shot to death.Carr has been missing since Tuesday night, and a search for him had been started by authorities. He told his stepfather, Carl Reed, of 3909 Westminster place, Tuesday night that he was going to Fairmount race track on the East Side, Reed told the Post-Dispatch.The automobile, an Oldsmobile, was on a side road a short distance off U.S. Highway 66.
Illinois State Police started an investigation as soon as the crime was discovered, and ordered a mobile crime laboratory sent to the scene.Local authorities agreed not to disturb anything at the scene until state authorities could get there, the State Police reported.
This was the third time since June 22 that a body was found in the trunk of an automobile
in this area.J. Fred Koenig, East St. Louis gambler, was found dead in his Cadillac in East St. Louis June 22. Last Saturday, the body of Floyd Oestrick, a truck driver of Maxville, St. Louis county, was found in the trunk of his automobile in the southern part of the county.Koenig had been shot to death and Oestrick was beaten to death. Police to far have been without substantial clues in either case.WAHLGREN SAYS TORNADOES CAN'T BE PINPOINTEDDon't get panicky the next time the Weather Bureau reports conditions favorable for the development of tornadoes in the St. Louis area, Meteorologist Harry F. Wahlgren told a luncheon meeting of the St. Louis
Rotary Club today at Hotel Statter."As yet, the Weather Bureau cannot forecast tornadoes with pinpoint accuracy," he went on.
"We can only say there is a possibility of a tornado or two in an area of 5000 to 10,000 square miles.""If you hear someone say that the Weather Bureau has forecast a tornado in St. Louis and adjoining counties—say, at 6 o'clock tonight—discount that report! You cannot pinpoint an area as fine as a few Missouri counties. Neither can you tell within 150 miles of where a tornado will develop.""So don't become panicky when the Weather Bureau warns there is a chance of tornadoes in your general area. Watch the clouds and if you sight a funnel-shaped one, look for a cave or cellar, preferably the southwest corner of the cellar."

Paul Hafley, fire captain at Tyson Valley Park in St. Louis county, and his two children drowned last night when a motorboat capsized in the Osage river near St. Elizabeth, Mo. His wife was rescued.Hafley, 40 years old, was fishing with the children, Nicholas, 2, and Judy, 9, and his wife, Ruby, from an island in the river. By prearrangement, two friends, Gray Spalding and Otis Morris of Eugene, Mo., came for the group in a motorboat to take them back to shore.On the trip back, the motor failed and the boat swung out of control in the swift current. It struck a snag and overturned.
Morris and Spalding managed to swim to shore.Hafley was seen holding to the side of the overturned boat reaching for one of his children in the water. A witness said he saw the boat sink when he let go of the boat and went after the child.Carl Rush of Henley, Mo., who saw the accident from the shore, swam out and rescued Mrs. Hafley.Troopers of the Missouri Highway Patrol, who started dragging the river for the bodies shortly after the accident, reported they had the body of Hafley and Nicholas.Hafley and his family, who lived at 11 Wynstay avenue, Valley Park, were spending a week's vacation at Marys Home, Mo., across the river from St. Elizabeth, which is 150 miles southwest of St. Louis.In addition to his wife, he is survived by his mother, Mrs.
Ella Hafley of Eureka; two children by his first marriage, Dona Marie and Robert Joseph Hafley, and four brothers, Floyd, George, Clifford and Ora Hafley, all of St. Louis county.

HIS ROLE IN DIXON-YATES
SECURITY TALKSWrites Kefauver That 'There Is Nothing I Can Add' to Testimony of SEC Chairman Armstrong.WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP)— Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams refused today to testify in a Senate subcommittee study of the Dixon-Yates controversy.In a letter to Chairman Estes Kefauver (Dem.), Tennessee, Adams said "there is nothing that I could add" to the testimony of Chairman J. Sinclair Armstrong of the Securities and Exchange Commission regarding postponement last month of SEC hearings on financing of the power project.About the time the letter was made public Senator Clinton Anderson (Dem.), New Mexico, told the Senate that "deliberate cover-up" of facts about the Dixon-Yates contract had been dictated by the Bureau of the Budget.Two Names Deleted.
Anderson, chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Atomic Energy, said a letter received today from the Atomic Energy Commission proved that names of two key officials had been deleted from a list supplied Congress and the public.The Senator identified the men as Adolphe H. Wenzel, unpaid consultant to the Budget Bureau and at the same time an official of the First Boston
Corp. which later handled Dixon-Yates financing, and Paul Miller, vice president of First Boston.Senator Albert Gore (Dem.), Tennessee, cut into his speech with a statement that the names would have "tipped off" the part First Boston was playing in the plans to channel private power into the Tennessee Valley Authority grid.Democrats, particularly from the Tennessee valley, have protested the now-cancelled plan as a move to cut down TVA backed by private power interests.Response to Kefauver.
Adams's letter was in response to an invitation from Kefauver for him to "testify fully" about any conferences he may have held regarding suspension of an SEC hearing on Dixon-Yates financing.Adams noted that Kefauver, in the letter inviting him to testify, took the stand that any conferences he may have had with the SEC on the matter "are not privileged and should be fully disclosed.""If the subcommittee is correct in its opinion on the question of privilege," Adams wrote,
"the facts concerning any such conversations or conferences could readily be developed by the subcommittee through the chairman of the appropriate quasi-judicial agency," he wrote.He added that because of that and because of my official and confidential relationship to the President, I respectfully decline the subcommittee's invitation."Names Omitted.
In the discussion in the Senate Anderson said Kefauver's letter to Adams had omitted Miller and attended conferences at the AEC building at the time the Dixon-Yates matter was in consideration.He said the AEC letter said the names had been omitted from a list of participants in the Dixon-Yates talks as "items which were considered unimportant." He said the letter added that there had been discussions between the Budget Bureau and AEC as to whether to list the two names."These were not clerks," Anderson told the Senate, discussing the matter on Page 20, Column 2.

SECURITY TALKSBulgarian Position Reversed by Molotov in Dramatic Compromise
—Real Test to Come in October.By MARQUIS W. CHILDS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.(Copyright, 1955, Pulitzer Publishing Co.)
GENEVA, July 21—At the Big Four foreign ministers' meeting today Russia's Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov dramatically reversed the position taken yesterday by Marshal Bulganin. He agreed that German reunification must be considered as a part of European security.At the same time the Western delegations agreed that consideration of these two issues should come simultaneously rather than German unification being put ahead of any security arrangement, as the United States had earlier insisted. Bulganin had argued that the problem of European security should come first.Both Sides Concede.
Thus both sides have made concessions and at the close of the meeting a complete directive was drawn up for presentation to the heads of government.
The directive, which the Big Four leaders are expected to approve, will be in effect the final directive of the conference for it will wrap up in one package for simultaneous consideration the two major points of dispute between East and West.This is the most that could under any circumstances have come out of the conference in the view of those who have refused to believe in the possibility of miracles but have held the position that all that could be expected would be the beginning of a better feeling presag-ing possible agreement in the months ahead on the basic issues.The Foreign Ministers probably would have immediately made the agreement public instead of holding it up for ratification by the heads of government if it had not been for the obvious Russian desire to make this a binding agreement, not so much by the Big Four as by Russia and the United States, and especially by Bulganin and President Eisenhower.Fall Meeting.
An agreement has also been reached that the foreign ministers session to follow this meeting at the summit will go over until October. That will be the real test since this conference has been merely a preliminary experiment in understanding.Molotov in his statement at the foreign ministers' session, according to one of those present, made no reference to any divergence from the Bulganin position of yesterday but blandly said that of course it was assumed that German reunification should be considered along with European security.Release of the directive worked out by the foreign ministers for submission to the top Big Four leaders, will be delayed until late Friday or perhaps even Saturday. But its purport is already clear—an agreement to try to agree, beginning in October, on the basic problems on which such wide divergences exist.This may seem a small accomplishment but those who have been in on the preliminaries of this conference from the start certainly expected no more than this.

SECRETARY OF STATE DULLES is welcomed by PREMIER NIKOLAI BULGANIN (center) on arrival at Russian headquarters in Geneva for luncheon today. Waiting to greet
IN STATE REALTY
TAX IN COUNTY7 Cents Per $100 Levy Not to Be Cut Under New Valuations as Are Local Taxes.St. Louis county property owners will have to pay at least an additional $210,700 a year in state real estate taxes, as a result of the State Tax Commission's order calling for a 68 per cent increase in property valuations in the county, the Post-Dispatch was told today.Although local tax rates are expected to be reduced so there will be no material increase in local tax payments, the present state real estate tax of 7 cents on the $100 assessed valuation will not be cut and will be charged on the full amounts of the new valuations.The higher state tax payments, in effect, represent a state property tax increase of 4.2 cents on urban lots and improvements and almost 6 cents on rural lands and improvements.Local Cuts Required.
Under a new state law now in effect, local authorities such as counties, municipalities and school districts will be required to reduce their levies proportionately whenever assessments are boosted 10 per cent or more. County property owners, therefore, will pay about the same amount in local taxes under the new assessments as they would have under the lower valuations.But this new enactment, known as the Noble law, does not apply to the state real estate tax, which is fixed at 7 cents by law at the present time.Those real estate owners who also pay a personal property tax will find some relief from the higher real estate taxes in lower personal property taxes. This is true because the assessment of personal property has been increased very little, but will be subject to the lower tax rate. The same is true of merchants and manufacturers tax, and the tax on the distributable property of public utilities and railroads.The State Tax Commission ordered St. Louis county valuations to be increased to $769-891,919, a jump of about $301-000,000. This was done to bring the county assessments up from an average of 18 per cent of market value to 30 per cent.The commission directed that assessments of urban real estate in the county be increased 68 per cent and valuations of rural acreage and improvements be boosted 65 per cent.Effective Immediately.
The County Board of Equalization ordered that blanket increases be put into effect immediately, in compliance with the state directive. The board issued its order Tuesday, in order to give school districts and other taxing agencies in the county time to revise their levies in accordance with the Noble law.Collection of the 7-cent state property tax on the additional $301,000,000 in county valuations will put an extra $210,700 a year into the state treasury.The 7-cent rate represents three separate state levies.
Three cents goes for the payment of blind pensions, three cents goes into the state general revenues, and one cent is for payment of interest on the state debt.

of succession to the throne, now is in a hospital recuperating from his third auto smashup in the news leaked out only Tues-

the Queen may tell the Duke either to stop driving altogether, or at least not to take the

—which by royal custom must be obeyed without question—would likely depend on the out-

Black Snow Falling on Geneva

RUSSIANS ARE DEEPLY MOVED
BY DECLARATIONPresident Would Let Reds Take Photos Anywhere in America
if We Had Same
Treaty Draft on 4A).

By MAX HARRELSON

GENEVA, July 21 (AP)—
President Eisenhower, in a dramatic bid for coexistence, proposed today that the United States and Russia give each other "a complete blueprint of our military establishments."Each of the two major powers would inspect by air the establishment of the other, the President told the Big Four conference.His proposal was hailed by Prime Minister Eden of Great Britain and Premier Faure of France.Soviet Premier Bulganin said
"We have all been deeply moved by the very sincere declaration," a French spokesman who was present reported later.The President did not say specifically whether his proposal included atomic installations, but he did not rule them out.
The Presidential press secretary, James C. Hagerty, said details would be worked out.Would Lessen Danger.
The President's dramatic move was made at the fifth session of the summit conference.He said Russia and the United States by this step would "convince the world that we are providing between ourselves against the possibility of a surprise attack."This, he said, would lessen danger and help relax world tension.Premiere Faure remarked that he wished all the peoples of the world could have been in the chamber to hear Mr. Eisenhower.
If that were possible, Faure added, maybe they would realize that on July 21, 1955—today—something changed in the world and the first victory over skepticism was scored at the conference.Eden called Mr. Eisenhower's proposal far-reaching and added that he had been deeply moved by the President's sincerity about world peace.Hagerty reported that Eden made some disarmament inspection proposals on initiative half and that Faure talked about budgetary controls over disarmament.Soviet Proposal.
Bulganin, meanwhile, countered with a proposal that the four big powers sign a declaration at the summit conference declaring that they "undertake not to be the first in the use of atomic weapons against any nation and call upon all other states to join in this declaration."The language of the Soviet proposal represented a switch.
Until last May 10, Russia had insisted that the big powers conclude a blanket agreement not to use atomic weapons under any circumstances. Then, however, the Soviet Union accepted a western proposal for an agreement not to use atomic weapons except in reply to aggression.
But the Russians included a provision that the United Nations Security Council—where they have a veto—would have the final word. There was no such provision in today's proposal by Bulganin.

The Soviet proposal

EISENHOWER TEXT: PROPOSAL 'WOULD BE A BEGINNING'

RELIABLE PLAN FOR DISARMING WOULD EASE WAR FEARS, HE SAYS

'Agreements Without Inspection Increase Dangers of War, Do Not Brighten Peace Prospects.'

GENEVA, July 21 (UP).—Text of President Eisenhower's proposal for exchange of military blueprints at today's Big Four conference:

DISARMAMENT is one of the most important subjects of our agenda. It is also extremely difficult. In recent years the scientists have discovered methods of making weapons many, many times more destructive of opposing armed forces—but also of homes, and industries and lives—than ever known or even imagined before. These same scientific discoveries have made more complex the problems of limitation and control and reduction of armament.

After our victory as allies in World War II my country rapidly disarmed. Within a few years our armament was at a very low level. Then the events occurred beyond our borders which caused us to realize that we had disarmed too much. For our own security and to safeguard peace we needed greater strength. Therefore we proceeded to rearm and to associate with others in a partnership for peace and mutual security.

The American people are determined to maintain and if necessary increase this armed strength for as long a period as is necessary to safeguard peace and to maintain our security. But we know that a mutually dependable system for less armament on the part of all nations would be a better way to safeguard peace and maintain our security.

Would Lighten Burdens. It would ease the fears of war in the anxious hearts of people everywhere. It would lighten the burdens upon the backs of the people. It would make it possible for every nation, great and small, developed and less developed, to advance the standards of living of its people, to attain better food, and clothing, and shelter, more education and larger enjoyment of life.

Therefore the United States Government is prepared to enter into a sound and reliable agreement making possible the reduction of armament. I have directed that in intensive and thorough study of this subject be made within our own government. From these studies, which are continuing, a very important principle is emerging to which I referred in my opening statement on Monday. No sound and reliable agreement can be made unless it is completely covered by an inspection and reporting system adequate to support every portion of the agreement.

The lessons of history teach us that disarmament agreements without adequate reciprocal inspection increase the dangers of war and do not brighten the prospects of peace.

Priority Subject. Thus it is my view that the priority attention of our combined study of disarmament should be upon the subject of inspection and reporting.

Questions suggest themselves. How effective an inspection system can be designed which would be mutually and reciprocally acceptable within our countries and the other nations of the world? How would such a system operate? What could it accomplish?

Is certainly against surprise aggression attainable by inspection? Could violations be discovered promptly and effectively counteracted? We have not as yet been able to discover any scientific or other inspection method which would make certain of the elimination of nuclear weapons. So far as we are aware no other nation has made such a discovery. Our study of this problem is continuing.

We have not as yet been able to discover any accounting or other inspection method of being certain of the true budgetary facts of total expenditures for armament. Our study of this problem is continuing. We by no means exclude the possibility of finding useful checks in these fields.

As you can see from these statements, it is our impression that many past proposals of disarmament are more sweeping than can be insured by effective inspection.

Search for Proposal.

Gentlemen, since I have been working on this memorandum to present to this conference, I have been searching my heart and mind for something that I could say here that could convince everyone of the great sincerity of the United States in approaching this problem of disarmament. I should address myself for a moment principally to the delegates from the Soviet Union because our two great countries admittedly possess new and terrible weapons in quantities which do give rise in other parts of the world, or reciprocally, to the fears and danger of surprise attack.

I propose, therefore, that we take a practical step, that we begin an "arrangement," very quickly, as between ourselves—immediately. These steps would include:

Russian Farm Visitors Spending Two Days Inspecting Iowa State Agricultural College

Soviet Experts Seem to Be Eager for Trip, Seek Talks on Organizing Schools.

AMES, Ia., July 21 (AP).—Twelve Russian farm experts began a two-day visit today at Iowa State College, one of the leading United States agricultural schools. So far on their tour, they have traveled through rich corn country and stopped to inspect individual farms.

They got a glimpse of Iowans and Iowa farming and Iowa farmers got a peek at the Russian visitors.

But for today and tomorrow the program is rather different. The Russians are to be given a general picture of the activities of an American agricultural school and more important the chance to indulge their specific curiosity in particular subjects.

Those conducting them on this tour report they are very eager for this opportunity. One of the Americans who is making arrangements for the Russians said "Deputy Minister V. V. Matskevich (leader of the group) keeps asking me to arrange for him discussions with college officials on the organization and administration of the school."

Sessions With Personnel. Matskevich and all the rest of the Russians are going to get their opportunity in some measure today and tomorrow, aside from some general meetings and excursions for all the delegates. There will be individual sessions for them with the college personnel they want to see most.

So far since Sunday when they arrived in Des Moines, the Russians have done the following things:

Attended one cocktail party and sampled American liquor (though vodka was on hand, none of them tried it).

Visited four farms, each of them typical Iowa, pretty intensively and had the chance to ask questions of the farmer. On one of them they got a home-cooked Iowa meal.

Visited a Department of Agriculture county extension office.

Attended three Chamber of Commerce dinners in three different Iowa cities.

Made informal stops at about a half-dozen different farms along the road.

Done a little—very little—purchasing in Iowa stores.

Perhaps even more important than some of the bigger things in their tour, are the smaller things they've done.

Visitors Play Juke Box. Alexander Tulupnikov, for instance, last evening played a juke box.

Andrei Shevchenko, evening before last, looked into a jeweler's store window.

Nikolai Gureyev yesterday morning tried out American chewing gum.

All 12 Russians joined in singing evening before last the Iowa State song "That's Where the Tall Corn Grows."

Matskevich got a gift yesterday.

establishments, from beginning to end, from one end of our country to the other. Lay out the establishments and provide the blueprints to each other.

Next, to provide within our countries facilities for aerial photography to the other countries—we to provide you the facilities within our country, ample facilities for aerial reconnaissance, where you can make all the pictures you choose and take them to your own country to study; you to provide exactly the same facilities for us and make these examinations, and by this step to convince the world that we are providing against the possibility of great surprise attack, thus lessening danger and relaxing tensions.

Likewise we will make more easily attainable a comprehensive and effective system of inspection and disarmament, because what I propose, I assure you, would be but a beginning.

Eisenhower's Suggestion. Now from my statements I believe you will anticipate my suggestion. It is that we instruct our representatives in the subcommittee on disarmament in the United Nations to give priority effort to the study of inspection and reporting. Such a study could well include a step-by-step testing of inspection and reporting methods.

The United States is ready to proceed in the study and testing of a reliable system of inspection and reporting. And when that system is proved, then to reduce armaments with all others to the extent that the system will provide assured results.

The successful working out of such a system would do much to develop the mutual confidence which will open wide the avenues of progress for all our people.

The quest for peace is the statesman's most exacting duty. Security of the nation entrusted to his care is his greatest responsibility. Practical progress to lasting peace is his fondest hope. Yet in pursuit of his hope he must not betray the trust placed in him as guardian of the people's security.

A sound peace—with security, justice, well being, and freedom for the people of the world—can be achieved, but only by patiently and thoughtfully following a hard and sure tested road.

VLADIMIR MATSKEVICH, Russia's first deputy minister of agriculture, being greeted by MRS. CHARLES HEARST as party of touring Russian farm experts visited the Hearst farm near Waterloo, Ia., yesterday. Mrs. Hearst's husband is in the party of American farmers currently inspecting agricultural conditions in Russia.

day morning of a box of marbles from a Negro business man in Cedar Rapids who has a collection of 45,000 marbles from all the countries of the world.

For those who watch the Russians on this journey their individual personalities are emerging more clearly.

Matskevich, for instance, is an exceedingly adept politician and diplomat.

Tulupnikov is quite a ladies' man. He's photogenic and he enjoys the limelight.

Shevchenko is a comic—or at any rate acts this role. What does it all add up to? A number of Iowans have asked this question about it. It seems doubtful they've answered it even to their own satisfaction.

At any rate, to the 12 Russians, Americans are never again going to be such impersonal, distant beings as they were before; and to a number of Iowans Russians also are going to seem from now on more like human beings than they were before.

Russians Visit Farm. One of their visits yesterday was to the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Stover Jr., near Reinbeck. The Stovers own their own 160-acre farm and have 30 head of Holstein dairy cattle. Stover took the Russians around to inspect the farm and answered the Russians' questions. Again the Russians concentrated on farm economics.

An incident with an anti-Communist occurred during the Stover visit.

Stan Baker, of nearby Hudson, Ia., self-styled director of the Iowa State Anti-Communist League, approached a hand-lettered placard which read "There Is No Freedom in Russia."

Baker brought also about a dozen copies of a booklet issued by the United States Anti-American Activities Committee entitled, "100 things you should know about Communism."

The Rev. Elmon Ward, pastor of the United Presbyterian Church at Reinbeck, tried to persuade Baker to leave, saying the burden of which was that the Russians should never have been invited to this country, and that nine out of 10 Iowans were against the idea.

Finally, he left the farm with the statement that he believed in private property and therefore would not stay on the premises any longer.

The Soviet delegation did not see the incident. The Russian delegates were inside a Stover barn when it took place.

On Tuesday, a Negro college student who said he wanted to attract attention to "discrimination" against Negroes confronted the delegation near Washington, Ia., with a sign that said: "Iowans are prejudiced, narrow and hypocritical toward Negro workers."

RUSSIANS TOLD OF U.S. WELCOME

MOSCOW, July 21 (AP).—Dispatches to Moscow newspapers from Sidor Rapids, Alons—that's the way it is spelled here—reported today that the visiting Soviet farm delegation is being welcomed heartily as it tours Iowa.

A Pravda story from a Tass news agency correspondent said the Russians had been banquet guests of the mayor and Chamber of Commerce at Cedar Rapids. It said they also had received a telegram of greetings from Representative Fred Schwengel of the Iowa Legislature.

Meanwhile, an American farm delegation visiting Russia pushed on through the Ukraine at Kharkov and entered what the Soviets call their corn country. The Americans got their first look at Russian methods of hybridization and fertilization.

While touring an experimentation station, Lauren K. Soth, editorial page editor of the Des Moines Register and Tribune, presented the station head with seed corn from Iowa and the Dakotas. Soth was the first to suggest that Soviet farmers visit the United States in an editorial.

At a Kharkov experimental station, Dr. W. V. Lambert, leader of the visiting group, invited experimental chief Academician V. Yuriev and his workers to visit the United States.

"You, Mr. Yuriev, will see many changes in agriculture since your last visit in 1912," Lambert said. Lambert is dean of agriculture at the University of Nebraska.

The Americans also visited a collective farm where, according to Ukrainian custom, the chairman of the farm welcomed them by bringing them salted bread.

By the United Press.

The Americans expressed amazement at the apparent waste of manpower on Soviet collective farms. They said comparable farms in America would be more completely mechanized and would require one-twentieth of the manpower.

Although reluctant to make comparisons which might be considered unfriendly, the visitors said they were appalled at the necessity of employing 700 workers on a state farm outside Moscow.

The Americans agreed that a farm of similar size in the United States could be operated by 30 workers, and with practically complete mechanization.

The farm they visited has 2400 acres under cultivation, 150 cattle and about 30,000 chickens.

"We simply could not pay the cost of using more than about 30 workers," said Fred S. Owen of Newark, O. "And they could handle it easily without killing themselves."

PRESIDENT SENDS VIEWS ON GENEVA TO CONGRESSMEN

His Report Is Optimistic, Expresses Belief Russia Really Wants Peace.

WASHINGTON, July 21 (UP).—President Eisenhower advised congressional leaders today that he is personally convinced the Russians are anxious for the Geneva conference to show concrete results.

This report on Mr. Eisenhower's view came from reliable congressional sources who said the President had dispatched from Geneva his personal observations to be made available to congressional leaders.

Mr. Eisenhower's report was dictated yesterday, apparently before he lunched with Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov, Soviet defense minister with whom the President has long been friendly.

Believes Reds Want Peace. According to congressional informants, the report repeated the President's belief that the Russians want peace.

It also was said to carry his conclusions that the Soviet leaders sincerely want the conference to show concrete results indicating progress toward world peace.

At the same time, Mr. Eisenhower was reported to have noted that there has been no significant change in the Western and Soviet positions on such major issues as German reunification and European security.

The President was said to have indicated, however, that he feels a much better climate has been created for future discussions and that he is impressed by the Soviet attitude of friendliness.

Mr. Eisenhower also was reported to be highly pleased by the unity shown so far by the United States, Britain and France.

On the basis of reports received since Monday, some congressional leaders feel that the greatest achievement to be expected from the conference is the creation of a new climate between Russia and the West.

Clearing the Way. They felt that Mr. Eisenhower, through personal contacts with the Russians, may persuade the United States policy is not an aggressive one. These leaders suggest that dispelling of this Russian fear may clear

Eisenhower Dominant Figure At Parley, Keeps Grin in Action

Russians Display Perpetual Smiles, but Eden Sometimes Seems Careworn and Faure Preoccupied.

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH. GENEVA, July 21 (AP).—The Russians are doing most of the smiling, but President Eisenhower so far seems to be the dominant personality at the summit conference.

Premier Bulganin and Moscow's other delegates have attracted much attention. Tough-minded customers around the conference table, they are displaying an outward air of affability that stops crowds everywhere they go.

Defense Minister Marshal Georgi Zhukov outdoes them all. He never seems to look tired and is rarely seen without a face-splitting grin.

But Mr. Eisenhower seems to be the top man of the conference. Even in the smiles department, he is a close runner-up to the Russians. His famous grin disappears only when he is really tired.

The President came to the parley a dramatic figure—World War II conqueror of the Nazis, now pledged to try to bring world peace.

Friendship With Zhukov. His wartime friendship with Zhukov was another enhancing factor. The President's direct appeal to his former fighting associate and his two-hour private luncheon with the Marshal yesterday seem to have captured the imagination of the people, boosting hopes that the summit meeting will help solve some of the world's problems.

The President also touched a universal note of understanding by taking time out from his conference activities to buy toys for his grandchildren.

The British and French also come in for their share of attention, but the Americans and Russians hold the limelight.

Eden, generally considered the most popular of the Big Four, frequently looks careworn. Faure smiles least of all. He seems too preoccupied with his own thoughts to put on a special face for the public.

Faure Spurns Escort. Faure is also the least security-minded of the chiefs of government. He brushed aside Swiss offers of a motorcycle escort. His security guards are so unobtrusive as to be almost noticeable.

Eden abandoned his motorcycle escort after the first day but is closely guarded. The Russians are surrounded on their outings by a full escort, plus dozens of Swiss and Russian security men. Only occasionally do they leave the guards behind, as Zhukov did when he lunched with Mr. Eisenhower.

American security guards surround the President at all times and survey every move he makes.

The American delegates are by far the best dressed of the four. They brought light summer suits, and Geneva has been having 90-degree weather.

Reds Have Pants Pressed. The British and French are immaculate in their traditional dark suits, but they must be sweltering. The Russians remain at the bottom of the style list with their penchant for bell-bottomed trousers. But nowadays their suits fit well and the trousers are creased.

Russian girl secretaries wear what appear to be nylon stockings. Only they know whether they came from home or were bought in Geneva.

The British have the smartest automobiles, ranging from Eden's superb black Rolls-Royce down to other handsome new British models for lesser delegates.

Mr. Eisenhower travels in the least impressive car of all, a battered 1940 Cadillac he used in a military commander in Europe and had brought here for sentimental reasons. His Secret Service guards have a swank Lincoln convertible.

reports would be sent to congressional leaders from Geneva. Today's was the first to come from him in person.

the way for the Soviets to carry on future diplomacy with greater frankness and less suspicion. There is no evidence that congressional leaders expect a major adjustment this week of the big problems troubling relations between the West and the Communist world. There is some speculation, however, that the Soviet leaders may pull a spectacular play before the conference closes.

Before his departure, Mr. Eisenhower promised that daily

PRISON OFFICIAL QUITS DUE TO DEMANDS BY CONVICTS

RAWLINS, Wyo., July 21 (AP).—Deputy Warden Herb Barker resigned from the Wyoming penitentiary staff yesterday, four days after a revolt at the prison because of what he called a "list of duties" handed him by an inmate council.

The council was formed this week as one of the conditions demanded by rioting convicts in a 15-hour insurrection Saturday. Barker did not specify what the "list of duties" included. The council was formed by convicts and Warden Deane Miller on what the warden termed a trial basis. Its purpose, as explained by convict spokesmen, was for channeling grievances and complaints to the warden.

$6,800,000 PARK PROGRAM TO BE URGED BY COUNTY BOND SCREENERS

Purchase of 3190 Acres for New Recreational Acres Envisioned in Recommendations of Subcommittee.

Expenditure of $6,800,000 for acquisition and development of parks and playgrounds as part of the proposed St. Louis county bond issue program will be recommended by the parks and welfare subcommittee of the Citizens' Bond Issue Screening Committee, Mrs. Louis F. Booth Jr., subcommittee chairman, said today.

Of the total, $3,200,000 would go to buy 3190 acres of new park sites, $3,100,000 for development of these sites and $500,000 to provide "the most immediate and urgent improvements" in four existing county parks having an area of 756 acres.

To Be Submitted Monday. Recommendations of the subcommittee will be submitted to the full committee at a meeting at Missouri Athletic Club next Monday night, planned for preparation of a final report to the County Council.

J. John Brouk, committee chairman, said last week the committee probably would recommend that the bond improvement program, totaling around $40,000,000, be submitted to voters Oct. 4, when a special state election is scheduled. Highways, buildings and additional voting machines also are under consideration as bond items.

The park bond program, which would be submitted as one item, is based on "the most conservative recommendations" made by the county parks department.

Mrs. Booth said, pointing out that proposed expenditures are based on present population. Moreover, on the basis of one acre of park per 100 population, as recommended by recreation authorities, a total of 3200 acres would be needed, she said. The county has 1529 acres of parks now, so that net requirements would be 3851 acres, substantially more than the 3190 acres contemplated in the program, she said.

Spending on Present Parks.

Of the $500,000 proposed for development of existing parks, the subcommittee would spend $248,500 on the 420-acre Creve Coeur Memorial Park, to include dredging and restoring of the lake; $260,000 on Jefferson Barracks Historical Park, 135 acres; $49,500 on Buder Park, 140 acres on U.S. Highway 66 near Valley Park, and $41,600 on Sylvan Springs Park at Jefferson Barracks.

Expenditures in these parks would be for roads and parking areas, water systems, shelters, lighting, landscaping and picnic areas. Mrs. Booth said no plans were included for West Tyson Park, 240 acres at Highway 66 in the western part of the county, because needs were thought not to be so urgent there.

The county parks department would be authorized to lay out and develop playgrounds and also "greenbelt" recreational and picnic areas along highways. Mrs. Booth said. Sites for the proposed new parks have not been announced.

A $4,500,000 park item for purchase of 2000 acres, submitted to voters in the February 1954 bond election, failed of the necessary two-thirds majority by only 2562 votes.

Traffic Relief Streets. Proposals that construction of traffic relief streets in Wellston, Pine Lawn and Overland be included in the county bond issue were made by public officials at a meeting last night at Wellston City Hall.

The meeting was called by Councilman James H. J. McNary of the Second District to sound out the sentiment of persons living in his district. Michael J. Carroll, a member of the citizens' screening committee, presided, and about 50 persons attended.

Mayor Thomas Jordan of Overland said he believed Woodson road should be developed in the Overland area, and that Midland boulevard, which is the old streetcar right-of-way, should be developed from Olive street northwest through Overland.

A suggestion that St. Louis avenue, which now ends at Kienlen avenue in Hillside, be extended eastward across the Wabash railroad tracks to join St. Louis avenue in St. Louis, was made by Mayor Leo Hayes of Wellston. This would relieve traffic on Easton avenue and Natural Bridge road, he said.

Other Proposed Changes. Other proposals advanced by Hayes included the extension of Kienlen beyond Easton to Page avenue for relief of Hamilton avenue traffic, and the widening of Wells avenue to Hamilton. He said Wells should be built as far as Lucas and Hunt road. This would require extension of Lucas street south of Easton to meet Wells.

Collector B. A. Ruthmeyer and Alderman Steve Marre of Pine Lawn said they wanted Lexington avenue which runs south of Natural Bridge, to be extended west to Lucas and Hunt road, and that Hamilton avenue on the northern end also was suggested. Hamilton now joins off to Kienlen in Wellston.

City Counselor William J. Becker of Wellston challenged the right of the state to require the county to pay half the cost of right-of-way or state highways. He said the requirement is now by agreement only and is not provided in the state constitution. Other counties are not required to make such payments, he added.

50-Year-Old Polish-American Meeting Place Here Being Razed

The Polish Home at 1938 Cass avenue, a three-story brick structure that served as club and meeting place for St. Louis Polish-Americans for nearly half a century, is being torn down to make way for the M-6 public housing project in the DeSoto-Carr area.

Built in 1907 when the tide of immigration from northern Europe was high, the cultural and recreational center, operated by the Polish Home Association, was the focal point for observance of Polish holidays, and for wedding parties and colorful dances.

At the building's tavern on the ground floor, newcomers to the United States found an atmosphere of hearty cheerfulness and solidarity that was reminiscent of the old country. Everything was old-fashioned and built to last.

"The bar was 50 feet long, solid oak with a huge mirror," a member recalled with some nostalgia. "The tables and chairs were of heavy oak, too. Drinks ran to beer and straight whisky. It was like the old days."

No food was served regularly extended eastward across the Wabash railroad tracks to join St. Louis avenue in St. Louis, was made by Mayor Leo Hayes of Wellston. This would relieve traffic on Easton avenue and Natural Bridge road, he said.

NEW CONTRACT SETTLES STRIKE ON BARGE LINES

Clause Covering More Time Off Is Included — 450 Union Members Involved.

The strike of towboat officers and pilots, which tied up river shipping by three major barge lines since last Sunday midnight, was settled early today when representatives of two marine unions accepted a proposed new contract. The agreement is subject to formal confirmation by the 450 union members, through a mail poll.

Following announcement of the settlement, deck hands and oilers who were laid off yesterday in anticipation of a deadline in the negotiations, were recalled to their boats. It was expected that a majority of the 50 towboats and 1000 barges docked by the strike would be moving along the 3000-mile Mississippi river waterway system today.

Chief point at issue was a demand by the AFL Masters, Marine and Pilot Association and the CIO Marine Engineers Benevolent Association for an additional time off. Under a proposed new four-year contract, the former one-half day off for each day worked will be raised gradually to a full day in the fourth year of the agreement.

It was also agreed that, in view of the additional time off, officers and pilots would accept a cash bonus in lieu of the customary 21-day vacations, a union negotiator said. The bonus will range from 2 to 6 per cent of base pay. The salary scale ranges from $430 monthly for mates to $885 for master-pilots.

The average towboat-barge crew consists of eight deckhands, two mates, a master pilot, three engineers, two junior engineers, two oilers, a cook and two messboys. Quarters and food are provided without charge.

The strike was against Federal Barge Lines, Inc., American Barge Line Co., and Mississippi Valley Barge Line Co., which towboat operators, operating as contract carriers, were not involved.

TUCKER APPOINTS SCREENING BOARD FOR COMIC BOOKS

Other Children's Publications Also to Be Checked — Reports Will Go to Police.

Appointment of a board to screen comic books and other publications available to children, was announced today by the office of Mayor Raymond R. Tucker.

The Board of Review for Juvenile Readers was established under an ordinance enacted last April by the Board of Aldermen. The ordinance prohibits the sale or distribution to minors of publications of an obscene or indecent nature or containing accounts of crime written or illustrated in a manner which would tend to incite minors to crime.

This is the first time St. Louis has had an ordinance providing for censorship of publications. Exactly what would tend to incite minors to crime is not specified. Members of the city counselor's staff said that although they regarded the wording as "adequate," a determination probably would be made in court.

They explained that the police will be called on to decide whether a publication violates the law, and said the ordinance places greater emphasis on pictures than on reading matter.

The ordinance directs the Board of Review to keep informed on publications found within the city and to co-operate with groups dedicated to the elimination of juvenile delinquency. It requires the board to report obscene and objectionable publications to the Police Department.

Meeting to Be Called

Mayor Tucker will call the Board of Review to its first meeting shortly after his return from Washington. It was announced. The board will choose its own chairman and secretary. How the board will conduct its screening has not been determined.

Members of the board are: Miss Gay Hermann, director of Christian education at Delmar Baptist Church. She represents the Metropolitan Church Federation and lives at 6043 Clemens avenue.

Leonard J. Dierker, executive secretary of the board of education of the Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod. He represents the Lutheran Pastoral Conference and lives at 4437 Tate avenue.

Jack Schuler, president of the southern district of the Council of Catholic Men. He lives at 6201 Oleatha avenue and represents the Archdiocese of St. Louis.

Rabbi Bernard Lipnick, editor of the Jewish Post.

MORE OIL MILLIONS ROLL IN FOR OSAGE INDIANS

PAWBUKA, Okla., July 21 (UP)—The Osage Indians stand to collect $2,399,900 from more than 500 oilmen who agreed yesterday to pay that sum for 290 oil and gas leases.

The money goes to the tribe, which was shoved off into some seemingly worthless scrub oak hill country by a treaty with the white men about 70 years ago. The area later developed into one of America's greatest oil fields.

Those poor Indians were shoved off on the most worthless land in the territory, and then they struck oil," Dr. Charles Evans, Oklahoma historian, laughed today.

Yesterday's sale was the richest since one in July, 1933, that netted the Indians $3,900,000 in bonuses. There have been numerous other sales totaling millions of dollars.

YOUTH CHARGED WITH MURDER IN DEATH OF MILANO

Accused of Beating Him With Brass Knuckles After Another Knocked Him Down.

A warrant charging Anthony Gardina, a cement finisher, with murder in the death of Kenneth W. Milano, whose battered body was found on the Mississippi river bank near MacArthur Bridge July 2, was issued today by Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Henry J. Fredericks.

Fredericks said witnesses told him and police that Gardina, who lives in the 1600 blocks of Arlington avenue, beat Milano with brass knuckles on his hands after another man had knocked Milano down with a blow on the head with a gas pipe.

Milano, who lived at 2347A Albion place, met a group of about eight youths and young women in a South Broadway tavern, Fredericks said. The group went in three cars to the riverfront, where they parked.

In addition to Gardina, 22 years old, police were questioning two other youths and several teenage girls in connection with the death. The youths said they were Benjamin Brumley, no home address, and Cecil Donalson of the 2100 block of Lafayette avenue.

A 16-year-old girl, apprehended by police as a runaway, said she saw the fight which led to the death of Milano.

She told police she was with a group of seven, including five boys and two girls. The group, in three automobiles, had parked at the foot of Chouteau avenue where they were drinking whiskey and taking "goofballs," which she described as containing heroin and some other narcotic. The boys got into a fight, she said, when Milano started to "get fresh" with the other girl.

She said one of the youths picked Milano up and hurled him down the rocky embankment.

The youths who were being questioned today denied being with the group or knowing anything about the death of Milano.

Milano, 18 years old, died of a broken neck and internal hemorrhages, an autopsy disclosed. His mother, Mrs. Marcelle Roloff, with whom he lived, told police investigating the death that her son arrived home July 2 about 4 a.m. but he did not come in the house. She said she heard a young woman call "Come with us, Kenny." His body was found about three hours later.

WEST HOUNDS DOOR OPEN HOPING FOR RUSSIA TO MAKE LAST-HOUR SHIFT

It Has Happened in Past but Reds, More Likely, Are 'Normalizing' Situation to Get Along With Allies.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

GENEVA, July 21 (AP)—Western leaders have decided to keep the door open and hope alive for some important Soviet concession on German reunification right up to the last minute of the summit conference.

Privately, experts see no evidence in the positions so far taken by Soviet Premier Bulganin that the Kremlin intends to yield on any important point. But in postwar negotiations over the last 10 years, Soviet delegates have occasionally sprung last-minute surprises. There may be a chance this practice will be repeated this time.

President on the Alert

President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles are reported to be fully aware of this possibility, along with other Western authorities here.

The evidence is, however, that Bulganin and his associates have been trying—in one of their own words—to "normalize" relations with the West.

They seem to conceive of this not so much in terms of giving up important interests of their own, as accepting the inevitability of what they cannot change in the West.

Fresh indication that this is the Soviet policy line came last night when French, British and American experts analyzed the proposal Bulganin introduced yesterday for creation of a new European security system.

They decided this proposal tacitly recognized West Germany's right to remain as a member of the North Atlantic Alliance and Western European Union.

Accepting Reality

One provision of the Soviet plan specifically recognized obligations of countries under such existing treaties as the North Atlantic Treaty. That presumably would include Germany's promise under the Paris agreements to raise a 500,000-man force for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. This was a surprising turn in Soviet policy. Six months ago Moscow was fighting West German rearmament at every turn. It is not so surprising, however, when viewed as part of a policy of "normalizing" what they can't change.

Bulganin already has told the Big Four conference he knows it would be unrealistic to expect the Atlantic alliance and West Germany's links with it to be dissolved very soon.

All he has said in this respect appears to be of a piece with his invitation several weeks ago to Soviet Foreign Minister Bulganin to visit Moscow and establish regular diplomatic and trade contacts.

The issue of German unity, however, raises a different set of interests for the Russians. Under present conditions they cannot agree to it without giving up their position in East Germany. That in turn might shake their influence over eastern European satellite states. It would mean pulling back Soviet power from its present forward position in northern Europe.

Bulganin and Soviet Foreign Minister Bulganin also argue that a united Germany linked to the West would be a future menace.

At the foreign ministers' meeting yesterday, Dulles asked Molotov to explain precisely what he and his government fear. Molotov reportedly made no answer.

Yesterday's unanimous Big Four decision to prepare for more negotiations after the summit meeting ends is in line with the manifest Soviet willingness to talk about problems, whether or not a solution is in sight.

Austrian Decision Recalled. The Russians talked with the Western powers for 10 years about restoring Austria's independence before they finally decided it was in their interest to act.

The negotiations which are expected to follow the current meeting probably won't be set in motion until much later this year. Many different ideas have been advanced, and all four Governments want time to study them.

The deadlock which has developed on the German issue does not mean the Geneva conference will be a failure. The reciprocal testing of Soviet and Western intentions is a valuable and productive exercise in itself. Moreover, something still may be accomplished on the problem of establishing armaments controls in Europe.

Some other gains already have been registered. The two sides have demonstrated they can deal with each other cordially—or at least politely. The atmosphere, which diplomats love to consider significant, has been acclaimed by all as friendly.

GENEVA, July 21 (AP)—Mamie Eisenhower went yachting on Lake Geneva today—together with a whole fleet of small boats crammed with photographers.

The First Lady of the United States was hostess to wives of members of the British and French delegations to the Big Four conference. In the party were: Mme. Max Petitpierre, wife of the President of Switzerland; Lady Eden, wife of the British prime minister; Mme. Edgar Faure, wife of the French premier; Mrs. John Foster Dulles, wife of the American secretary of state; Mrs. Franklin C. Gowen, wife of the American consul general in Geneva; and Mrs. Livingston Merchant, wife of the United States assistant secretary of state.

Wives of the Soviet delegation would have been included if any had been here, but they all stayed in Russia.

The party planned a 2½-hour cruise up the right shore of the lake, taking in such sights as the cottage on the Swiss-French border where Leon Trotsky and V. I. Lenin plotted the Russian revolution during World War I.

The women cruised aboard the 52-foot yacht L'Elma, named for the wife of Pierre Cartier, owner of the craft. Flashing a big smile, Mrs. Eisenhower boarded the boat late in the morning.

President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles are reported to be fully aware of this possibility, along with other Western authorities here.

ZHUKOV PUSHED TO STARRING ROLE IN GENEVA TALKS

Most Observers Believe His Prominence Reflects Influence of Red Armed Forces.

GENEVA, July 21 (AP)—

Marshal Georgi Zhukov has been pushed onto the stage of international diplomacy by the Kremlin and led right down to the footlights by President Eisenhower.

Why do the most powerful men in Washington and Moscow want to make a star diplomatic performer out of the Soviet armed force chief? Both East and West seem determined to get the most out of the personal friendship between Mr. Eisenhower and Zhukov.

There is a suspicion the Kremlin may be setting up Zhukov as a scapegoat if Moscow's new "soft line" fails to make expected gains.

The cold war ices over again. Premier Bulganin and Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev might blame Zhukov and his highly publicized friendship with Mr. Eisenhower.

One argument goes this way: If former secret police chief Lavrenty P. Beria can be blamed for the break with Yugoslav Marshal Tito, what's to stop the Russians from saying any failure of a relaxed Soviet policy was due to a Zhukov-Eisenhower plot?

But a more general view among Moscow observers and diplomats gathered here is that Zhukov's prominence reflects the growing influence of the Soviet armed forces on Russian policy.

Their feel Bulganin and Khrushchev know, and Mr. Eisenhower believes, that the views of the Soviet armed forces and their boss must be taken into account when determining Kremlin policy.

In this connection, they say Zhukov apparently has enough independent control over those forces so that his presence was important for disarmament and security decisions which might be taken in Geneva.

The presence here of Zhukov and Khrushchev underlines a belief that there are three main forces ruling Russia today—the Soviet Government, the Communist party, and the armed forces. The best informed diplomats in Moscow believe that the Soviet Government, the Communist party, and the armed forces have a large measure of independence and express views which must be respected.

One result possibly has been to impress on the civilian leaders the need to curb the military. The result of the 11-bomb war for both sides. The obvious corollary to this would be that the armed forces have insisted on a new, more conciliatory approach to the West.

Moreover, Westerners in Moscow have gained the impression that the Soviet armed forces are keeping a wary eye on Red China with its practically inexhaustible manpower.

Russia's policy for a hundred years was to keep a weak China along the longest laid frontier. It is not surprising, therefore, if ideological considerations have caused the Soviet army to revise its views completely. It is a strongly held belief in influential diplomatic circles that Zhukov's armed forces are urging a more conciliatory approach to the West.

'STOP SHOVING!' CAMERAMAN GRIES; ZHUKOV APOLOGIZES

GENEVA, July 21 (UPI)—The Russians let newsmen and photographers into the garden of their villa last night to take pictures of the Soviet chiefs snipping cool drinks.

The general snuffing that ensued, one lensman was bumped from the rear as he focused his camera.

"Dammit," he shouted, "stop shoving."

DROPPED COMMA IN EDEN'S TALK RAISES QUESTION MARK

The Chicago Daily News-Post Dispatch Special Radio, Copyright, 1955

GENEVA, July 21—The problem of the missing comma loomed very large in the affairs of the Geneva conference today.

A comma was misplaced in Sir Anthony Eden's original speech Monday but it's been rattling around ever since.

As spoken the speech implied recognition of the East German satellite government. In the end the British were compelled to give formal assurances to the West Germans that this was not what Eden meant.

Bi-Lingual Talents Permit Big 4 Chiefs to Chat With One Another

The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch Special Radio

GENEVA, July 21—In what language do the Big Four leaders chat when they talk informally or across the conference table at the Palais des Nations?

President Eisenhower understands some French and German and can speak a few phrases of each. That is why he was able to chat with Soviet Prime Minister Bulganin when they sat together at the formal picture-taking.

Bulganin speaks German fluently. Presumably he understands some English, for his wife Elena teaches it in Moscow. French Premier Faure understands some English. He studied Russian two years ago in Paris and before coming to Geneva brushed it up in two months of work with phonograph records. French sources say he is fluent in it.

British Prime Minister Eden is nearly as expert in French as he is in English. He is believed

LONDON PAPERS PLAY UP REMARK BY EISENHOWER

Daily Express Describes His Comment on Security Pact as Boyish Enthusiasm.

LONDON, July 21—Lord Beaverbrook's London Daily Express used the phrase "boyish enthusiasm" today to describe President Eisenhower's apparently misinterpreted statement on the German problem made at the close of yesterday's Big Four meeting in Geneva.

Soviet Premier Bulganin stated that "the conclusion of a European security pact should not be made dependent on the reunification of Germany."

Western powers in the past have insisted that any European security pact is necessarily linked up with unifying Germany.

But Mr. Eisenhower was reported to have answered Bulganin by saying that this conference was seeking peace not only for Europe but for the whole world. Consequently, the President was quoted, any progress that could be made should not be dependent on anything—there should be no conditions.

British spokesmen in Geneva later interpreted this as not necessarily agreeing with Bulganin. American spokesmen were quoted as saying that President Eisenhower was not referring to what Bulganin had just said.

"Eisenhower puzzle. Yes, to the Russians—but did he mean no?" is the headline in the London News Chronicle.

"A storm boils up around Ike" is the Daily Express headline.

The United States delegation issued a statement affirming that its position on the German unification and European security issues has not been changed. The Associated Press reported from Geneva.

The consensus in Geneva was that Mr. Eisenhower may have been referring to the general desire for preserving world peace, not the relationship between German unity and European peace.

The British delegation also issued a statement saying that Bulganin's comment "represents a Soviet view which was not necessarily accepted or endorsed by any other delegation."

London newspapers apparently gave prominent display to this exchange because of a lack of positive news from the conference.

Most newspapers took the view that progress was being made toward an armistice program and expected some agreement on this to come from Geneva.

They were less optimistic on German reunification and a European security pact to include Germany, except the Soviet Union. The opinion was expressed that the heads of government probably would direct their foreign ministers to meet and attempt to work out an agreement.

It was believed that the Big Four might hold another meeting later this year if their foreign ministers agreed on a program.

The Manchester Guardian stated that there were the seeds of a conference agreement in the statements of the Big Four leaders. The Guardian concluded, however:

"It will depend on whether Russia's chief objective is to upset NATO or whether she wants an easing of tension on reasonable terms."

Neutral Press in Europe Hails Eisenhower's Tactics.

The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch Special Radio

GENEVA, July 21—The way in which President Eisenhower has conducted himself both socially and officially at the Big Four conference has had an unusually favorable effect among Europe's neutralist elements.

The neutralist Le Monde of Paris undoubtedly went further than any American would be prepared to go in appraising the effect of Mr. Eisenhower's intervention at the conference Tuesday in which he appealed directly as soldier to soldier to Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov, Soviet defense minister.

"It was an extraordinary moment," wrote Le Monde. "What all the imagination and discussion by diplomats, what all the destruction of the war in Korea had been unable to do was all of a sudden produced by an air of complete frankness and a rare combination of simplicity and greatness."

"The psychological iron curtain that separates the two worlds much more effectively than the political and economic iron curtain was all of a sudden pierced. The words reached the depths of the souls to which they were addressed. With much emphasis, Bulganin responded, saying simply: 'We believe you.'"

Pravda Points to Differences of Opinion at Geneva.

MOSCOW, July 21 (AP)—Pravda said yesterday "there is no secret there are serious differences of opinion" between the East and West at Geneva. But the Communist party organ added this does not prevent a serious exchange of opinions in a search for peace.

The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia gave this account of the exchange in the conference Tuesday between President Eisenhower and Premier Bulganin.

There was great animation among newsmen when an episode quite characteristic of the present conference was related. President Eisenhower stated the United States would never become an aggressor and

Text of Russia's Proposed Treaty on European Security

GENEVA, July 21 (AP).

The text of the proposed treaty on collective security submitted by Soviet Premier Bulganin yesterday:

GENERAL European treaty on Collective Security in Europe. (Basic Principles.)

For the purpose of ensuring peace and security and of preventing aggression against any state in Europe.

For the purpose of strengthening international co-operation in conformity with the principles of respect for the independence and sovereignty of states and non-interference in their internal affairs.

Striving to achieve concerted efforts by all European states in ensuring collective security in Europe instead of the formation of groupings of some European states directed against other European states which gives rise to friction and strained relations among nations and aggravates mutual distrust.

Having in view that the establishment of the system of collective security in Europe would facilitate the early settlement of the German problem through the unification of Germany on a peaceful and democratic basis.

European states, guided by the purposes and principles of the United Nations charter, shall conclude a general European treaty on collective security in Europe, the basic provisions of which shall be as follows:

1. All European states, irrespective of their social systems, and the United States of America as well, may become party to the treaty provided they recognize the purposes and assume the obligations set forth in the treaty.

2. Until the formation of a united, peace-loving, democratic German state, the (East) German Democratic Republic and the (West) German Federal Republic shall be parties to the treaty on equal rights with other parties thereto. It is understood that after the unification of Germany the United German state may be a party to the treaty on an equal footing with any other European state.

3. The conclusion of the treaty on collective security in Europe shall not affect the competence of the four powers—the U.S.S.R., the U.S.A., the United Kingdom, and France—to deal with the German problem, which shall be settled in accordance with decisions previously taken by the four powers.

4. The states-parties to the treaty undertake to refrain from aggression against one another and also to refrain from having recourse to the threat or the use of force in their international relations and, in accordance with the United Nations charter, to settle by peaceful means and such a way as not to endanger international peace and security in Europe any dispute that may arise among them.

5. Whenever, in the view of any state-party to the treaty, there is danger of an armed attack in Europe against one or more of the states-parties to the treaty, they shall consult each other in order to take effective steps to remove the danger and to maintain security in Europe.

6. The states-parties to the treaty shall refrain from the use of armed force or shall refrain from the use of force in their international relations and, in accordance with the United Nations charter, to settle by peaceful means and such a way as not to endanger international peace and security in Europe any dispute that may arise among them.

7. The states-parties to the treaty undertake jointly to discuss and determine as soon as possible the procedure under which assistance shall be provided by the states-parties to the treaty in the event of there arising in Europe a situation requiring a collective effort for the re-establishment and maintenance of peace in Europe.

8. The states-parties to the treaty shall immediately inform the Security Council of the United Nations of any action taken or envisaged for the purpose of exercising the right of collective self-defense in Europe and security in Europe.

9. The states-parties to the treaty shall immediately inform the Security Council of the United Nations of any action taken or envisaged for the purpose of exercising the right of collective self-defense in Europe and security in Europe.

BULGANIN SLAPS BACKS, DROPS BAR ON PHOTOGRAPHS

GENEVA, July 21 (UPI)—

Soviet Premier Bulganin and his Communist comrades, who once stayed very clear of the press, clowned and slapped photographers on the back last night.

It was the frankest display yet of Russia's new open-door policy for the press. And it developed despite orders to the contrary which the Soviets circulated earlier in the day.

The horseplay came about just before a return dinner for French Premier Faure and his delegation.

The Russians spread the word at noon that only four still cameras would be allowed on the grounds of Bulganin's conference villa to take pictures. Newsreel cameras were barred altogether.

But at the appointed time, photographers of all description were massed before the villa. To the surprise of all, they were allowed inside.

Lined up on the lawn and in good humor were Bulganin, Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev, Marshal Georgi Zhukov, Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and ambassador to Washington Georgi Zarubin.

RUSSIA AND WEST COMPROMISE ON GERMAN ISSUE

If indeed as much as, has now been agreed to.

In the aftermath of the conference there will be intensive preparation for his next parley, which seems like to take place either in Geneva or perhaps, on Russian urging, in Vienna.

In the first phase American experts will carefully prepare the American position. In the second phase, the American and the United States will meet to try to concert the Western viewpoint.

Then finally will come the Big Four meeting which will be actually the first real test of whether a settlement can be worked out.

Can't Stand in Way.

West German observers here frankly admit that they had no real expectation of agreement at Geneva on unification. They have long been aware that the desire for relaxation of tensions was too great to allow German unity to stand in the way of some sort of accord between Russia and the West.

This certainly does not mean that they are happy about a delay that might, as the world got accustomed to the relative calm of a cold peace, stretch out into the indefinite future. In his valance, the German press says 87 miles from here Chancellor Adenauer last night held a conference lasting until after midnight with his principal foreign policy advisers.

He may soon issue a statement which his advisers have been drafting. That statement would call attention to the grave danger of continuing the division separating two thirds of the Germans from the other third. Adenauer is firmly convinced that continuation of this division would result in a new military and nationalism which have twice before taken Germany down the road to war and catastrophe.

That is the fear, too, of leaders of the American delegation who are insisting that security and unification must be tied together. They say that President Eisenhower had agreed at one point to omit unification of Germany as a condition for achieving European security was later denied. Within the United States delegation there was considerable resentment that this report had come from British sources.

What U.S. Wants.

What the Americans have been holding out for is modest enough. They have not insisted that German unification and European security follow the exact same timing stage by stage. They have urged that the concluding director of the conference instruct the foreign ministers to work for unification. After all, the agenda of the conference to which the heads of government agreed lists German unity and a security pact of some kind or other as separate items.

The kind of all-European security pact proposed by the Russians seems to American officials to

TALBOTT GAINS PUBLIC HEARING ON ROLE IN FIRM

Action Taken by Senate Group at Request of Air Force Secretary.

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP)—The Senate Investigations subcommittee voted today to call Secretary of the Air Force Harold E. Talbott to an immediate public hearing on his outside business interests.

Chairman John L. McClellan (Dem.), Arkansas, told reporters the decision to hold the hearing today was made at Talbott's request.

The Air Secretary had demanded an immediate hearing so that he might have the opportunity to give the public "complete understanding" about his activities as a partner in Paul B. Mulligan Co., New York City efficiency consultants.

The vote to call Talbott was taken at a closed-door meeting, which Senator George Bender (Rep.), Ohio, began with a blast at what he said were "leaks" to newspaper men about committee business.

In a statement issued at the Pentagon, Talbott said "in view of the rumors, publicity and discussion" regarding his relations with Paul B. Mulligan & Co., he had asked Chairman John L. McClellan (Dem.), Arkansas, to grant a public hearing "as soon as possible, so that the public may have a complete understanding and the accurate information about this matter."

Only a short time earlier, McClellan had said letters furnished to his subcommittee from Talbott's files would figure in a decision whether the Senate would investigate the Secretary's business affairs further.

McClellan declined at that time to discuss published reports that the letters, described as written on the Secretary's air force stationery, show that Talbott solicited business from the Mulligan firm from Talbott's Pentagon office.

Jackson's Comment.

Another subcommittee member, Senator Henry M. Jackson (Dem.), Washington, said he had found nothing in the letters "so far" to show Talbott did anything which Congress should not have known in advance he might do.

Both McClellan and Jackson declined to make the letters public.

At the Pentagon, it was understood the letters in question were turned over to the subcommittee by Talbott at a meeting last week with Robert F. Kennedy, subcommittee counsel.

Talbott said after the meeting he had given the subcommittee representative "all the information he asked for" and that he had "volunteered other information" so that the Senators "might have a full understanding" of his relationship with the Mulligan company.

McClellan declined to discuss reports the subcommittee might call off its inquiry into the Talbott-Mulligan relationship provided the Secretary dropped his connection with the firm.

The New York Times printed today what purported to be photographic copies of some of Talbott's correspondence.

McClellan said in Washington last night that Talbott voluntarily gave the subcommittee his file of correspondence and copies were distributed to members with the understanding that they would be kept "in confidence."

The Senator said it was agreed that the letters would not be made public unless there was a public investigation of Talbott's business connections.

The New York Times, in its report that Talbott had solicited business for the Mulligan firm, said:

"Among the important contracts landed was one covering the entire operations of Avco Manufacturing Co. of New York, headed by Victor Emanuel. This company as of last month had a backlog of $200,000,000 in defense contracts for the Air Force and the Navy."

Other Firms Listed.

"Other big firms that employed Mulligan since 1953 (the year Talbott took office) were the Baldwin-Lima-Hamilton Corp.; Olin Industries; the Greyhound Corp.; and Libby-Owens-Ford Glass Co. of Toledo."

In every instance, the files show that Secretary Talbott played a part in approaching company officials directly to arrange an appointment for Mr. Mulligan or his associates.

The Chattanooga Times said in a Washington dispatch that one Talbott letter in behalf of the Mulligan firm was addressed to John W. Hanes of the Olin-Mathieson Chemical Corp. The story described Olin-Mathieson as "a large defense contractor with a great many Air Force contracts," and said it now is "one of Mulligan's most profitable clients."

Talbott has told the subcommittee there was nothing illegal or unethical in his continuing association with the Mulligan firm.

Before Talbott's nomination by President Eisenhower was confirmed in January, 1953, Talbott told the Senate Armed Services Committee that he would remain a "special partner" in the Mulligan firm. He said he would sever all other business connections.

Talbott said the Mulligan firm would do no work "that has to do with defense work essentially" while he was in the Administration.

A Republican member of the Senate Investigations subcommittee, who declined to be quoted by name, said last week that Talbott had told the subcommittee staff that he takes no profit from any firm that "has a major part of its business with the Government."

The Mulligan firm specializes in consulting on personnel studies and clerical controls.

Texts of Letters Figuring In Senate Inquiry on Talbott

NEW YORK, July 21 (AP)—The following are texts of letters figuring in the Senate investigation of Secretary of the Air Force Talbott's business connections, as published by the New York Times:

FROM Talbott to Paul B. Mulligan, head of an engineering firm with which he is connected. (The "Douglas" referred to in the first paragraph is Lewis W. Douglas of the New York Life Insurance Co., formerly of American Cyanamid, and the "Baldwin" in the third paragraph is the Baldwin-Lima-Hamilton Corp.)

THE SECRETARY OF THE AIR FORCE
Washington
May 4, 1953

Dear Paul:
I think it is perfectly proper and fine for you to go over and have a visit with Douglas, and I also believe that if you go to Chicago it would be perfectly proper for you to make a date and drop in to see Mr. Caesar, president of Greyhound Corporation.

I have seen Hill once or twice and will be talking with him again soon. I will tell him that you have received a letter from Mr. Caesar asking that you drop in and see him when in Chicago.

I was delighted about the Baldwin situation, and also I am hopeful that the Victor Emanuel Co. will work out for you.

Sincerely,
H.

Dear Paul:
I haven't forgotten the Ford matter, but I am a little worried about the best approach in there. Therefore, I haven't come to any decision.

I enclose herewith a note from Clinton Davidson, who is a friend of mine. You might drop him a note and ask him, at some convenient time when he is in New York, to drop by and see you in our offices. I think, if you explain to him in detail the line of work that you are doing, that he might really be of assistance to you.

Sincerely,
H.

October (Blank) 1954

Dear Neil:
Some seven years ago, I formed an engineering company with Paul Mulligan. The company, which has been operated since that time as Paul B. Mulligan & Co., with Paul and myself partners, does nothing but clerical cost control analysis.

I won't try to explain the details of formation because I would like to have Mulligan do this for you. He is leaving within the next week or so for the coast and I have given him your address and telephone number. He will communicate with you when he arrives, and I would appreciate it immensely if you would give him an hour of your time.

At the present time, our only client on the coast is the Richfield Oil Corporation. I feel that there is quite a business potential there, and I would greatly

GIRL, 2, SERIOUSLY HURT IN FALL FROM WINDOW

Billie Ann, 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Wiley, was injured seriously today when she fell 20 feet from a second story kitchen window to a concrete walk at the family home, 1307 Blackstone avenue, police reported.

The child suffered a fractured right arm, a head injury and multiple abrasions. She was taken to City Hospital. After falling to the walk the child apparently rolled down four concrete steps leading to a basement entry, police said.

Mrs. Wiley told police her daughter climbed onto a chair alongside the window, pushed out the screen and fell. She said she turned when Billie Ann screamed and saw her fall.

SWAP OF MILITARY DATA PROPOSED BY EISENHOWER

ties admittedly possess new and terrible weapons in quantities which do give rise in other parts of the world, or reciprocally, to the fears and dangers of surprise attack."

"Complete Blueprints." Then he submitted a two-point plan, in this language:

"To give each other a complete blueprint of our military establishments, from beginning to end, from one end of our countries to the other; lay out the establishments and provide the blueprints to each other."

"Next, to provide within our countries facilities for aerial photography to the other country—we to provide you the facilities within our country, ample facilities for aerial reconnaissance, where you can make all the pictures you choose and take them to your own country to study; you to provide exactly the same facilities for us and we to make these examinations, and by this step to convince the world that we are providing as between ourselves against the possibility of great surprise attack, thus lessening danger and relaxing tensions."

Just "A Beginning"

The President then added: "We will make more easily attainable a comprehensive and effective system of inspection and disarmament, because, what I propose, I assure you, would be but a beginning."

At today's session Russia made a new proposal on European security, which was referred to the foreign ministers for study. The Soviet delegation also came up with disarmament proposals, which Hagerty said were based on Bulganin's remarks at Monday's opening meeting.

At the end of yesterday's session, the top-level conferees referred the German and security questions—first two items on the agenda—to the foreign ministers for further study.

Brief Communiqué.

The only official announcement on the foreign minister's discussions was a brief communiqué which said:

"The four ministers at their meeting this morning, under the chairmanship of Mr. Molotov (Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov) discussed the directive given to them by the heads of government."

"They agreed to recommend that the heads of government meet this afternoon to receive the report and so be in a position to start a discussion of item three on their agenda." Disarmament is the third agenda item.

British informants said the foreign ministers agreed to recommend that they themselves meet again in October to resume consideration of German unity and European security problems on the basis of the directive now under study. They added that complete accord eluded the ministers, however.

An October conference, date would allow three months for the experts of the four countries to study all the proposals made at the summit meeting. The western powers also would have a chance to observe the outcome of the expected visit of West German Chancellor Adenauer to Moscow.

Radford, Stassen on Hand.

President Eisenhower, in preparation for the disarmament talks, had his chief of staff, Adm. Arthur Radford, and his disarmament adviser, Stassen, as luncheon guests.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and other top members of the United States delegation dined with Molotov.

Some Western diplomats considered that the Russians might have retreated from their previous bitter opposition to West German rearmament. They drew this inference from provisions of a proposed all-European security pact Bulganin presented to the conference yesterday.

The draft treaty proposes that both Communist East Germany and the Bonn republic become members of a broad, 50-year European security pact pending the unification of Germany.

It also calls for a freeze on armies in Europe, an East-West non-aggression pledge and eventual dismantling of the North Atlantic and Warsaw alliances.

There is a clause to bar outside interference in the affairs of member states. To the Russians that would mean the West must recognize the present status of the satellite countries.

Bulganin tossed the proposal on the conference table in the form of a 1200-word outline of the basic principles of a "general European treaty on collective security in Europe."

"The Russian draft," Bulganin commented at one point, "is not perfect" and could stand changes.

The draft was almost the same as one Molotov presented to the 1954 conference of the Big Four foreign ministers in Berlin last year—but it differs in four respects:

1. The preamble of the present version asserts the treaty will help bring about Germany's unification and eliminate causes of tension.

2. It offers membership to the United States. Molotov last year placed the United States on the same basis as Red China. As powers outside Europe, they were to have had the role of observers in all the organs to be set up under the pact.

3. It provides for broad economic and cultural co-operation between the member countries.

4. It brings in Bulganin's two-stage concept of a European settlement which the Soviet Premier outlined in his opening speech to the conference Monday.

Stages of Disarmament.

In the first two-year or three-year stage, the members of the rival alliances would undertake a no-war pledge and freeze any forces they may have in foreign territory at existing levels.

The Soviet draft suggested that, at the end of an unspecified time, the Warsaw and Atlantic alliances and the Paris agreement of 1948 allowing West Germany to rearm be canceled.

The second stage of Russia's program envisions an arms cut agreement, prohibition of atomic weapons and withdrawal of foreign troops from Europe.

The Soviet project would bind 26 states of Europe, big and small, not to attack each other and automatically to help any member state that might be the innocent victim of aggression. Some of the provisions were couched in almost the same phrases as the North Atlantic treaty.

The Soviet treaty plan would allow both East and West German governments to be members pending the unification of Germany. It also pledges loyalty to and respect for the provisions of the United Nations charter. A permanent consultative political committee would be set up alongside a military organ.

U.S. Opposition Certain.

During the first stage, the governments signing the pact would not be relieved of obligations undertaken by them under other treaties. This was interpreted by some Western officials as permitting West Germany to raise the 500,000-man force it pledged to NATO in the Paris agreement.

However, the provision of the Bulganin plan calling for eventual abolition of NATO was certain to be opposed by the United States.

In turning the German unification and European security problems over to the foreign ministers yesterday, their chiefs laid down a specific mission to study four points raised by one or all of the Big Four:

1. The problem of German unification itself, with particular reference to the necessity of assuring the security of all European countries;

2. A possible security pact covering all or part of Europe;

3. Limitation of armed forces in Germany and neighboring countries and creation of a control and inspection system;

4. A possible demilitarized zone between East and West.

Deadlock Anticipated.

The western delegations said they were not too discouraged by the deadlock that has so far persisted at the conference. Western officials always have considered that the primary purpose of the summit meeting was to lay the groundwork for such future negotiations.

The spokesman for the French delegation put it this way: "The conference took a turn which permits the expectation that a certain number of common principles will be established before the end of the week, permitting the chiefs of government to give directives to their foreign ministers."

It was understood in western circles that the discussion on the last agenda question—contacts between East and West—would be dealt with quickly. This covers Russian proposals to remove trade restrictions keeping western goods out of Communist countries, as well as western appeals for the Soviets to permit freer circulation through the Iron Curtain.

Before the Big Four referred the German and security problems to the foreign ministers yesterday, Mr. Eisenhower told the conference it was clear that the exchange of ideas had gone about as far as it could. Eden then came forward with the proposal that the difficult problems be turned over to the foreign ministers.

Mr. Eisenhower remarked that perhaps they could find a better bridge between the differing viewpoints expressed at the meeting.

The President said he held the conviction that the four powers must move to deal with German unification at this conference to show the world that the four leaders are starting to act on problems creating world tensions.

Mr. Eisenhower's stand that German unification should come first, before a security system, was supported by both Faure and Eden.

All the Western spokesmen told Bulganin his idea of putting a European security pact ahead would delay German reunification dangerously.

Effect on Germany.

Why all this ruckus over whether Germany is unified before or after creation of a security pact linking Russia and the West?

The West believes fast action is needed on the ground that continued division of Germany makes it unstable and a menace to peace. Reunification also is an important political issue in Germany and any weakening on this front would be a serious blow to Chancellor Adenauer.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Bureau Editor.

Eden attempted to break the deadlock by advocating a compromise between the Soviet and Western proposals.

He asked Bulganin to consider a middle course between the two power pact—to be composed of the Big Four and a united Germany—which Eden proposed Monday, and the 26-nation pact which Russia favored.

Eden originally wanted to limit the pact to five powers, including Germany, because, he argued, that this would provide adequate security for all states, large and small, and would not take so long to negotiate as a pact including 26 countries.

Whereas the number of members could possibly be resolved by compromise, it is difficult to see how the two sides can break the deadlock over whether the pact would come before or after German unity.

Bulganin did not comment on Eden's proposal to compromise on the number of members.

TOP DEMOCRATS IN SENATE BACK EXCHANGE OFFER to exchange military maps with Russia but expressed doubt that the Soviet Union would accept it.

Chairman Richard B. Russell (Dem.) of Georgia, said that "I seriously doubt Russia will accept the offer."

"The Russians probably already have 12 maps of the United States for every one we have of them," he added.

He pointed out that maps of United States military installations are readily available to the public in all forms of publication. The Russians thus far have far more information about us than we do of them.

Russell said, however, that the move was a shrewd one which Russia will have to answer in the eyes of the world.

Senator Stennis (Dem.), Mississippi, agreed that Russia was unlikely to accept the offer. He said the move "certainly puts it up to them."

"It shows our complete willingness for inspection," Stennis said.

Senator George's Comment.

Chairman George (Dem.), Georgia, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee also applauded the proposal.

"It means that the President deemed it necessary at this time in view of the indisposition of the Russians to agree to first steps toward German unification or European security," he told reporters. "It proposes that we go as far as we ask any other nation to go, including Russia."

"We certainly have nothing to lose from the military viewpoint because we live in a fish bowl. This is unavoidably so. Actions in a free country cannot be kept secret, whatever their nature or character."

Importantly, the President's suggestion is proposing an acid test of the sincerity of ourselves and the other Big Four powers sitting at Geneva."

House Democratic Leader McCormack of Massachusetts hailed the President's proposal as a "spectacular" challenge of Russia's sincerity.

"The President in his offer," McCormack said, "has presented a spectacular suggestion. If the Russians refuse they have exposed their insincerity."

House Members' Views.

Representative Prie (Dem.), Illinois, who as a member of the House Armed Services Committee and the joint Atomic Energy Committee is close to the nation's military secrets, said, "If the Russians agree it certainly will be the best approach to a serious and honest disarmament program."

Price said "most" of the United States' military secrets have already been revealed anyway. He said if the Russians accept the President's plan it would be "a long step forward leading toward a serious disarmament program."

Representative Halleck (Rep.), Indiana, House Republican floor leader last year, interrupted debate on a pending mining bill to tell the House about Mr. Eisenhower's proposal.

Halleck said the proposal is in line with the President's objective of preventing a sneak attack on this country. If accepted by Russia, he said, it will be "one magnificent accomplishment of this meeting in Geneva."

The 50 or so House members on the floor at the time applauded.

2 HUNGARIANS SENTENCED TO DEATH AS SPIES FOR U.S.

VIENNA, July 21 (AP)—Two Hungarians have been sentenced to death on a charge of spying for the United States, the Budapest radio said yesterday.

The sentences were reported imposed on Sandor Szilard and Ferenc Jakab, identified by radio Budapest as leaders of an espionage group. An undisclosed number of others were sentenced to prison.

The arrests were announced by the Hungarian interior ministry June 25.

15,000 JAPANESE FLOOD FIGHTERS HOLDING DRILLS

TOKYO (UP)—Fifteen thousand Japanese flood-fighters are holding mass drills this month in an attempt to cut down this country's annual flood damage.

Civilians and military personnel are checking emergency communications, transportation and facilities throughout southwestern Japan.

They are making on-the-spot surveys of the areas expected to be hit—the same every year—and, for about the first time in Japan's flood-ridden history, organized advance steps to prevent national disaster are planned.

The threat of floods this year is the same as in 1953 and 1954 when overflowing rivers wrought havoc in southwestern Japan. The repair of broken bridges, dikes and levees in the area has not kept up with seasonal damage.

DIG TUNA BATTERS HOLE IN BOTTOM OF FISHING BOAT

TOKYO, July 21 (AP)—A 66-ton Japanese tuna boat ran into a huge school of tuna in the Pacific Monday and almost sank when a big one battered a gaping hole in its bottom, the Coast Guard said today.

The No. 6 Shinei Maru, a wooden boat with a 21-man crew, was operating 1100 miles east of Japan. The Coast Guard said the crew made emergency repairs and resumed fishing the next day.

STORM DISRUPTS CURRENT TO LEMAY, AFFTON HOMES

A local storm hit Lemay and Affton about 7 o'clock last night and interrupted electrical service to about 10,000 homes, Union Electric Co. reported today.

A 34,000-volt line was broken, but power was switched around it within three minutes, a spokesman said. Some places were without electricity for several hours.

Lightning struck the homes of William Woodrum, 20 Montague court, Affton, and Albert Holston, 612 De Merville avenue, Lemay, but no one was injured. Lightning also set off a burglar alarm at Lemay Bank & Trust Co., 152 Lemay Ferry road.

WILLIAM TAYLOR LABELED RISK BY LOYALTY BOARD

Ex-Treasury Official
Now Employed by Monetary Fund Accused by Miss Bentley.

WASHINGTON, July 21 (UP)—William Henry Taylor, former Treasury official now employed by the International Monetary Fund, has been officially adjudged a loyalty risk, it was disclosed today.

Informed sources said the international organization employs loyalty board, in an "advisory recommendation" to the Monetary Fund, declared there was a "reasonable doubt" of Taylor's loyalty, and said: "This board is convinced that the employee has engaged in espionage and subversive activity against the United States; that he was placed in a position in the Treasury Department . . . by Communists and espionage agents for the purpose of obtaining his assistance and cooperation in the treacherous plans and objectives; and that he was possibly still is an adherent to the Communist ideology."

Named by Miss Bentley.
Taylor is the last person still in public life, who was named by ex-Communist Elizabeth Bentley as a member of a Soviet spy ring within the Government, headed by the late Harry Dexter White. He has denied under oath, before grand juries and congressional committees, that he was ever a Communist or a spy. In recent months, he has publicly demanded the right to cross-examine Miss Bentley, who said she did not know Taylor personally but heard about him from other members of the alleged ring which operated before and in World War II.

Taylor's attorney, former Representative Byron Scott (Rep.), California, told reporters the loyalty board's ruling was "unbelievable." "They have, in effect, convicted Mr. Taylor—without due process of law—on evidence upon which four grand juries have refused to indict him," Scott said. "They have accepted unsworn testimony of unidentified witnesses against his sworn testimony in refutation. Of course, none of these unidentified witnesses was presented against him at the hearing, so we had no opportunity to cross-examine them or test their credibility."

Scott said he will ask for a review of the board's decision, and expressed confidence that "eventually we will prove it was wrong."

The Monetary Fund, where Taylor has worked since leaving the Treasury in 1946, was reported to be considering the loyalty board's findings. The board is charged with making recommendations to international organizations on the loyalty of all Americans employed by them.

Accuses Informant.
Taylor has charged that Miss Bentley, his only publicly-known accuser, gave testimony against him that was "studded with inconsistencies." Informants said the loyalty board, without naming Miss Bentley, noted that Taylor had centered his challenges on one informant. The board said that the evidence on which it based its findings came from "many sources" and not from "any one source." There was no indication in the findings, however, as to the identity of other informants.

The board, an international body not under United States control, held hearings on the Taylor case in late 1953, and again early this year. Taylor was accused of having been a member of the Community party in Hawaii and Washington, and of having shown marked sympathy for Communist aims and objectives. He was a subordinate of White in the Treasury Department from 1941 to 1946.

The board has eight members, of whom four usually constitute a panel to act on a specific case. Scott has previously identified the members of the Taylor panel as Henry S. Waldman, attorney of Elizabeth, N. J., Pierre J. Gerety, new refugee administrator of the State Department; H. Grady Gore, Maryland real estate operator, and Lawrence M. Gilman, a member of the Connecticut General Assembly.

SCHOOL BURGLARY SUSPECT ARRESTED, ANOTHER ESCAPES

A burglary suspect was arrested, another escaped under fire and two console-type sewing machines stolen from the Summer High School Branch were recovered early today by two police officers in an alley in the 4000 block of Finney avenue.

Cpl. Jesse Gray and Probationary Patrolman Jasper Stallings were attempting to break a traffic jam in a nearby parking lot when they saw the two men looking in the opened trunk of an automobile, they reported. As the officers approached to investigate, one of the men, a Negro, ran. He escaped as Stallings fired two shots. The other man, who identified himself as Leroy Allison, Negro laborer, living in the 4000 block of Fairfax avenue, was captured and said his companion had stolen the machines from the school branch at 1912 Prairie avenue, earlier in the evening. Allison, who had served two workhouse sentences, was booked suspected of burglary.

2 WHO REDS PUT IN SOLITARY BLAME SOLDIER ON TRIAL

FORT BRAGG, N. C., July 21 (UP)—Two witnesses testified at the court-martial of Sgt. John Lester Tyler yesterday that they believed they were placed in solitary confinement in a Red Chinese prison camp because Tyler told their captors they were organizers of a "reactionary" group among prisoners.

Ramon Gray and John B. Allen were among six witnesses the prosecution called to the stand as it began its case against the 25-year-old Moundsville, W. Va., soldier.

The court-martial adjourned following yesterday's testimony pending the arrival of a "material" prosecution witness, Maj. Robert J. DeMund, trial counsel for the Army, declined to identify the missing witness. Unless the witness arrives before then, the court-martial will resume tomorrow.

Tyler is charged in three counts with informing on fellow prisoners while a captive of the Communists between June 1951 and August 1953.

NIXON'S BROTHER ORDERED TO REPORT FOR INDOCTION

YORK, Pa., July 21 (AP)—The York county selective service board today ordered the induction into the armed services on Aug. 1 of Edward Calvert Nixon, brother of Vice President Richard M. Nixon. It directed Nixon, 25 years old, to report to the draft board nearest his home at La Habra, Calif.

Young Nixon lived with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Nixon, on their York county farm when he registered for selective service in 1948. The York board records show that Nixon, now employed by a California oil firm, was granted educational deferments until last October when his induction was ordered. A few days before that time, however, the records showed, Nixon suffered a hand injury and he was reclassified 4-F. He was recently given another pre-induction physical examination and reclassified 1-A, making him available for immediate call-up.

Two Men Hold Up Train at Night, Steal Mail in New York City

Masked Robbers Bind Clerk, Vanish With Eight Pouches—Discard One Bag Containing $2700.

NEW YORK, July 21 (AP)—Two masked men held up an outbound mail-express train last night as it stopped briefly in an open cut below the Manhattan street level near the Hudson river shore. In wild west fashion, they bound and gagged a mail clerk and dumped eight mail sacks on the tracks. Then they disappeared into the night with the bags. Police said they believed most of the bags contained canceled checks, although one might have had pay checks for an upstate plant. The bags were insured for $50 each.

The men apparently jumped on the 11-car New York Central train when it stopped for inspection of its air brakes. Six of the cars carried mail. The train was heading for Albany and upstate New York.

Deputy Police Commissioner James Kennedy said, "They knew exactly what they were doing." Police said, however, that the robbers discarded a mail pouch containing $2700 in small bills and silver.

Mail clerk Thomas Mason of Buffalo, N.Y., was on duty in the next-to-the-last car when he saw two men loom in front of him. Their faces were hidden by handkerchiefs and both held pistols, he said.

Later, he gave police this account:

"This is a stickup," one of the men told him. "Where is the money?" Don't yell or we'll kill you."

When he refused to tell them, they pulled his arms behind and bound his wrists with a pair of handcuffs they brought with them. They rolled him over and one of the robbers put his foot in the small of his back.

"I wasn't frightened until I got a good look at the guns," Mason recalled. "At first I thought they were fooling—I thought they were a couple of kids, wise kids, until they said: 'If you open your mouth we'll kill you.' Then I saw the handcuffs, and I knew they weren't fooling. I was happy when they got off the train."

He said he told the robbers the money was in bags. They discarded some of them—among them the one containing $2700—and dumped eight outside. The sacks were reportedly en route to the First Trust & Deposit Co. of Syracuse from the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. The robbers tied Mason's ankles with a cord, stuffed his railroad cap in his mouth and fled, just about the time the train started to move.

The train was moving when Mason managed to scream for help. A tower signalman heard his plea. The train was stopped at the next signal. An inter-state alarm was flashed for two men described as in their 20s and wearing dark suits and hats. Both were armed.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation joined in the hunt. Mason was taken to a hospital with severe bruises and a possible rib fracture.

TOM CALLANAN SAYS HE'S OUT OF ACTIVE POLITICS

Ex-Sheriff Told to Quit
by Doctor — Won't Run for Democratic State Committee.

Former Sheriff Thomas F. Callanan, leader of a once powerful St. Louis Democratic party faction, said today he is through with active participation in politics.

The 57-year-old Democratic leader, who is recovering from an operation at Missouri Baptist Hospital, declared he is quitting the political wars "on orders of my doctor." Callanan suffered a heart attack several years ago, and recently underwent surgery at the hospital for removal of his appendix and gall stones.

"I'd still like to be in there swinging, right in the middle of things," Callanan told a Post-Dispatch reporter. "But my doctor says I must take it easy, so I'll just have to sit back and forget about it."

Not Candidate for Anything. There has been some talk in Democratic circles recently that he might seek re-election as sheriff next year. But the veteran party leader denied this. "I'm not going to be a candidate for anything," he asserted.

Callanan also declared he would not seek re-election next year as a member of the Democratic State Committee.

"I like politics," he said. "I made a lot of friends in politics and I still have a lot of friends in it. But I have my job to take care of and I can't serve two masters."

He was referring to his job as director of the AFL Steamfitters Union welfare fund. The union was formerly headed by his brother, Lawrence Callanan, who is serving a term in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth for labor racketeering.

Shared Power With Shenker. Callanan teamed with attorney-politician Morris A. Shenker to become one of the city's most influential political leaders. The power of the Callanan-Shenker combine reached its peak in 1950 when it helped to nominate United States Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr. over Emory W. Allison, President Truman's candidate, and brought about the defeat of the proposed new city charter.

The Callanan-Shenker domination of the Democratic party in St. Louis ended in the 1952 elections, when he was defeated for renomination for sheriff by Martin L. Tozer, and most of the candidates he backed in local and state races were defeated. The only Callanan-backed candidate who went on to win that year was United States Senator Stuart Symington.

INDIA CALLS FOR 2-NATION INQUIRY ON SAIGON RIOTS

Asks Britain, Russia to Investigate Attack Involving Truce Commission Members.

NEW DELHI, July 21 (UP)—India officially asked Britain today to investigate yesterday's rioting in Saigon, Indochina, which resulted in the sacking of two hotels housing members of the Indochina Armistice Commission.

India charged that the demonstrations were "deliberately organized."

It relayed its own protest and one from the Armistice Commission to British Prime Minister Eden and Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov at Geneva. They were chairmen of last year's Geneva conference which brought the Indochina war to a halt. India is chairman of the Armistice Commission, which includes Poland and Canada as members.

Big Three of West Confer.
The Big Three Western powers promptly held consultations in Geneva on the Indian complaint.

French Premier Faure first conferred with Eden on steps to be taken to avoid a clash between Communist North Viet Nam and free South Viet Nam. Then Faure talked with President Eisenhower.

Eden was giving India's message "careful consideration," British sources said.

The Associated Press said India had called on Britain and Russia to insure protection of the Indochina Armistice Commission, presumably by French military authorities in Saigon. It reported an official statement said India asked Eden and Molotov to "issue the necessary directions" to insure there is no repetition of yesterday's Saigon rioting.

Premier Ngo Dinh Diem today disavowed the persons responsible for the attack and said the Government "has taken energetic measures to prevent the renewal of these incidents." He made a nation-wide radio broadcast a few hours after the rioting. He said the Viet Nam government had failed to protect American lives and property.

U.S. Files Protest.
The United States has lodged a formal protest with Premier Ngo Dinh Diem that his government failed to provide adequate protection to American lives and property during the rioting.

United States Ambassador G. Frederick Reinhardt saw Diem last night and received verbal assurance that the Americans, residents of two hotels sacked by the rioters, would be reimbursed for their losses. Property losses of hotel guests were estimated at $200,000.

Mrs. Perle Mesta, former United States minister to Luxembourg, was among 57 Americans involved. She escaped injury and her property losses were limited to a portable typewriter.

Meanwhile Peking radio, monitored in Tokyo, charged that "the Geneva agreements are being gravely threatened and peace stands at a critical juncture in Indochina."

Under the truce terms, yesterday was the day talks were to have begun between Communist North Viet Nam and free South Viet Nam on the question of free elections to unify the whole country.

South Viet Nam Premier Diem balked at starting the talks on the ground that the Communists are not observing other provisions of the truce. He further contends he is not bound by the truce terms because South Viet Nam was not a signatory of the cease-fire agreement.

A British Foreign Office spokesman in London termed the Saigon rioting a "senseless outrage."

India's Foreign Office spokesman said there was no report of injuries to any Indian personnel on the three-nation Armistice Commission, but that raiders caused extensive damage to their property.

BELGIAN SENATE APPROVES PAROCHIAL SCHOOL FUND CUT

BRUSSELS, July 21 (UP)—The Belgian Senate ignored months of riots and opposition today and approved a bill trimming parochial school subsidies.

The action virtually assured enactment of the measure, which will cut an estimated $10,000,000 annually from Catholic school subsidies. The lower House passed the bill June 13. It now goes to the King.

Roman Catholic Senators stormed out of the chambers before the vote. The remaining members passed the bill, 91 to 0, after a 17-hour session.

HOUSE PASSES $1 MINIMUM WAGE MEASURE

Bill Goes to Conference Committee to Determine Effective Date —Vote Is 362 to 61.

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP)—The House ignored President Eisenhower's advice yesterday and voted 362 to 61 to pass the minimum wage in interstate commerce to $1 an hour.

The Senate had already voted for the $1 minimum (it had been 75 cents) and the only problem now is the effective date. The Senate voted for next Jan. 1, the House for March 1, the bill now goes to a Senate-House conference committee to work out a compromise.

Before final passage of the bill by the overwhelming vote, the House voted 188 to 145 to override the President's request that the new minimum be 90 cents an hour.

About 24,000,000 workers in interstate commerce with certain exceptions and exemptions, now come under the law's provisions. The approved increase would mean a pay hike for an estimated 2,100,000 of them.

Two Days of Debate. Yesterday's House action climaxed two days of debate in which supporters of the Administration's 90-cent limit predicted a new inflationary spiral would be touched off if a higher pay figure was enacted.

Representative Charles Halleck of Indiana, leader of the Republican forces, told the House the President would be "gravely concerned over the consequences to the economy of a figure greater than 90 cents." Republican spokesmen, however, gave no indication that the President would veto the higher level.

Democratic House Leader John W. McCormack of Massachusetts derided Republicans' appeals of "the same old argument we have been hearing for years."

The increase would be the third since the Fair Labor Standards Act became law in 1938. The pay floor started at 25 cents an hour, was boosted to 40 cents in 1944, and to the present level of 75 cents in 1949.

Rate Defeated. Representative Roy Wier (Dem.) of Minnesota, tried to get the House to go all the way to $1.10 an hour, but his amendment was submerged, 198 to 93.

Administration forces gained some support from Southern Democrats in their drive to hold the increase to 90 cents. But Democrats also were aided by a number of Republicans from industrial areas.

On the final rollcall, 192 Democrats and 170 Republicans voted for the bill. Against it were 23 Democrats and 25 Republicans.

Figures projected from a Labor Department survey indicate a $1 minimum would mean increases totaling $560,000,000 for the 2,100,000 workers. The effect would be greatest in the South.

The bills passed by both House and Senate omit any change in the classes of workers covered by the wage-hour law. Because of its controversial nature, this aspect was passed over for future consideration.

The vote by Missourians was: For—Democrats Bolling, Cannon, Carnahan, Christopher, Hull, Jones, Karsten, Moulder and Sullivan and Republican Curtis. Against—Short, Republican.

In downstate Illinois the vote was: For—Democrats Gray, Mack and Price and Republicans Arends, Simpson, Springer, Velde and Vursell. Against—Mason, Republican.

9500 St. Louis Workers Affected by New Wage Law.

The new $1 minimum wage law will affect approximately 9500 St. Louis area workers employed in industries in interstate commerce, a Post-Dispatch survey indicated today.

Shoe, garment and textile workers will benefit locally through the new wage rate, union leaders said. Of the 20,000 shoe workers in the area, it was estimated that 30 to 35 percent are presently receiving base pay rates of less than $1. Thus about 6800 shoe workers will receive the new minimum wage.

Union officers estimated that about 2500 garment workers and 200 textile plant employees here receive less than $1 an hour. Some are receiving the present 75 cents hourly minimum, while others are paid 85 and 90 cents.

FOUR ST. LOUISANS FAIL TO FILE P.O.W. PAY CLAIMS

Four St. Louisans are among some 800 former prisoners of war in Korea who have failed to file claims for time spent as P.O.W.s, Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr., said in Washington today. Representative Melvin Price of Illinois said some residents of Madison and St. Clair counties may be entitled to benefits.

St. Louisans who have failed to file and their last known addresses are: Lawrence E. Brunert, 5553 Mardel avenue; James Hargett, 2511 Hickey street; Delbert O. Hensen, 404 Court street; and Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Tyler, parents of the late Charles R. Tyler, 1378 Montclair avenue.

Former prisoners, or their survivors in the event of their death, are entitled to payment for each day of their imprisonment at the rate of $2.50 a day, under Public Law 615. Claims must be filed before Aug. 21 before the Foreign Claims Settlement Commission, Washington 25, D.C.

STENCH FROM CORN ROTTING IN STRIKE CAUSES COMPLAINTS

Stench of corn rotting in bins and vats at the strikebound Union Starch & Refining Co. in Granite City is drawing complaints from persons living near the plant, at Nineteenth street and the railroad tracks.

Members of Local 7663, CIO Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union, have been on strike since July 5 because of objection to reclassification of workers. The plant has about 400 employees.

Wayne Mosby, union president, said the members had agreed to return to work to clean up the bins and vats if the firm would make no changes in classification pending negotiations for a contract. This offer has not been accepted, he added.

The stench caused by the rotting corn has been brought to the attention of Mayor Leonard Davis of Granite City. The firm makes corn syrup, corn starch and corn sugar.

BRENTWOOD JUDGE URGES 'REASONABLE' SPEED LAWS

A plea for "reasonable" speed laws in St. Louis county, with more uniform enforcement, was made today by Police Judge Edward T. Wright, of Brentwood, in a letter to the St. Louis County League of Municipalities.

Wright, who said some speed limits on major county highways were too low, pointed out that highway speeds were being more accurately checked through use of automatic devices in the larger communities. The result is that speeding cases have tripled in Brentwood and some other municipalities, Wright stated.

The letter, addressed to Sterling P. Davidson Jr., president of the League of Municipalities, expressed the opinion that too low limits encourage violations and that careful drivers could be "unreasonably" penalized for violating 20-mile-an-hour speed limits on major roads. The letter requested the league to survey speed zones and recommend advisable changes.

INMATES KILL ATTENDANT AT OHIO MENTAL HOSPITAL

LIMA, O., July 21 (UP)—Five inmates of the Lima state hospital attempted to break out today and killed Glenn Farmer, an attendant in one of the institution's dining rooms. Hospital officers said the men failed in their escape attempt. He was killed in the dining room of the "strong ward," which houses "violent" women patients, when he discovered the attempted break. He was struck on the head by one of the five male inmates, who were on a work detail at the time. Inmates in the kitchen heard a commotion and notified Edward Goris, the head chef. He came out and saw what was going on and immediately notified hospital officials.

STIDHAM GETS LIFE FOR PRISON RIOT MURDER

Key to Handcuffs
Found in His Coat Lining at Jail After Trial.

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., July 21 (AP)—Convict James W. (Slick) Stidham was convicted late yesterday of murdering a convict informer during the Missouri prison riot at Jefferson City Sept. 22. His punishment was fixed at life imprisonment.

The 29-year-old prisoner was searched as he was returned to the Butler county jail and a key to the handcuffs used in bringing him here for the trial was discovered in the lining of his coat.

Sheriff Bill Brent of Butler county, who found the key, ordered an immediate search of the jail cell here on the chance Stidham might have hidden something else with a jailbreak in mind.

There was no explanation by authorities as to how the convicted killer might have obtained the key.

Fifth to Be Tried.

Stidham was the fifth of seven convicts tried for the murder of Walter Lee Donnell, the informer who was dragged screaming from his cell and beaten and stabbed to death by the rioting convicts.

He was the fourth to receive a life sentence. One of the convicts, Rollie Laster, has been sentenced to death.

The courtroom was crowded to capacity with about 500 persons, including many women and teenagers, when the jury reported its verdict.

"I got a bum rap," Stidham told a reporter. "I'm still innocent." Asked how he felt about escaping the death penalty, which the state had demanded, said, "Well, it wouldn't have made much difference."

Killed Because of Code.

Prosecuting Attorney James T. Riley of Cole county, pressing for the death penalty, told the all-male jury Donnell was killed because it was the code of the prisoners that "snitches should die."

"The code he lived by is the code he should die by," Riley said.

Stidham admitted in a confession signed five days after the riot that he and Laster stabbed Donnell while the victim was held by Paul Edward Kenton, another of those who received life terms in the case.

He repudiated the confession when he took the stand yesterday in his own defense. "I'm a thief, not a murderer," he told the jury.

"I did not kill Donnell. I wasn't around Donnell's cell, so I couldn't see who was there."

He claimed he signed the confession only after he was tortured but seven officers who witnessed the confession swore he was not mistreated in any way.

Stidham was serving a 25-year term for armed robbery at the time of the riot. He had given different ages for himself at various times, but his birth certificate produced at the trial showed he is 29 and was born in Birmingham, Ala.

644 COLOMBIANS KILLED IN FIGHTING, PRESIDENT SAYS

CALL, Colombia, July 21 (AP)—President Gustavo Rojas Pinilla says 644 Colombians were killed in one province alone during the last three months of his government's efforts to stamp out rebellious elements.

In a speech last night marking Colombia's independence day, Rojas Pinilla gave this breakdown of the dead: Liberals 87; Conservatives 492; armed forces 65. He added that 121 soldiers were wounded.

The President charged the insurgents are inspired by Communist elements and aided by dissident politicians and criminals.

PICKER TRYING TO GET BEACH BALL MISSING IN RIVER

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., July 21 (AP)—Marlin Brown of Buffalo, N.Y., noticed a little girl's beach ball being carried away in the upper Niagara river yesterday.

"Don't worry, honey, I'll get it," said the 21-year-old man as he jumped up from a picnic lunch with his wife and friends and dove into the water. He swam after the ball for nearly half a mile, then disappeared.

Firemen dragged the river but could not find the body.

DUSTER PILOT CRASHES TO DEATH, AVOIDS HOME

LEPANTO, Ark., July 21 (AP)—A cotton duster pilot saved eight persons from possible injury yesterday by swerving to avoid their house before crashing to his death.

Roy E. Craven of Lepanto was killed when the plane crashed 10 feet from the home of E. W. Adams.

Adams, sitting on the porch, said he sat "frozen" as the pilot "looked me in the eye" then swerved the plane. Seven members of the Adams family were inside the house.

JEHOVAH'S WITNESSES MEET, ASSAIL RELIGIOUS ENEMIES

NEW YORK, July 21 (AP)—Jehovah's witnesses opened their "triumphant kingdom" assembly yesterday with a jibe at conventional churches, and the presentation of a new scripture translation.

About 28,000 persons swarmed into Yankee Stadium for the start of the five-day meeting.

Nathan H. Knorr, president of the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society which governs the denomination, announced completion of a "new world translation" of Hebrew scriptures from Samuel to Esther. It is the second volume of the society's translations, and Knorr said that despite attacks by "religious enemies," the society will go on to publish the whole Bible, if time allows.

Knorr observed that among Jehovah's witnesses, "everybody is a preaching minister," and he added that in other churches, "the frightened clergy are now belatedly voicing the need for the laity to get out and do some preaching."

ADS OF 3 MORE INSURANCE FIRMS CONDEMNED BY FTC

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP)—The Federal Trade Commission today charged three more accident and health insurance policies in their advertising. The companies named are Inter-Ocean Insurance Co., Cincinnati; Washington National Insurance Co., Evanston, Ill.; and Craftsman Insurance Co., Boston.

The new complaints brought to 31 the number filed against insurance firms charging "unfair and deceptive acts and practices in interstate commerce."

The FTC's drive against misleading advertising began last October. Two companies have agreed to issuance of consent orders which bind them to drop the type of advertising that led to the complaints. The other cases still are in litigation.

DR. FRANK CROWTHER DIES, EX-NEW YORK CONGRESSMAN

PUEBLO, Colo., July 21 (AP)—Dr. Frank Crowther, former congressman, died yesterday after a month's illness. He was 85 years old.

Dr. Crowther moved here in 1943, a year after he retired as congressman from New York's Thirtieth district. He served from that district for 24 years, and did not seek re-election after his last term. He was a Republican.

Suspect in Killing, Victim

BURTON W. ABBOTT

STEPHANIE BRYAN

Pulitzer prize winner for exposing federal income tax rackets, followed a hunch that led to discovery of the girl's body.

Montgomery, feeling that a search by officers around Abbott's mountain cabin, had not been wide enough, persuaded Jackson to bring his dogs into a search. The reporter said he and Bryant had noticed an "odd odor" on a manzanita-covered ridge near the cabin Tuesday.

He and Bryant had to wait until Jackson got through work late yesterday before they could make the search with the dogs.

Empire State Sway 1 1/2 Inches.

NEW YORK, July 21 (AP)—Far from swaying anything like 18 feet in a storm as some people think, the tower of the Empire State building may move out of line less than 1 1/2 inches, says Frank Powell, who manages it. To get that inch and a half movement requires a steady wind velocity of 90 miles an hour, he adds.

UNION ELECTRIC POWER CO. PROPERTY TRANSFER ALLOWED

BODY OF GIRL FOUND IN WILDS OF CALIFORNIA

Tentatively Identified as Child Missing Since April 28—Suspect Arrested.

WEAVERVILLE, Calif., July 21 (AP)—Bloodhounds led two ranchers and a newspaper reporter-photographer team to the grave of a young girl in the wilds of northern California last night.

Trinity County Sheriff Harold Wilson, called to the scene, tentatively identified the body as that of 14-year-old Stephanie Bryan, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Bryan of Berkeley, Calif. She has been missing since April 28. How she died has not been determined.

Burton Abbott, 29 years old, a University of California graduate student who is under treatment for tuberculosis, was arrested for questioning.

Abbott's family owns a mountain cabin near where the body was found. He used the cabin on weekends. He says he was there on a fishing trip the day the school girl disappeared.

Late last night, when informed of the discovery of the body, Abbott exclaimed: "It just can't be. I just can't understand how it got there. I don't know anything about it. I'm still staying with my story."

In the basement of Abbott's rented home in Alameda last week his wife found a red leather purse which was identified as belonging to Stephanie Bryan. Police subsequently unearthed personal effects of the girl in the unopened cellar. Abbott insisted he had no idea how they got there.

The body was found on a steep hillside about 600 feet from the cabin by reporter Ed Montgomery and photographer Bob Bryant of the San Francisco Examiner, Harold Jackson, a rancher and former deputy sheriff, and M. F. Coleman, another rancher. The girl, daughter of a Berkeley radiologist, disappeared without trace. A few days later her French text book was found in a road, but the clue led nowhere. Then last week her purse, other textbooks, notebooks, a pair of eyeglasses and a brassiere were found in Abbott's basement.

CIO DENOUNCES AFL TEAMSTERS FOR RAID TACTICS

Asserts 'Piracy' Action Threatens Merger — Name for Federation Picked.

WASHINGTON, July 21 (UP)—The CIO today publicly denounced the AFL Teamsters' Union for what it called "ruthless and unprincipled raiding tactics." It said the AFL-CIO merger is being "seriously jeopardized" by such tactics.

The attack on the big AFL union was contained in a resolution unanimously adopted by the CIO executive board and made public by CIO President Walter P. Reuther.

It was couched in barbed language variously accusing the Teamsters' Union of "unbridled piracy," "unwarranted attacks and unprincipled raids" and "destructive tactics."

The resolution specifically charged Dave Beck's Teamsters' Union with having "perpetrated a typical, old-fashioned raid on" the 1000-member CIO Local 343 at St. Paul on June 5.

Conspiracy Charged. It said that "in pursuance of a carefully laid conspiracy, a horde of teamster officials descended upon a meeting of the local union. . . . This raid was undoubtedly ordered from the top level administration of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters because local union representatives were drawn from distant points including St. Louis, Chicago, Wisconsin, California and New York. . . ."

Beck has refused to sign the AFL-CIO no-raid pact on the ground there are many workers in other unions who should be in the "red" union and he wants to bring them into his union.

Beck at one point stipulated that he could not go along with the AFL-CIO merger agreement if the no-raid pact became compulsory for all unions in the two organizations. The merger agreement does not require any union to sign the no-raid pact, but the great majority of AFL and CIO unions have signed it.

Name Selected. By the Associated Press. AFL and CIO leaders resolved a controversy last night over choosing a name for their proposed new labor federation. They agreed to call it "The American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations."

Reuther and AFL president George Meany said the agreement on a title was the last major problem in the way toward merging the two labor organizations.

They said only minor procedural details remained to be worked out before the merger finally is to be consummated at a series of conventions in New York City in early December.

The AFL, with 10,000,000 members, had wanted to keep the AFL designation for the federation. The CIO, with 5,000,000 members, insisted on a new name since it contended the merged group was to be a brand new organization.

The agreement was reached at a closed meeting. When reporters pointed out that the new name of "American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations" would pose a problem for newspaper headline writers, Meany laughed that newspaper names also are often complicated.

ILLINOIS U. STAFF MUST SIGN OATH FOR JULY CHECKS

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., July 21 (UP)—The new Broyles law loyalty oath must be signed by University of Illinois faculty and staff members before they can receive their July paychecks, University Comptroller H. O. Farber said Tuesday.

The Broyles bill signed into law by Gov. Stratton requires the oath of all state employees and public school teachers before they can be paid.

"This means that before paychecks for the month of July and thereafter can be distributed university employees must complete and return to the business office the new affidavit required by the law," Farber said.

He said facilities were being set up in the Illinois Union Building for the signing of the affidavits, which will be available by Saturday.

The University Senate had gone on record against the Broyles legislation, but there were no indications any staff member would refuse to sign the oath.

ST. LOUIS AREA SEWER PLANS SUBJECT TO SENATE APPROVAL

Special to the Post-Dispatch. JEFFERSON CITY, July 21—Plans of the Metropolitan St. Louis Sewer District for sewer improvements and extensions are subject to approval of the State Division of Health under state laws, the Attorney General's department held today.

Dr. James R. Amos, director of the State Division of Health, had asked for an opinion whether his department was relieved of the responsibility of requiring submission to it of the district's plans and specifications for proposed sewer improvements, for department examination and approval.

Assistant Attorney General Hugh P. Williamson wrote the opinion, which was approved by Attorney General John M. Dalton.

COUNCIL DEFEATS BOONE HIGHWAY PROPOSAL AGAIN

Votes 4 to 2 Against Sharing Right-of-Way Costs With State —
New Effort Planned.

A proposed agreement under which St. Louis county and the State Highway Department would share equally the cost of acquiring right-of-way for the Daniel Boone Expressway through Richmond Heights again was defeated yesterday by the County Council by a vote of 4 to 2.

The agreement, under which the Highway Department would advance the county's share of the cost subject to repayment, was first defeated by the council last July 6, principally because of bitter opposition expressed by some Richmond Heights residents to the proposed route.

Councilman L. Gordon Davis, who offered the motion to authorize the contract, said that failure to sign the agreement had worked a hardship on about 200 families who live on the right-of-way, as a result of the uncertainty over the future status of their property.

"The dawdling delay of the County Council is inexcusable," he said.

Again, he and Councilman James A. Singer were the only members recorded in favor of the motion. Councilman Maurice Abramson was absent when the vote came. Davis said he would continue to press for the agreement at a later meeting.

Election Date Proposed.
A bill to set Oct. 4 as the date of a special election on a bond issue of $8,500,000 to provide the county's share of right-of-way costs for four expressways and another issue of $800,000 for children's buildings was introduced by Davis and Singer.

The bill is similar to a measure that was dropped after last week's meeting when it failed of perfection within 10 weeks after its introduction. An amendment to that bill fixing Oct. 4 as the election was defeated last week. No action was taken on the new measure.

By a vote of 4 to 2, with Councilman Thomas C. Dunne abstaining, the Council approved the issuance of a special permit to Harold C. Macoy Jr., president of the St. Louis Sanitary Landfill Co., to operate a landfill in a quarry at Hildesheim avenue and Weber road in Affton.

Pending since May 7, 1954, the application had been strongly opposed by nearby residents of the area who contended it would become a nuisance. It failed of passage last May 4 on a tie vote, 3 to 3.

Called an Outrage.
Councilman Harold D. Carey, in whose district the quarry is located, was joined yesterday by Councilman Frank L. Martini in voting against the permit, which is hedged about with a number of restrictions prescribed by the County Health Department.

Carey called the passage an outrage. "This landfill isn't needed, the people don't want it and our own county departments have recommended against it," he said. The quarry is adjacent to the Bayless Elementary School and is owned by the Bayless District, the directors of which supported the application.

Martini was unanimously elected chairman of the council to fill the unexpired term of Singer, whose resignation last week was accepted "with regret" by the council. Martini, who was chairman last year, will serve until Dec. 31.

Action on Appointment.
The proposed appointment of County Purchasing Agent Harry S. Konetzky as head of a newly-organized county purchasing department was referred back to County Supervisor Luman F. Matthews for reconsideration. Singer pointed out the appointment was made before the bill establishing the new department had become effective and was, therefore, out of order. The motion referring the ap-

JUDGE DOWD ASSAILS CRITICISM OF POLICE

Answers Connor's Blast at Stress on Traffic Violations.

Exception to a statement by James W. Connor that the police department is putting too much emphasis on traffic law enforcement to the detriment of prevention of more serious crimes was taken yesterday by Police Judge Robert G. Dowd. Judge Dowd praised the current police drive against traffic offenders.

Connor, operating director of the St. Louis Crime Commission, declared Tuesday that St. Louisans were entitled to more protection from violent crimes and said the public was growing tired of reading about the traffic drives. He cited particularly the murder of Mrs. Rita E. Holzer, 311 North Whittier street, who was stabbed to death in her apartment Monday.

"We have an excellent police department, especially the traffic division," Judge Dowd said. "I cannot understand how anyone could belittle the traffic division of the police department. I am proud of the record they have made. Because of the work of the traffic division many law violators have been brought before the court."

Connor announced yesterday he was offering a $100 reward to anyone giving material information leading to arrest and conviction of the person who murdered Mrs. Holzer and a $50 reward for similar information about the person who beat and cut Mrs. Sandra Coyte, 706 Upper Cahokia road, south of East St. Louis, early Monday.

Similar rewards were offered earlier by Ansel A. Skaggs, former chairman of the Republican City Committee.

A coroner's verdict of homicide at the hands of an unknown person was returned yesterday in the death of Mrs. Holzer. Neighbors quoted her as saying, before she lost consciousness, that she was surprised by a Negro prowler in her apartment when she got up to feed her 6-month-old son.

pointment back also directed Matthews to confer with the St. Louis and St. Louis County Association of Purchasing Agents in order to select the person best qualified for the job and report back to the Council Aug. 17.

Matthews was authorized by the Council to execute contracts with Webster Groves, Maplewood, Olivette and Manchester whereby the County Health Department would provide general public health service to those cities. The cities would pay the cost of such service. At present, Jennings is the only community holding such a contract with the county.

U.S. WEIGHS HALT IN AID UNTIL TITO OK'S INSPECTIONS

State Department and Pentagon Seriously Concerned Over Continued Refusal.

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP)—The United States was reported today to be considering a halt in aid to Yugoslavia until Marshal Josip (Tito) Broz's government permits full inspection of the use of American weapons.

Top State Department and Pentagon officials are reported seriously concerned over the Yugoslav government's continued refusal to permit routine checks by American military inspectors in Yugoslavia.

Yugoslavia further upset officials, it was learned, by indicating it will produce Russian MIG fighters in Yugoslav factories unless the Western nations allow some of their models to be built in Yugoslavia.

These developments combined to cause serious discussion of whether the American economic and military aid program to Yugoslavia should continue.

The Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday recommended aid be suspended until the Yugoslavs permit "continuous observation and review" of military assistance as required by the 1951 aid agreement signed by Yugoslavia.

Yugoslavia is reported to believe it is providing enough inspection opportunities, but the American military aid mission headed by Brig. Gen. Peter C. Hains is represented as believing the Yugoslavs could co-operate far more than they have done.

Top American officials are hoping Yugoslavia will avoid a shutdown of military and economic assistance. These officials are known to believe Congress would be upset if help continued to go forward under present circumstances.

American officials in Yugoslavia are reported to have told Tito's aides the United States would take a very dim view of any Yugoslav effort to manufacture Russian MIG fighters.

Yugoslavia is reported dicker- ing with aviation companies in western countries to determine whether it can produce their fighters on license, presumably eliminating the need for turning out MIGs to bolster the Yugoslav air force.

The Administration is seeking $40,500,000 for economic and defense aid for Yugoslavia in the current fiscal year. Yugoslavia also receives military aid shipments, the amounts of which are secret.

NEW NO. 2 DEFENSE DEPT. MAN TO SELL HIS STOCKS

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP)—The Senate Armed Services Committee today approved the nomination of Reuben B. Robertson Jr., of Hamilton, O., to be Deputy Secretary of Defense.

The committee decided to ask Robertson to sell minor stockholdings in two companies, B. F. Goodrich and Procter & Gamble, which do business with the Government.

Robertson, a Republican, said he was prepared to sell his holdings in the two companies.

Chairman Russell (Dem.), Georgia, said the decision to ask Robertson to sell his stock in Goodrich (75 shares) and stock in Procter and Gamble (340 shares) was in line with committee policy.

CLAYTON HOME RULE CHARTER IS URGED

Citizens Committee Points to City's Rapid Growth, Need for Freedom.

A home rule charter for Clayton was recommended in a report adopted last night by a Citizens Advisory Committee, which called on the Mayor and board of aldermen to set an election for next April 3 to establish a charter-drafting commission.

The commission, consisting of 13 members, then would have a year in which to draft a charter to be submitted to voters the following April. The committee, headed by Gupion Voigt, unanimously adopted a report by the subcommittee on government, of which Peter Hochschild is chairman.

It called attention to Clayton's rapid growth and said the city should be free to adopt the form of government best suited to one of its size, and free of "interference" by the State Legislature in local affairs.

Clayton's population now is estimated at 18,000, but it still is designated a fourth-class city—the class for those with populations up to 3,000.

The committee recommended that the charter allow for appointment of a police chief, police judge and collector by the Mayor, and for a full-time administrative assistant to the Mayor to handle office detail. Also, it suggested redistricting of the five electoral areas so that each would have about the same number of voters.

It said the aldermen, under the present system, are "bogged down by an ever-increasing onslaught of technical and administrative demands of small significance."

No Leaves for Home.
TOKYO, July 21 (UP)—North Viet Nam Premier Ho Chi Minh left Communist China for home today, the Peiping radio reported. He had been to Moscow. The Red Chinese broadcast said Chairman Mao Tse-tung and other leaders of the Communist Peiping government saw him off at the Peiping airport.

TENANTS UPHELD IN ROW OVER U.S. SUBVERSIVE LIST

Appeals Court Rules
Renters Need Not Sign Certification of Non-Membership.

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP)—Tenants cannot be evicted from Government housing projects for refusing to sign a "certification and non-membership in subversive organizations," the United States court of appeals ruled today.

The court's unanimous decision blocked government efforts to oust John and Doris Rudder from their apartment in Lincoln Heights dwellings, a low-cost housing development in Washington. It was built under the United States Housing Act.

The National Capital Housing Authority, which manages the housing development, asked the Rudders and other tenants in 1953 to sign a certificate that they do not belong to any organization on the attorney general's list. The Rudders refused to sign.

The appellate court avoided a ruling on the constitutionality of the Gwyn amendment to the Housing Act. This provides that Government housing units shall not be occupied by a person who is a member of an organization designated as subversive by the Attorney General. The list names nearly 200 organizations.

The appellate court's opinion, written by Chief Judge Henry C. Edgerton, noted that the District of Columbia code provides that a tenancy on a month-to-month basis may be terminated by the landlord on 30 days' notice, with no reason required. But, Judge Edgerton said, it is a different matter when the Government is the landlord.

"It (the Government) must not act arbitrarily, for, unlike private landlords it is subject to the requirements of due process of law," the opinion said. "Arbitrary action is not due process."

In its opinion the United States acted arbitrarily in undertaking to evict the Rudders. Their refusal to deny they were members of any organization on the (Attorney General's) consolidated list was not proof that they were members.

"Even proof that they were members, e.g., a totalitarian organization knowing nothing of its character, would be an arbitrary ground for an administrative decision to evict them from public housing."

Edgerton said the Attorney General gave the organizations and their members no hearing before he designated them subversive and the housing authority gave the Rudders no hearing before it undertook to evict them.

Edgerton said the case does not raise the question whether it would be arbitrary to evict persons proved to be "subversive." He said, too, that it does not present the question whether it would be arbitrary to evict the Rudders if it were proved that they were members of an organization they knew to be subversive.

The Government contended the Gwyn amendment required it to evict the Rudders.

The court of appeals accepted the case after the municipal court of appeals affirmed a judgment for the government.

BRITAIN TO USE OIL, ATOM TO EASE FUEL SITUATION

LONDON, July 21 (AP)—The government announced yesterday a plan to rescue Britain from a chronic fuel shortage by using oil and atomic power to ease the pressure on the ailing, state-owned coal industry.

Fuel Minister Geoffrey Lloyd described the long-term policy in the House of Commons. He spoke against a Labor motion to censure the Conservative government's fuel policies. The motion later was defeated 317 to 253.

Lloyd predicted the atomic energy program would make a substantial contribution to the country's power problems by 1960. The London area will get one of the first two British atomic power stations, he said. The other will serve Birmingham and Bristol.

British industry, working at near capacity, is consuming more coal than ever. The nation faces a tight fuel situation in the coming winter. Earlier this month coal prices were boosted 18 per cent.

JEANNETTE M'DONALD CLEARED IN APARTMENT REPAIR CASE

NEW YORK, July 21 (AP)—Singer Jeannette MacDonald was cleared yesterday of charges she failed to keep a Manhattan apartment house she owns in proper repair. Building inspectors said it had been fixed up.

At the same time, Chief Magistrate John M. Murtagh vacated a warrant for Miss MacDonald's arrest issued last May 25 when she failed to appear in court in the case.

She was in California and her attorney told the court she had not been served with a summons.

Army Planes Collide, 4 Dead. LORSCH, Germany, July 21 (AP)—Two United States Army light planes collided in the air here last night, killing a pilot and three passengers, the Army announced today. One of them plunged to the ground. The other managed to land safe at an airfield half a mile away. The names of the dead were withheld.

BRITISH SEAMAN SUDDENLY TAKES POKE AT ADMIRAL

PLYMOUTH, England, July 21 (AP)—A Royal Navy seaman was held today for taking a poke at an admiral.

The incident occurred yesterday aboard the navy maintenance ship Berry Head as 52-year-old V. Adm. John Eaton was inspecting the crew at fire drill. The admiral staggered back from the unexpected blow and his hat sailed over the side into the sea.

A navy statement said: "A rating assaulted the admiral and has been detained pending medical examination and investigation."

The seaman's name was not disclosed. The navy indicated there was no apparent motive for the attack.

WASHINGTON U. OFFICIAL'S WIFE, SONS INJURED BY AUTO

The wife and two teen-age sons of Frederick G. St. Clair, Washington University supervising engineer, were injured seriously and a truck driver was killed last night when they were all struck by an automobile on the Pennsylvania turnpike near Bedford, Pa.

Mrs. St. Clair suffered a possible spine injury. Her son, Cyrus, 18 years old, suffered a broken leg and another son, Stephen, 13, was treated for abrasions. The dead man was identified as Clarence W. Haislip of Weems, Va. St. Clair left here by plane early today to join his family.

Pennsylvania state police said Haislip was crossing the highway to help the St. Clairs, whose automobile had broken down. The three St. Clairs crossed to greet him when the automobile, driven by Mrs. Estella Butler of Wheatland, Pa., struck the four persons. Police said the machine apparently went out of control because of a blowout. The St. Clairs live at 6930 Mill-

IMPOSSIBILITY OF WAR EMERGES AS FACT IN TALKS

Both Sides Seem to Be Adjusting to Idea as Result of H-Bomb Saturation.

(Randolph S. Churchill, son of the former British Prime Minister, is among the reporters attending the Big Four conference at Geneva. The following dispatch was written for the United Press.)

By RANDOLPH S. CHURCHILL
(Copyright 1955.)

GENEVA, July 21.—The pattern of this curious conference is now becoming apparent and reality is beginning to emerge. The supreme and heartening fact is that all those on the summit are gradually but inescapably adjusting their minds to the increasingly irreconcilable fact that war has now become impossible.

One would not reach this conclusion by listening to the dreary fourfold recitals where 1300 correspondents are briefed about the increasingly irreconcilable speeches made by the Big Four in their formal sessions. The new shape of things to come is only making itself clear in the private and informal talks which have been the purpose of the workmanlike and skilfully contrived series of dinner parties that have marked the opening stages of the conference.

Easy Atmosphere at Party.

None of these has served so valuable a purpose as that given Tuesday night by Sir Anthony Eden to three leader members of the Russian delegation, Nikita Khrushchev, Marshal Bulganin and V. M. Molotov. An easy atmosphere prevailed from the start, and Lady Eden and Lady Dorothy MacMillan helped to receive the guests and had drinks with them before withdrawing when the men went in to dinner. Whereas the previous dinners had merely served the purpose of putting the Russian leaders on friendly terms with their opposite numbers of the West, the Eden dinner was deliberately planned to be a serious occasion when business should be discussed. Indeed, Tuesday morning Sir Anthony sent word to the Russian delegation that this was his intention.

The great emergent fact is that East and West now acknowledge that as a result of both sides having achieved a saturation point with the stockpiling of hydrogen bombs, war has now become impossible. When the idea of a parley at the summit was first mooted three and four years ago, the statesmen of the world, no less than its peoples, were afraid lest some misunderstanding of the nature of H-bomb warfare and erroneous views of competitive stockpiles might lead by accident to war.

Aim of Summit Talks.

The object, which the British Prime Minister at that time, Sir Winston Churchill, the grandfather of the summit, had in mind was to convince the Russian leaders of the dangers they were running by their aggressive policies, and to seek a method of relaxing tension so that time could be given for some method of international control to be worked out. But in the first two days of this conference, it is already clear that the fear of war has passed and that the tensions of the last 10 years have already been greatly eased. Indeed, though this was not plain beforehand, the very fact that it was possible to hold this conference was due entirely to the diminishing of fear and the lessening of tension. The mere holding of the conference, whatever may be decided or left undecided here, was in itself evidence of the new feeling.

I can state authoritatively that this truth is already crystal clear, in all its majestic simplicity, to the most thoughtful minds of those at the summit and that it is a good deal more than half grasped by the Soviet delegation. It was quite clear at Sir Anthony's dinner last night that the Soviet leaders accept the solemn declarations given them by President Eisenhower, both in public and private, that the West will never start a war against Russia.

An Ironical Fact.

It is a strange and ironical fact that the banishing of the fear of war, a goal to the intellect and good will of the human race have been unable to achieve in the whole of its history, is now going to be made manifest by the devilish and annihilating power of a perverted science. The unconscious reflection of this paradox is the almost unnoticed fact that the bomb does not even figure on the conference agenda.

Well may some exclaim: "God moves in a mysterious way his wonders to perform." And well did Sir Winston Kirkpatrick say to Molotov at the end of dinner Tuesday night, "Isn't it strange that for the nearly 2000 years of the Christian era, scores of millions of people, in succeeding generations, have believed that God would one day destroy the world, and that now we find we can do it ourselves tomorrow?"

Molotov seemed much struck by this and asked to have the phrase repeated. None of the foregoing means, of course, that the golden age is about to dawn over the Lake of Geneva the day after tomorrow. Far from it. And strangely enough many of the difficulties which now agitate the nation may become more insoluble than ever.

In the pre-summit era, many intractable problems were resolved by a gracefully veiled threat of force. As it is progressively realized that the days of force are at an end, the nations will have no means, save those of economic sanctions, and possibly reason, to persuade their neighbors to be of their own opinion.

ADAMS REFUSES TO TESTIFY IN DIXON-YATES CASE

ing omissions of names and the times of meetings in accounts of the negotiations.

There has been more amnesia in Washington on Dixon-Yates than there has been in the entire history of the medical profession.

Armstrong was summoned by the Kefauver subcommittee this afternoon for a follow-up to his refusal to say whether he had talked to Adams about his testimony, but his testimony was put off until Tuesday and AEC officials were called instead.

DIXON-YATES PACT UNDER AX JUNE 11

By RICHARD DUDMAN

A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—The Eisenhower Administration was thinking of junking the controversial Dixon-Yates project 12 days before the city of Memphis, Tenn., decided to build its own power plant.

Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams told Chairman J. Sinclair Armstrong by telephone June 11 that the Administration was considering canceling the contract. Armstrong testified yesterday. That was the same telephone call in which Adams also made a request that led to a mysterious delay in a pending SEC hearing on Dixon-Yates financing plans, according to Armstrong's earlier testimony.

The Memphis decision to build its own plant was made June 23, "Senator" J. Lee Kefauver (Dem., Tennessee), is directing a special anti-monopoly subcommittee inquiry into the White House intervention in the SEC case.

President Eisenhower, in ordering the Dixon-Yates contract canceled last week, gave the Memphis decision to build its own plant as his sole reason.

The Dixon-Yates plant at West Memphis, Ark., had been intended to feed power across the Mississippi river to Memphis, via the Tennessee Valley Authority system, to supply growing needs in the Memphis area.

Opponents have suggested that the Administration seized upon the Memphis action to get rid of a persistently troublesome political controversy.

Armstrong was prepared to tell fully about the telephone call from Adams. Earlier, the SEC chairman had refused to tell what was said except that two "Justice Department attorneys" wanted time to consider whether they wanted to object to scheduled testimony by Adolph Wenzel, then a vice president of the First Boston Corp.

Reports Adams' Explanation.

Adams then said, "We're considering whether we may not need a plant at West Memphis at all, and the whole matter may be academic soon." Armstrong related.

"That consideration didn't appeal to me," Armstrong continued. "I told Mr. Adams we couldn't postpone a hearing on any such hypothetical basis, because any time lost could never be regained and the parties to the proceeding were entitled to a prompt hearing."

"He said, 'that's right.'"

Armstrong disclosed that Adams also, in the same call, mentioned an impending House of Representatives debate over a bill appropriating $6,500,000 for a transmission line needed to carry Dixon-Yates power to Memphis.

"He told me, 'I've got another problem to worry about this week—this TVA appropriation coming up in the House of Representatives,'" Armstrong testified.

"I said, 'That isn't any concern of mine,' and he said, 'That's right.'"

Asked by Kefauver whether Adams had suggested keeping the telephone conversation quiet, Armstrong replied: "No. He asked me to convey his request to the commission."

Armstrong said he told the other SEC commissioners of the request the following Monday, June 13, but did not tell them about Adams' reference to possible junking of the project or to the pending House debate. The commission ordered the abrupt postponement of that hearing, explaining only that "procedural problems" had arisen.

After the SEC had voted to postpone the hearing June 13, Armstrong reported back to Adams, the SEC chairman testified.

"On Monday, I reported back," he said. "I called him up and said the commission had just made the postponement. He said, 'Thank you,' and hung up."

Armstrong recalled that he telephoned Adams Wednesday, June 15, since he had expected no more than a 24-hour or a 48-hour delay, and asked whether the attorneys had decided to enter the case. Adams said they had decided not to, and the commission ordered immediate resumption of the hearing. Armstrong related. The hearing recommenced June 16, the day debate on the House bill ended and the appropriation was approved.

Kefauver's Objection.

Kefauver and others have pointed out that the delay kept the House from learning details of Wenzel's acknowledged dual role in early Dixon-Yates negotiations. His SEC appearance was the first occasion on which he told publicly about his employment as a part-time consultant to the Budget Bureau on the Dixon-Yates matter at the same time he was a First Boston vice president. First Boston later arranged $120,000,000 in loans for the project as agent for Dixon-Yates, eventually deciding to accept no fee for the job.

Kefauver has charged that Wenzel "served two masters" in a fashion bordering on "violation of the criminal code."

Armstrong said he did not consider the call from the White House unusual, although he had never had one before since becoming chairman last May 25. He conceded that the usual procedure would be for the attorneys themselves to telephone the commission to ask for a postponement.

Asked why he did not make public the reasons for the postponement, Armstrong said: "I didn't consider it was proper or appropriate to do so. It seemed to me that the basis of request was something that should not be made public."

Witness's Memory Hazy.

Kefauver then wanted to know whether it was Armstrong's or Adams' idea of Armstrong not to tell his fellow commissioners about the rest of Adams' telephone conversation.

"Gosh, I don't know," Armstrong replied. "I don't remember."

He said he understood that Adams' request was solely on the ground that the two attorneys were out of town.

Armstrong said he thought it "entirely proper" for an assistant to the President to call the head of an administrative agency.

The witness refused to answer

when Kefauver asked whether Adams had telephoned Armstrong since Armstrong was called to testify before Kefauver's special anti-monopoly subcommittee. Armstrong claimed privilege under the same presidential directive he earlier had used as a basis for refusing to tell about Adams' mention in the June 11 call of possible cancellation of the contract and the impending House debate.

In further testimony, Armstrong disclosed that he and Ralph Demmler, former SEC chairman, had coached the Atomic Energy Commission on how the special Dixon-Yates corporation should be set up to avoid violation of the Public Utilities Holding Company Act.

"It was something of a legal lecture on the holding company act," Armstrong said.

He related that he and Demmler and an SEC staff member went to the office of Joseph Campbell, then an AEC commissioner and now comptroller general, for the meeting. Armstrong fixed the date as Aug. 3, 1954, some three weeks after Mr. Eisenhower had directed the AEC to negotiate the contract with Dixon-Yates. Armstrong said such meetings with Government agencies or private corporations, were entirely usual and proper, part of the SEC policy of enforcing the law by discussion rather than litigation, if possible.

He said Demmler had told of a meeting with Chairman Lewis L. Strauss in early September 1955, and a conference in late November, after the contract had been signed. Armstrong said he thought the last meeting included representatives of the AEC, Budget Bureau and White House, and concerned the necessity of speeding AEC action on Dixon-Yates financing.

Edgar H. Dixon, president of the Dixon-Yates corporation, called on him last May 13, Armstrong went on, with a request for "procedural dispatch" in deciding the debt-financing case.

Armstrong said he told Dixon that "all SEC proceedings are conducted with dispatch and this one will be."

The SEC chairman said he would have held a similar private conference, if one had been requested, with Joseph Volpe Jr., Washington attorney who has been representing the state of Tennessee in fighting the Dixon-Yates project.

$210,700 RISE IN STATE REALTY TAX IN COUNTY

This means that $90,300 of the additional payments by county property owners will go into the blind pension fund, $90,300 will go for general state purposes and $30,100 will be placed in the interest fund.

County Counselor Herbert C. Funke was directed by the County Council yesterday to "take such legal steps as may be possible in your opinion to contest in court the right of the State Tax Commission to impose this order."

Despite the wording of the directive, Council Chairman Frank L. Martini told the Post-Dispatch it did not authorize Funke to file any court action. He explained that the county did not want to take any action that would delay the collection of taxes, adding that a further vote of the Council would be needed to institute court proceedings.

Funke also was asked for an opinion on whether the Council could prevent other county agencies from carrying out the state order. The request was made by Councilman James H. J. McNary, who wanted to know whether the County Board of Equalization "supersedes the County Council or do we have jurisdiction over this order?"

Funke said that up to the present time, he knew of no action that could prevent the board from issuing the order raising assessments.

A bill to establish a uniform assessment system for the county was introduced by Councilman James A. Singer. The bill would set up a lengthy list of procedures to be followed in attaining the uniform system.

These procedures are based on those prescribed by modern assessment manuals used in some other states. The County Assessor would be head of the department and would be required to follow the procedures in fixing the valuation of all property in the county.

MAN STABBED TO DEATH

AT BAR, ASSAILANT HELD

Noble Abage, a laborer, was stabbed to death yesterday in a fight in the Working Man's Bar at 802 North Jefferson avenue. Police arrested a man who identified himself as James C. Davis, living in the 2300 block of Cole street. They quoted Davis as saying he killed Abage after Abage had threatened several times to give him a beating. Both men are Negroes. Abage lived at a hotel above the bar.

MAN CONVICTED ON CHARGE OF DRUNKEN DRIVING FREED

Thomas A. Christoffel, 3330 Bendick avenue, who was convicted of driving when intoxicated and fined $100 in police court last July 7, was discharged today by Provisional Judge Dewey S. Godfrey of the Court of Criminal Correction.

Judge Godfrey dismissed the charge after the complaining witness, Helen L. Bartick, 3307 Humphrey street, testified she did not think Christoffel was drunk last April 4 when his automobile collided with her machine in the 3200 block of Utah street.

Police officers who arrested Christoffel were not present in court for the hearing on the appeal and there was no evidence that the defendant was drunk.

Add NuSoft to the rinse water every time you do lingerie . . . it will fit better, feel better, and you know it won't cling!

Housewife Thrilled!

Mrs. Mary M. Stigwell, 26847 Russell Road, Bay Village, Ohio, says: "The first time I used NuSoft, I could see and feel the difference! Everything is softer, smoother! Even the children's jeans, which usually dry stiff as boards, come out completely pliable! And I find my husband's shirts much easier to iron because they dry smoother, with far fewer wrinkles."

After NuSoft, the difference is amazing! See and feel it for yourself. Compare the towels in your linen closet with those you rinse in NuSoft. Economical! One CAPful is enough for a wash load!

Thrifty NuSoft gives you a full-ounce measuring cap—that measures out the exact amount to add to the last rinse of an average wash load. (No waste, no guesswork.) And NuSoft is concentrated! One pint does as much as 2 quarts of similar, less concentrated products! (16 average wash loads! At only 3¢ a load!) Get NuSoft now—just 49¢ a pint!

Most flatwork needs no ironing!

ENGINEERS ACCEPT UNION ELECTRIC PACT

11-Cent Pay Boost in One-Year Contract—Average Now $2.32.

Acceptance of a new one-year contract with Union Electric Co., providing for a 5 per cent wage increase averaging 11 cents an hour, was voted yesterday at membership meetings of the AFL Operating Engineers Union.

The contract, retroactive to July 1, brings the average scale to $2.32 an hour for a 40-hour week. Increases range from 9 to 16½ cents in various work classifications. Details of additional fringe benefits are to be perfected.

The engineers, represented by Local 148, are 1225 power plant workers at seven Union Electric plants supplying electric power to the St. Louis area. They had previously rejected a company offer of a 4 per cent increase and set a strike deadline for last Sunday unless what they deemed to be a "reasonable" offer was made in the meantime.

Voting on the company offer took place yesterday at meetings at Carpenters Hall, 1411 North Grand boulevard, and the Catholic Community House, 422 St. Louis avenue, East St. Louis. Similar votes were taken among union members at Bagnell Dam and Keokuk, Ia.

TV Traps Escaped Patient. RALEIGH, N.C., July 21 (UP)—Officials of the Dix Hill state mental hospital captured an escaped patient by television. They were watching a program when the escapee wandered into camera range. They dashed to the spot and apprehended him.

FTC SAYS PILLOW MAKERS MISREPRESENT MATERIALS

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP)—The Federal Trade Commission took action yesterday to compel nine manufacturers of feather pillows to "cease and desist" from misrepresenting the type of filling material used in their products. In a test case, that of the Premier Pillow Corp., Brooklyn, the commission reversed an earlier dismissal of a complaint and ordered further hearings.

Taken together, the unfair trade practices rulings affect "practically all" of the feather pillow industry, an FTC statement said.

The companies were charged with using labels and invoices which inaccurately described the products. In one case, filling material labeled 50 per cent goose down and 50 per cent white goose feathers was found to consist of an average of less than 20 per cent down. The nine companies are: National Feather and Down Co., Brooklyn, N.Y.; Burton-Dixie Corp., Chicago; the L. Buchman Co., Inc., Brooklyn; N. Sumerger and Sons, New York City; Northern Feather Works, Inc., Newark, N.J.; the Salisbury Co., Minneapolis, Minn.; Globe Feather and Down Co., Columbia Bedding Co., Chicago, and Sanitary Feather and Down Co., Brooklyn.

MEXICAN AIRLINER CRASH ATTRIBUTED TO ENGINE FIRE

MEXICO CITY, July 21 (UP)—The communications ministry said today an engine fire apparently caused last Thursday's airliner crash in which 22 persons were killed.

The ministry said examination of the wreckage of the twin-engine Mexican plane showed the left engine was in flames before the crash and apparently set off an explosion of gasoline tanks.

Two Americans, Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Weinbaum of New York City, were among the victims.

FRIEDA HENNOCK URGES U.S. TO BREAK UP TV MONOPOLY

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP)—Frieda Hennock, former member of the Federal Communications Commission, said last night the Government should "take immediate steps to break up the growing monopoly" she contends exists in the television industry.

Miss Hennock said at a testimonial dinner honoring her seven years of service on the commission:

"The FCC has publicly indicated that 2000 TV channels are necessary to give the American people the kind of TV system which Congress intended them to have."

"Today only 430 stations are on the air, and of these some 150 are in financial difficulties."

Italian Land Reform Converts Hovels, Ditches and Reds Into Homes, Fields and Democrats

Premier Segni, Gentleman Farmer Who Started Revolution, Hopes to Hand Over Last Acre by Christmas, Halfway Through 10-Year Project.

By ROBERT E. JACKSON

ROME, July 21 (UP).

THE gentleman farmer who started a revolution in Italy five years ago expects to win the pay-off battle by Christmas. Antonio Segni, 64-year-old author of the revolution which transformed hovels into homes, ditches into fields and Communists into democrats, hopes to hand over the last acre under the land reform program this year, halfway through the 10-year project.

It will signal a victory for Italian democracy and a triumph for Segni, now Italy's Premier.

But distribution of the last plot to the last peasant marks neither the success of the program nor its end. In the next five years the Government will help the new landowners develop their property.

It will pump in $650,000,000 in aid and advice to the new proprietors. But by 1960 it is scheduled to pull out, leaving experienced farmers to go it alone.

A generation hence the estates so carefully carved from the rich and given to the poor may be "big" again. Already some farmers are planning to sell out to more enterprising neighbors. And a tendency to collective farming has set in.

A Bottle of Perfume. One thing is sure. The night Mrs. Antonio Segni received a bottle of perfume five years ago she could not have dreamed what her husband was starting.

Segni, as Agriculture Minister, gave his wife the perfume to prepare her for the news that he was going to hand away 30 acres of their own estate in Sardinia.

Today 1,222,337 acres have been distributed to 93,247 families. The Government found a simple method for deciding whose land to take. Italian landowners have a historic habit of declaring their holdings almost worthless to avoid taxes. The Government took their word. It expropriated low-value land of more than 741 acres which was not cultivated intensively. The owners were paid with 25-year Government bonds bearing 5 percent interest.

On the other hand the Government picked beneficiaries by need and without political discrimination from lists compiled in villages where five to 15 people often lived in a single room. The standard allotment was 15 acres.

The peasant is not given the land. He buys it at low cost and easy terms amounting to about $30 a year at the outset. After 30 years, when the land is finally his, the peasant will have paid about $2600 for his 15 acres.

Startling Results. Already it has brought about startling results.

In the Po river delta south of Venice, from the tower of Pisa along the Via Aurelia to Rome, in the islands of Sicily and Sardinia, in the Italian boot's heel and toe, rocklands and swamps have been transformed into waving fields, manicured orchards and neat rows of electrified stone houses.

But the project does not lack for critics. The landowners, needless to say, never liked the idea. With rightwing power growing in Italy, they will fight any extension of the program. The Communists, their thunder stolen, have fought the project too and incited peasants who did not receive land.

On the other hand, many former Reds have ripped up their party cards and become Christian Democrats. Whatever the political outcome, the production of food on these lands is up two-thirds. In an overpopulated, underdeveloped country, that is a revolution in itself.

Navy's Second Atom Submarine Launched, Keel for Third Laid

By ELTON C. FAY

GROTON, Conn., July 21 (AP).

THE NAVY'S second atomic submarine, the Seawolf, was launched today.

Mrs. W. Sterling Cole, wife of a New York Republican Representative, christened the ship, but missed hitting the bow with the traditional bottle of champagne.

Mrs. Cole turned for an instant to speak to John Jay Hopkins, president and chairman of General Dynamics Co., as he pressed a button releasing the great steel bulk.

In that instant, the Seawolf slipped swiftly out of reach of Mrs. Cole's arm. She hurled the bottle at the receding bow, but it missed again and broke in foam on a portion of the launching machinery.

But the Navy had a second bottle of champagne, attached to a line, on the deck.

As the Seawolf raced down the ways, a man aboard the submarine cracked a second bottle on the bow. And so the Seawolf did get her official christening, after all, says the Navy.

Keel of Third Laid. Three hours earlier, the keel of a third atomic submarine, as yet unnamed, was laid in a ceremony attended by a relatively few officials.

The fact was unknown to most of the audience of 25,000 attending the launching. Their first word came when Secretary of the Navy Charles S. Thomas interpolated into his restraining speech the brief remark that "the keel of a third (submarine) was laid at an early hour this morning on an adjacent way, without pomp or ceremony."

The Seawolf is a trimmer, sleeker ship than the Nautilus. Unlike the bulbous snout of the Nautilus, the Seawolf has a sharp bow.

An hour before the scheduled launching time, a siren signaled to workmen to start knocking out most of the restraining chocks holding the big wooden cradle on which the submarine perched.

It needed only the pressure of Hopkins' finger on the button to start the 3000-ton boat slipping swiftly and silently down the long ramp.

Many Others Planned. In his speech the Secretary said the Navy, with eight atomic submarines already authorized, hopes to build many others "in rapid succession thereafter."

Secretary Thomas referred to congressional action this year in approving four additional atomic-driven submarines and added: "This means that this fiscal year the Navy will have eight nuclear-powered submarines in being or under construction and, in rapid succession thereafter, many others. Of course, our future plans will include nuclear-powered vessels of other types."

Thomas said he is insuring that "the earliest and maximum" attention be given to development of atomic power not only for surface ships but for naval aircraft. He added that "particular, careful attention is being given to nuclear-powered sea-

That comment recalled speculation that a plane like the Navy's new Seamaster, now a biplane, plane powered with jet engines, might be developed into a nuclear-engine aircraft.

Perle Mesta Describes Brush With Rioters in Saigon Hotel

(Perle Mesta, former United States Ambassador to Luxembourg, was in Saigon, Indochina, yesterday when rioting broke out. She had a narrow escape when the rioters smashed and looted her hotel and threatened to invade her suite. In the following dispatch Mrs. Mesta describes her experience.)

By PERLE MESTA

SINGAPORE, July 21 (UP).

I HAD just gone into the room of my secretary and personal assistant when I heard terrific noises. As I crossed the hall to my room on the second floor, I saw about 20 demonstrators down the hall tearing into rooms occupied by different people.

I alerted my secretary and he'd protect us. He then posted suggested we better get out of students in front of my door. There, evidently there was some kind of demonstration, I said. We got our things and walked down the hall where we met the elevator boy who shouted to me "No, no, Madame. Go back, go back!"

About that time the whole place swarmed with mobsters—there were at least 100 on my floor—breaking down doors and chandeliers with big clubs. My secretary and personal assistant returned to their room.

Sprayed With Tear Gas. I then walked down the hall and saw about 50 students in front of a room occupied by members of the Indochina Armistice Commission, which was two doors away from mine. As I stepped up, one of the mobsters sprayed me all over with tear gas.

I walked back to my room, but they did not molest me. They so intensely concentrated on the Armistice Commission's room that they did not pay too much attention to me.

I went back to my own room, and closed the door. It was very frightening then, because stones were coming through the windows from outside and you could hear them breaking down doors.

After some time, they finally came to my door and started battering it. I went to the door, pounded it and told them not to break it down because I was coming out. I opened the door, stepped out and met a group of young people. I told them we were Americans and we were not there to harm them in any way.

"We have friendly feelings toward you," I told them. I said I wanted their protection, and wanted them to help us from this violence.

They could not understand me, but they knew we were friendly. I shook hands with all of them around the door and told them not to harm us, and they didn't. They had very distressed faces, not violent-looking faces at all.

One of them, who spoke some English, told me his mother and whole family were killed by the Communists. This boy then ran and got his leaders. When he introduced another lad, he said "my leader." I shook hands with the leader and he made motions Committee Takes Up Disputes Between Costa Rica, Nicaragua.

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP).

A SPECIAL committee of the Council of the Organization of American States has met twice this week to consider Costa Rica and Nicaragua matters.

The committee met Monday for several hours and again briefly yesterday, a Pan American Union spokesman said. No further meetings are planned for the immediate future although they could be held on very brief notice, he added.

The committee is acting under a resolution of the council which created a committee in February to act as an organ of consultation to settle any disputes between Costa Rica and Nicaragua.

The spokesman described the meetings of the committee this week as "routine." The committee may be finishing its work, he said.

It is understood, however, that matters specifically under discussion are the action of Nicaragua in impounding busses being driven through to Nicaragua and imprisoning some of the drivers.

Another incident which reportedly has been discussed was the action of Nicaraguan authorities in removing a Costa Rican citizen from a T.A.C.A. airliner on suspicion of being involved in a plot against the life of Nicaraguan President Anastasio Somoza.

There has been an exchange of notes between the two governments on the matter.

The special committee was set up by OAS Council to handle disputes of just such a nature.

FLEESON Senate Impotent as President Uses Policy Powers in Geneva

By DORIS FLEESON

WASHINGTON.

A CERTAIN humor attaches to the United States Senate being brave and determinedly cheerful while President Eisenhower negotiates at the summit. No Senate ever really enjoys watching a President exercise fully his constitutional powers over foreign policy under circumstances which render academic the "advice and consent" of the Senate.

No such cabal exists or is forming like that which in the end humbled the last American President to go abroad on a peace mission and enjoy the acclaim of foreign nations. The reasons are various and the strongest of all is, as Mr. Eisenhower himself said, the desire of the American people for peace.

It would be bad politics, if nothing else, to oppose it now. The fact that Senator McCarthy could get only four votes, including his own, for his move to hamper the President at Geneva proves what political opinion is on that score.

McCarthy Gives Up. McCarthy and his shrunken forces have given up for the time being, having prepared their "I told you so" ground. He is co-operative in his various committees, including Appropriations, and seems indifferent to the way in which adjournment is being handled.

Senator Knowland can't bring himself to pretend he is happy about Geneva, but at least he is refusing comment. Actually a rather considerable bone has been thrown at him in the shape of the official announcement that we will not discuss Far Eastern problems at the summit.

It is an obvious area of tension and, barring war, inevitably will be a matter of negotiation. The stalemate now existing is in fact a kind of negotiation in itself. Yet the Administration barred the topic at Geneva on Knowland's account.

The Democrats are fully as united and sincere as they seem in their present applause for the summit talks. They still remain realistic politicians and they know very well what they have to look forward to, after perhaps a few kind words, is a ringing Eisenhower call for the election of a Republican Congress next year.

Their attitude may be roughly summed up in the old gag that some days you just can't make a dollar.

A few have persuaded themselves—or say they have—that the President has changed since 1952 when he was induced to embrace the two foremost radicals of the right, Senators McCarthy and Jenner. The new Eisenhower, they say, will find the same way of avoiding indecisions for three outstanding members of the McCarthy faction who are up next year: Butler of Maryland, Dirksen of Illinois and Welker of Idaho.

This opinion is not widely held. As of now, most Democratic strategists think that no matter how much they support the President or how many foreign policy rescue operations they perform, he will proclaim the burning necessity of electing Republicans to Congress up and down the line.

Senate Democrats incidentally are losing their effective 1954 Senate campaign committee chairman, Clements of Kentucky, who is up himself next year. If his old enemy, Happy Chandler, is elected Governor of Kentucky this fall, Clements will be more than but with his own campaign and some hardened cynics suggest it will be a wasted effort even then.

The job is hard work and Senators are tapped for it—they don't seek it. Possible successors to Clements include Senators Symington of Missouri, Gore of Tennessee and Kerr of Oklahoma.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

America's Other Side

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A friend has just sent me the stirring article, "I Am the Nation," from your editorial page of July 3. I was so thrilled I added a supplement. A coin has an obverse and a reverse.

I AM AMERICA!

I am the two-fold waste of human resources and natural resources. I am the pollution of the waters, destruction of the forests, impoverishment of the soil. I am fire devouring the mountains and the valleys. I am the country-wide offal of the litterbug.

I am pop bottles in the hot springs of the Yellowstone, beer cans in the Rainbow Geyser. I am the dust storm that strips the vast West. I am atomic radioactivity that envelops the air of the world.

I am the extinction of the passenger pigeon, the bison, the Carolina parakeet. I am expropriation of the Red Man, and robbery of my neighbor-nation Mexico at gun point.

I am Tammany Hall, Teapot Dome and Dixon-Yates.

I am crookedness and corruption in high places. I am hypocritical ranting under spires, and tongue-in-cheek patriotism under white domes.

I am the worship of the almighty dollar. I am the tawdry and the meretricious; I am charlatanism in art and science. I am television and stupidity. I am factory-made entertainment, the narcotic against thinking. I am total unoriginality. I am utter standardization. I am the heaven of the robot and the mechanical brain.

I am the loneliness of the man who thinks, but dares not be a dissenter from conformity lest he lose his job and be blackballed all his days. I am snobbery and selfishness. I am adulterated food and lying advertising. I am the protest of "The Man With the Hoe."

I am neuroses, insanity and mental disease. I am the degenerative menace of declining intelligence. I am the exaltation of the senses and the senseless. I am the clockwork zombie.

I am the betrayer of the great trust who has sold his soul for a mess of pottage.

I am America!

They're Not Turncoats

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Please, please tell people and commentators to stop calling those three poor kids "turncoats." It brings tears to my eyes every time I hear it. Our three boys were away in service at the same time, all young, all away for the first time. It's not easy. It could so easily have been our own or any other under the same circumstances. Kindness, alone, embraces every virtue—try it. It pays dividends. Let's be kind.

'Unique, Useful'

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

When the delegate from St. Louis brought to your attention your fine work for peace, the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom in its fortieth anniversary meeting unanimously adopted this statement:

"We commend the St. Louis Post-Dispatch on its outstanding series of articles, 'The Struggle for Peace,' believing this news project to be as unique as it was useful. The task it undertook seems to be one of stimulating its subscribers through an impressive group of contributors representing a wide community of interests and viewpoints to think boldly and constructively about the world's most urgent and difficult problem. We urge the Post-Dispatch to continue to offer its readers a wide forum in this vital field."

At the same time the convention authorized inquiry into the possibility of reprinting the series of articles in book form, in order to acquaint a larger circle of readers with your splendid endeavor.

Another delegate from New York who is a United Nations correspondent declared that the St. Louis Post-Dispatch ranks at the top of the all-too-short list of United States newspapers which present the news in the international field, particularly that of the work of the U.N. and its specialized agencies, with objective, general and sympathetic coverage.

An Ex-G.I. on Geneva

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Remember, folks, how the Republicans labeled the Truman Administration as appeasers to Russia? Now we read where Ike offers the Soviet security guarantees if Germany is unified. What a laugh!

Offering the Reds security after they take with ease all they prefer.

We Americans should do the dictating at Geneva and let the Reds take it or leave it.

The G.O.P. appeared on Korea—what's next on the list? Here's 100 to 1 Ike will come home backing down. Some times I wonder what two world wars were fought for, after the G.O.P. retreat since Ike took the helm.

EX-G.I.

Progress at Geneva

With the week of the Geneva conference coming toward its close, the chiefs of state of Britain, France, Russia and the United States have referred to the foreign ministers of their four countries the two main issues. These are the reunification of Germany and the establishment of European security.

Since it was generally expected that there would be no immediate agreement by the Big Four heads of state on these issues, there may be some people who are disposed to minimize the importance of the conference and to discount its achievement. Any who do so are less realistic than they think themselves.

Obviously only time can assess the full fruits of the Geneva meeting. Indeed only time can tell us what the final results actually are. But it is already possible to observe early effects and these are all to the good.

The fact that there are differences between the Western Allies and Premier Bulganin's Soviet delegation over the reunification of Germany, for example, is not nearly so important as the fact that the four heads of state have agreed that the foreign ministers are to discuss the issue and so see what they can do about reaching a settlement.

Everyone knew that this sharp difference existed before Geneva. But it took a Geneva conference that was a summit meeting—with chiefs of state such as President Eisenhower and Premier Bulganin present—to give the impetus a subsequent conference on German reunification requires. Now a meeting below the summit can be scheduled and Secretary of State Dulles can sit down with the other foreign ministers in pursuit of a solution agreeable to both East and West.

Hence every minute of the Geneva meeting has been eminently worthwhile. For not only have the chiefs of state agreed that the foreign ministers are to take up German reunification and European security. Following the four-point program suggested by Prime Minister Eden, they have agreed to refer to the foreign ministers two other difficult problems. These are the possible limitation of armaments in and around Germany and the possible creation of a demilitarized zone between the East and the West.

The long road ahead may in the end turn out to be "impassable," to use the description which Marquis W. Childs used in his Wednesday report to the Post-Dispatch. The skeptics may be right in their guess that the friendly words of the Soviet delegation cannot be trusted. But that, as Mr. Childs says, is in a sense irrelevant. What counts is that a new, real effort, at the very highest level is being made to start the powers on the road to a secure and just peace.

When President Eisenhower gave the Soviet leaders his personal pledge that the Western nations would never attack Russia—and turned to his old comrade in battle, Marshal Zhukov, to witness to his truthfulness—he in effect invited a corresponding pledge from the rulers of the Kremlin. Who can be sure that some day it will not be forthcoming?

Meantime not a thing has been given away by Britain, France and the United States. NATO stands and will continue to stand. If a new security system is eventually worked out, it will merely extend the protection that NATO now provides.

The Geneva week began well. It continues to progress. If it ends on the course now set it will have opened the way to diplomatic negotiation which could make all the difference between a darkened, fearful world and one that will know what President Eisenhower has described as "a new dawn."

Take a Sailplane Up a Thermal

A sailplane is something that Icarus should have had instead of the wax-and-feather wings that came off and let him fall when, according to the best mythology, he flew too close to the sun. A typical sailplane weighs 350 pounds, is 18 feet long and has a 45-foot wingspan. A tow from a power plane or a truck gets this tiny winged shell into the air and then the pilot keeps it aloft—frequently for hours—by riding the thermal updrafts.

There were lots of sailplanes soaring over the hills and lakes of Elmira, N.Y., during the recent twenty-second annual championships held there. Commander H. C. N. Goodhart of the British Embassy staff beat the best American sailplane pilots but was declared ineligible on citizenship grounds. That was a shame. He apparently is quite a chap. He stimulates thought. He deserves recognition.

Two months ago he went up to 37,000 feet over the California Sierra Nevada and, as he puts it, "It was absolutely delightful. The scenery was superb, the silence complete." And at that altitude the mercury was well below zero.

The most exciting part of soaring in this motionless craft, according to Commander Goodhart, is circling the sailplane up a thermal. He says: "When you enter you feel a slight turbulence, a bubbling sensation. The thing is alive. It effervesces . . . an indescribable pleasure."

Oh for a sailplane and a fast thermal in St. Louis! What could be nicer in these 90-degree days than to effervesce one's way up and up in indescribable pleasure until the mercury is at zero and the silence is complete?

Far From the Summit in Iowa

Iowa lays no claim to being at the summit, but what has been happening there this week is in some ways more remarkable than the Geneva conference.

The Soviet farm delegation which is touring Iowa's efficient corn-hog economy came on business. The determined geniality of the visitors, their gifts and gracious gestures to their hosts, the reckless abandon with which some even try to sing "Ioway"—all this is good public relations, and something of a novelty coming from Russians, but obviously a secondary object of the mission.

The foremost interest of these visitors is to get information. They want to know what makes the Iowa corn-hog economy tick. They want to know how they can increase their own corn production, their livestock economy, their per-acre harvest. They are looking for help.

The very fact that Russians are touring Iowa on such a mission, notebooks in hand, is remarkable. Implicit in every question they ask is a confession of shortcomings which a few years ago Marxists felt they could not admit to the outside world. Implicit also is a certain healthy willingness to learn from a system which until lately was supposed to have nothing to teach the collectivist paradise.

Even more impressive than any of this is a small fact about the Iowans who are entertaining the Soviet delegation. It is their friendliness. For almost 10 years the Soviet Union has been regarded as our deadly enemy. Its leaders have waged cold war against us, and fueled a hot war in which Americans died. Both on their side and on ours, there have been demagogues and propagandists who made careers out of exploiting fear and hatred between the two peoples.

Yet when plain Iowa people got a chance to talk farming with Russian visitors, they were as warm and comfortable and outgoing as they would have been with a party of Ohioans. What's more, the Russians seemed to respond in kind. Perhaps one of the keys to peace is to be found in Iowa.

The Truck Lobby in High

Missourians can judge, from their own political experience, just about what is going on in Washington now concerning highway legislation.

In 1951 the truck lobby showed its power in Jefferson City in weeks of argument over methods of financing the state's new 10-year road program. Eventually the Legislature had enough courage to increase truck fees, along with taxes on everybody else who uses the roads. But the truck crowd made a bitter-end fight of it and won many concessions.

Now the national House of Representatives is about to receive from committee a 12-year, 48-billion-dollar federal road plan which also involves new road use taxes. The bill would raise the gasoline tax (on everybody) from 2 to 3 cents a gallon, lift excise taxes on new trucks and buses 2 per cent and increase taxes on truck and bus tires.

This bill is an honest effort to make the new highway building program pay for itself to a considerable degree, instead of issuing special bonds as the Eisenhower Administration first proposed. Special bonds would require relatively high interest charges. Hence a pay-as-you-go program would be cheaper for the public in the long run.

But Representative Tom Steed of Oklahoma, a sponsor of the new legislation, says the bill has been subjected to a "fantastic lobby attack by the truck and tire people." They induce truckers and tire dealers back home to wire their Congressmen against new taxes, he says. The truck lobby wants these roads, of course, if somebody else pays for them.

Since Speaker Rayburn believes the road bill will pass the House, lobby or no lobby, the truck crowd may not be as powerful as Congressman Steed believes. But the fact remains that the general public does not have a lobby to fight back, and it is the general public which will pay most of the cost of new roads, whatever financing plan is devised. The public has to depend for protection on its elected representatives. They were not elected to give special ear to special interests.

Grandfather Ike

The perquisites of grandparenthood are numerous and they are pleasant. We are moved to this observation by the picture of President Eisenhower looking at a doll in a Geneva toy shop. The President bought dolls for his granddaughters Barbara Anne and Susan, 5 and 3, and a glider and alpine horn for his grandson David, 7.

Giving presents is, of course, one of the most pleasant of all the functions of a grandparent. It is high on the list of the things that make grandparenthood grand. The shopping itself is a heart-warming chore, conjuring up mental images of the grandchild with each of the articles examined, and all the enjoyable consequences which the combination of child and toy might entail.

Next comes the presentation, always an auspicious event. While it may not rank in the hierarchy of events, alongside an inauguration, still it is an inaugural of sorts—of hours of happy play, many of which a grandparent can watch, and others of which he can be contentedly certain are happening in his absences.

Or at least that is what we inferred from the crinkle round the President's eye, and the smile of approval round the President's mouth, as he was pictured looking at the doll in the Geneva toy shop.

The Neglected Know-How

Can this nation wisely use its natural resources, and avoid wasting them, if its citizens are uneducated in the field of conservation? The obvious answer is No. Yet a survey of 156 secondary schools in the southern 34 counties of Illinois shows that one third of them teach no conservation at all, and only 16 per cent of the principals believe their graduates have an adequate knowledge of the subject. How would Missouri public schools come out in a similar study?

The Illinois study was made by two members of the faculty of Southern Illinois University—Dr. W. D. Klimstra and J. C. Oberheu. They say too many teachers lack a basic understanding of the subject and the tools for its teaching. Responsibility is shoved off on the science teacher, when conservation should be integrated into the general courses, they say. Their findings appeared in the Illinois Academy of Science Transactions.

Illinois—and Missouri—could profitably re-examine the conservation content of their public school courses. The American educated for citizenship confronts the need for knowledge of conservation in his daily life—not farmers only, but people of all pursuits. The same is true when the citizen makes his choices on the ballot.

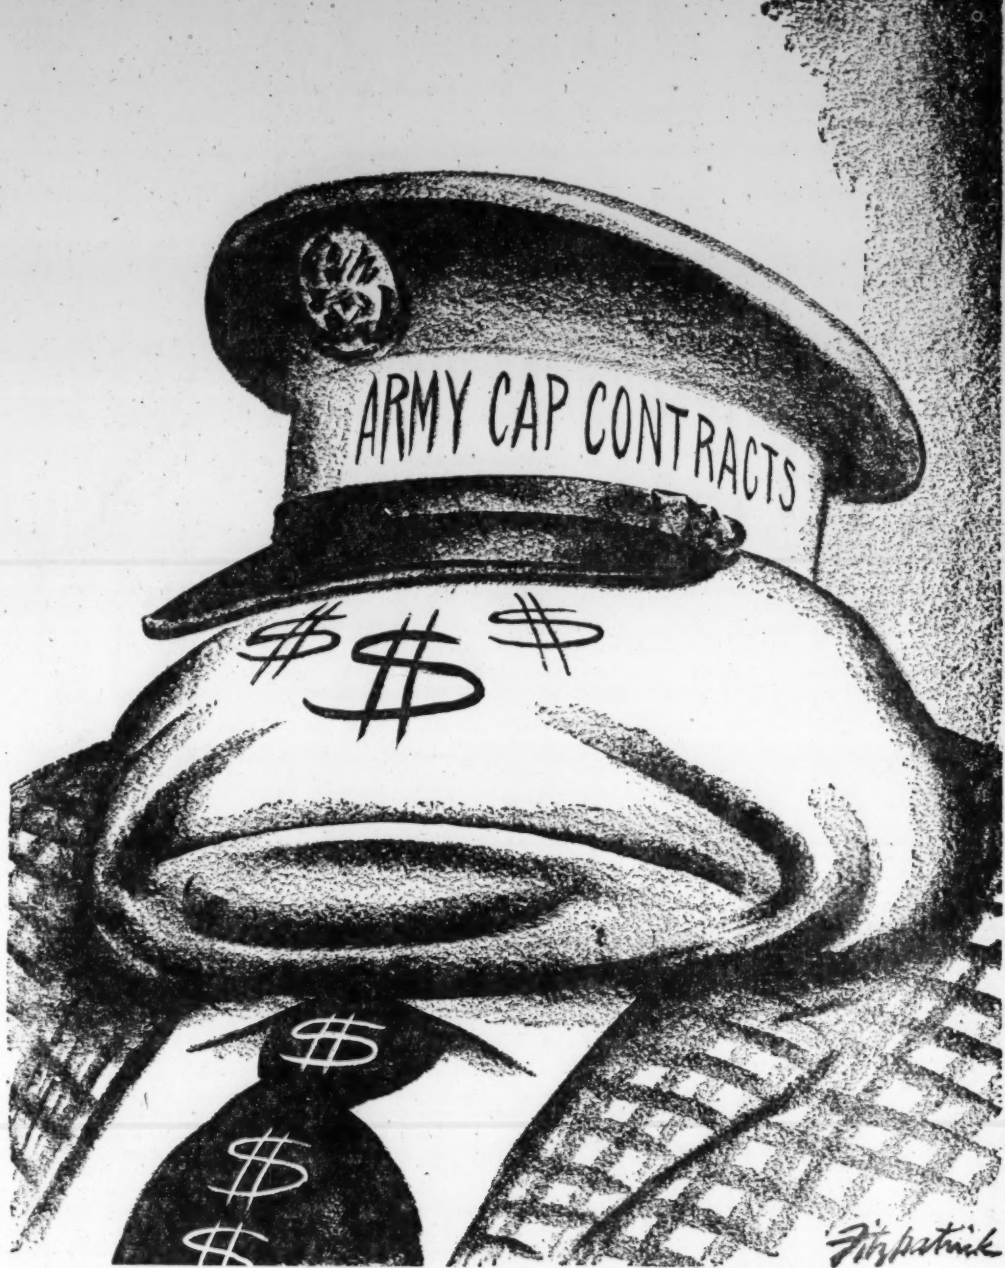

To keep America strong, prosperous and happy, we must know how. That know-how is conservation. It is the public schools that must begin to teach it to us, and instill the desire to continue the lifelong study.

Help for the Aid Bill

This is no time to be reducing the free world's joint effort to build its economic and military strength. Should negotiations begun at Geneva ultimately permit a beginning toward disarmament, as everybody hopes, that will be fine. But no such turn can come overnight, and meanwhile it is essential to maintain the free world strength from which the negotiations are proceeding.

On this sound principle, the Senate Appropriations Committee did well to restore most of the foreign aid appropriations which the House slashed from President Eisenhower's request. On the same principle, it is to be hoped that the Senate will uphold its committee, and vote at least the $3,204,341,750 which it approved. The House had voted only $2,638,741,750. The President requested $3,266,641,000.

If the Senate succeeds in restoring most of the funds asked by the President, it will reverse the pattern of last year, when the House voted more foreign aid funds than the Senate. Both branches were then under Republican leadership. It is up to the Senate Democratic leaders to show that they know what is at stake in foreign aid.

Languages in Grammar Schools

The Mirror of Public Opinion

St. Louis's Clinton-Peabody began with Spanish club 12 years ago; now 15 local schools are in program; growing cosmopolitanism of Americans has stimulated study nationally since 1952; younger pupils learn faster than high-school students.

From "Meet the Schools," Quarterly Publication of the St. Louis Board of Education

Twelve years ago Miss Clementine Baker started a Spanish club with her seventh grade children at Clinton-Peabody School. Miss Baker's objective in organizing the group was to teach simple conversational Spanish and to develop an appreciation of Latin American culture.

With the help of some Mexican children who attended the school, Miss Baker taught some Spanish songs and dances, put on a puppet show in Spanish and gave a little fiesta. She succeeded in inspiring in the children an enthusiastic interest in the language and a keen desire to learn it.

For nine years Miss Baker, with the support of her principal, Stephen L. Pletcher, who retired recently after more than 46 years in the school system, conducted an experimental program of foreign language teaching in the elementary school practically single-handed.

Then, in 1952 the Board of Education decided to expand the program, still on an experimental basis.

St. Louis: The Nation's Story

Six high school teachers taught French or Spanish to selected groups of pupils in nine elementary schools for half an hour a day.

This proved such a popular and successful venture that after three years Superintendent Philip J. Hickey decided to enlarge the program still further. This year, three full-time teachers conduct foreign language classes in 15 schools. Miss Baker is one of these teachers. E. H. Williams and Mrs. Frances Crawley are the others.

The story of foreign language teaching in the elementary schools in St. Louis is the nation's story, too. Eighty per cent of the foreign language classes taught throughout the country today materialized during the past three years. Only 52 of the 280 cities and towns where elementary school children learn languages today were engaged in this venture in 1951; only nine in 1939.

In 1954, approximately 209,549 children from the kindergarten through the sixth grade were having lessons in a foreign language in their classrooms, taught by their own teacher or by a visiting specialist. A total of 119,522 additional children were receiving instruction in a foreign language by radio.

Station KSLH Takes Part

The great majority of these—119,522—were listening to "Visions Mimi" which was written and produced by Mary Jane Badino for station KSLH, the St. Louis public school station.

This enormous expansion of the foreign-language programs in the elementary school can be interpreted as reflecting the changing position of the United States with regard to the rest of the world.

With the war and its aftermath which precipitated the United States into a position of leadership whether we liked it or not, it became apparent that Americans needed to know other languages.

Thousands of Americans were transplanted in a short space of time into all parts of the world. For the first time in our history our military, economic and political commitments were such that large numbers of people were faced with the task of living and working abroad for an undetermined period of time.

These unofficial ambassadors felt a great need to learn other languages in order to conduct the ordinary business of living. Without a second language they also felt hampered in their efforts to understand in a deeper sense the people among whom they lived.

Their experiences illustrate the importance of a better means of communication to promote world understanding.

Although authorities do not agree on the exact age at which to begin such a study, it is generally conceded that children of elementary school age can learn a second language more quickly than high school students.

The one restricting factor is, of course, as all educators will immediately recognize, a younger child's more limited experience.

Children Learn Songs, Dances

Naturally, a child who is just learning to express himself in English, who is just beginning to master reading skills in English, cannot be expected to show a comparable proficiency in a second language.

If he learns how to name familiar objects, express himself in a simple conversation, and sing a few little songs he has done very well. He has laid the foundations for a working knowledge of a second language.

In their classes the children learn French and Spanish songs and dances. They learn the simple customs and manners of the people of these countries. They learn something of their geography and the products for which they are famous. Mexican hats, Spanish shawls, French dolls and other such objects are used.

Most of their learning is done by ear, just as they learn English. They are greeted in a foreign tongue and they reply. They are given simple instructions, which they follow. They do not translate from English to another language. They learn it directly.

Americans and Europeans

During the year the teachers encouraged the children of each group to give a play or pageant of some kind to demonstrate their progress to the parents.

For example, Mr. E. H. Williams's group at Cole School gave a dramatized version of "Snow White" in Spanish and Mrs. Crawley's group at Sigel wrote, produced and took part in a little Spanish skit they called "El Rancho Grande."

Each of the 15 schools in the program has its own method of choosing the children who make up the class, but in general the children chosen are either superior students or they show unusual and sustained interest in learning a foreign language.

Teachers, pupils, and parents all show a lively interest in this venture. Many parents are impressed by the excellence of their children's accent and by the fluency of their speech.

It will be interesting to watch this experiment. There is no real reason why Americans should not be as skilled in languages as are Europeans.

The Gentleman From Indiana

BOOTH TARKINGTON, by James Woodress. (J. B. Lippincott & Co., 250 pp., $5.)

Booth Tarkington is remembered as the most important writer of his generation and as one of the all-time masters of American fiction. Recognized as a classic chronicler of boyhood, he has until now been known by his products rather than as a person.

James Woodress, a native of Webster Groves, now a professor at Duke University, deplored this and set himself the task of writing a biography of the gentleman from Indiana which would not only confirm his place in American literature but make him better known as a man.

Importantly, Booth Tarkington, as his full biography discloses, did not come easily by his laurels, for he had to fight long and hard years, facing failure and futility, before he won the recognition that carried him on to success as marked by the sale of millions of his books, portraying urban middle-class American life.

It was with "The Gentleman from Indiana" that Booth Tarkington became the most famous young man in America. His first published novel, sold briskly from the start. It made the monthly best-seller lists twice in 1900 and remained in steady demand for many years. It has been reissued and reprinted more than two dozen times, translated into at least six languages, made into a movie and excerpted for anthologies.

One of the byproducts of the book was that Tarkington became, without any such intention, "the gentleman from Indiana," and thereafter the title was his as part of the recognition of him as Indiana's spokesman.

With his books and his plays he rose rapidly in public esteem, so that in 1921 booksellers, asked to name the most significant American authors, put him at the head of the list, and the following year in a contest conducted by the Literary Digest he was voted the greatest living American author and in The New York Times he was the only writer named in a list of the 10 greatest contemporary Americans.

His total output of fiction eventually totaled 41 volumes, plus dozens of plays and stories.

It is part of the author's fidelity in dealing with the private life of Booth Tarkington that he reveals the alcoholic lapse of the gentleman from Indiana after the failure of his first marriage, but records to his credit that he kept the pledge that he made to his second wife, Susannah Robinson, to whom he was married in 1914 and with whom he lived happily until his death in 1946, at the age of 76.

As his final estimate of the gentleman from Indiana, James Woodress adopts the saying of Julian Street: "The man was greater than anything he wrote."

Anthology of Ballads

THE BALLAD BOOK, edited by MacEdward Leach. (Harper, $7.50.)

What is a ballad? A type of story-song which has come down to us from the Middle Ages. Professor Leach is correct when he says that many ballads contain lines of incomparable poetry. To which I might add "in great number, too," for in this superb "Ballad Book" Professor Leach has assembled no fewer than 370 of them, including some now anthologized for the first time. About two-thirds of these ballads are English and Scottish, the rest American. He must be a cheerful soul indeed who will not derive pleasure from this delightful book, the best collection of its kind I have yet come across.

CARDS ROUT MAGLIE, BUT FAIL TO HOLD LEAD OVER GIANTS

Arroyo Also Removed; Moon's Stolen Base Sets Up First Run

By Bob Broeg

Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff

NEW YORK, July 21.—The Cardinals, seeking their eleventh victory in the last 16 starts, had their hitting clothes on today, but so did the Giants in the friendly environs of the Polo Grounds.

Neither starting pitcher stayed around very long. Veteran Sal Maglie, taken of the hook when the New Yorkers tied it in the fifth, 5 to 3, was replaced by Don Liddle.

St. Louis speed set up a run in the first. Bob Stephenson singled. Wally Moon hit into a force play, stole second and raced home on Bill Virdon's two-out safety.

The lead was short-lived, however, for Willie Mays hit his twenty-ninth homer in the last of the first. Sid Gordon poled his third of the season in the fourth and Arroyo, after walking Riddle, was taken out.

West, Westrum, New York catcher, was forced out in the second inning when he was struck out on the right hand by a foul tip. X-rays disclosed a broken ring finger that, the Giants' physician said, would sideline Westrum for about two weeks.

Attendance in 90 degree weather was only 4017 paid.

The game

FIRST INNING — CARDS. — Stephenson singled to center. Moon grounded to Terwilliger, who tagged Stephenson on the baseline for a forceout. Musial filed to Mays. Moon stole second. Virdon singled to right, scoring Moon and took second on the throw to the plate. Schoendienst walked. Repulski filed to Mays.

GIANTS. — Boyer threw out Terwilliger. Dark lined to Boyer. Mays lined a home run, his twenty-ninth, into the lower left field stands just inside the foul pole. Hoffman struck out ONE RUN.

SECOND — CARDS. — Boyer was safe when Dark fumbled his sharp grounder. Sarni doubled to left. Boyer stopping at third. Arroyo filed to Mays. Boyer scoring and Sarni going to third on the sacrifice fly. Stephenson struck out. Westrum was struck on his throwing hand by a foul tip off Moon's bat and was forced to retire. Katt went in to catch for the Giants. Moon doubled to left, scoring Sarni. Liddle relieved Maglie on the mound for the Giants. Musial was passed intentionally. Virdon singled to center, scoring Moon. Musial stopping at second. Gordon threw out Schoendienst.

THIRD RUNS. — Giants — Mueller filed deep to Virdon. Gordon walked. Lockman filed to Repulski. Stephenson threw out Katt.

THIRD — CARDS. — Repulski hit a tremendous triple of about 440 feet against a screen fronting the centerfield bleachers. Boyer walked. Sarni also walked, filling the bases. Arroyo grounded to Dark who stepped on second, forcing Sarni and three to Hoffman for a double play. Repulski scoring. Stephenson walked. Moon bunted and was thrown out by Gordon. ONE RUN.

GIANTS. — Dark popped to Sarni. Mays popped to Schoendienst. So did Hoffman.

EIGHTH — CARDS. — Boyer fouled to Gordon. Sarni popped to Terwilliger. Terwilliger threw out Lawrence.

GIANTS. — Schoendienst threw out Mueller. Gordon singled to left. Gomez ran for Gordon. Lockman singled to right, sending Gomez to third. Jackson replaced Lawrence on the mound for the Cardinals. Thompson batted for Katt and grounded to Schoendienst whose throw to the plate was too late to get Gomez. Lockman stopping at second on the fielders' choice. Liddle filed deep to Virdon. Terwilliger filed to Moon. ONE RUN.

GIANTS. — Dark popped to Sarni. Mays popped to Schoendienst. So did Hoffman.

Schoendienst Runs Into Double Trouble

RED SCHOENDIENST, sliding into first base, is doubled off the bag in the second inning of the Cardinals' game at the Polo Grounds, yesterday. Schoendienst started for second base on Bill Virdon's drive to center field but when Willie Mays made an unexpected catch, the Cards' second baseman was doubled on the throw to first baseman GAIL HARRIS.

Time to Choose for Hall of Fame Again

NAT FLEISCHER, editor of Ring Magazine, who established boxing's Hall of Fame, has distributed ballots for the second year's voting.

Voting is done by three groups. One selects the "pioneers" those who were active in boxing at its beginning.

Then there is the "oldtimers," those boxers who were active more than 35 years ago.

Third is the "current" group, those active during the past 35 years. To be eligible a boxer would have to have been retired for at least two years.

In the first balloting, Jack Dempsey, Joe Louis and Henry Armstrong received the necessary 75 per cent of the votes in the latter to be placed in the Hall of Fame, which is now located in the office of Ring at Madison Square Garden, New York.

Among those who ran close last year and head the list of possible nominees this year are Ray Robinson (who isn't eligible as he has not retired); Gene Tunney, Mickey Walker, Harry Greb, Tony Canzoneri, Willie Pep (who also isn't eligible as he has not retired); Barney Ross, Jimmy McLarnin, Tommy Loughran, Jimmy Wilde, Georges Carpentier, Marcel Cerdan, Tony Zale, Pancho Villa and many more.

The selections from this corner were—Benny Leonard, Gene Tunney, Mickey Walker, Harry Greb, Barney Ross, Jimmy Wilde, Georges Carpentier, Luis Firpo, Buddy Taylor, Jack Britton

Bisplinghoff Leads Western by 4 Strokes; Jackson Tied for Seventh

Jim's 73 Makes His Total 213

By Robert Morrison

Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff
ROCKFORD, Ill., July 21—Strokes that he could ill afford had St. Louis's Walker Cupper Jimmy Jackson in a tight spot today for the fourth round of the Western Amateur qualifying trial.

Strapping, 200-pounder Don Bisplinghoff of Orlando, Fla., who at 20 captured the North and South Amateur this year among numerous lesser events, had almost sewed up a match play spot.

So with the title-defending Bruce Cudd of Portland, Ore., exempt from qualifying, that seemed to leave six places open for tomorrow's match play. Bisplinghoff, a semifinalist in the British Amateur earlier this season, made his move in the third round yesterday with a four-under-par 67 for a 54-hole total of 206. He now leads his nearest pursuers by four strokes and Jackson, among others, by seven.

Complicated Outlook.
Five other players had better 54-hole totals than Jackson. Moreover Jackson's outlook was complicated by presence of four others in his same 213 bracket who were just as likely to do well in the fourth round as Jimmy is. They were former champion, Dale Morey; another Walker Cupper, Don Cherry; the 23-year-old Memphis ace, Hillman Robbins Jr.; and a veteran Harold Brink of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Ahead of this group were two at 210, Milwaukee's be-spectacled 20-year-old surprise, Bobby Brue, and Colonial Invitation champion Eddie Merriam, Meridian, Miss., and at 211 were Missouri's State champion, Jim Tom Blair of Jefferson City, Rex Baxter Jr. of Amarillo, Tex., and the home-town favorite Alex Welsh, a 35-year-old attorney who has been a good tournament player for many years.

"It's awful close," Jackson admitted yesterday after two double bogies set him back and he finished his third round in 73 holes.

"We'd have to shoot a 65 to be sure of anything," said Brink, who was in the same spot as Jackson.

No. 6 Rough for Jimmy.
The scenic par-three sixth hole where the Rock river flows peacefully just beyond the green was the beginning of Jackson's setback. He hit a good tee shot right for the pin at the left on the green, but it kicked off and rolled out of bounds. It cost him a double-bogey five.

Next he got another of four birds in his round, two of which came on 25-foot putts, but then in his own words he dunced-up the par-five eighth. His tee shot was in the rough, which is burned out for 228, Jim Johnson 79 for 221 and Art Jennemann 78 for 226.

Johnston shot 74 in his fourth round for 305.

St. Louisans out of contention finished the third day as follows: Hord W. Hardin had 76 for 224, Milt Frank 76 for 228, Jim Johnson 79 for 221 and Art Jennemann 78 for 226.

Snead Blasts---Then Putts Way to PGA Lead

SAM SNEAD, seeking his fourth National Professional Golfers Association championship, is shown blasting out of a sand trap on the Meadowbrook course at Detroit. Getting on the green was his chief task, then he one-putted seven holes for a brilliant round of 66 and the first-round lead.

quickly with a wood instead of an iron.

After that mistake, a long iron missed the green to the right. He hit short on a difficult pitch down to the green and left himself in heavy grass, and then finally chipped some 12 feet past the cup and couldn't hole it out.

He played the remainder of the round in one under par, but the damage was done, out in 38, back in 35 for a 73, a few precious strokes gone beyond recall.

Missouri's Blair had a third-round 71 with 36 putts and birdies on the three par-five holes by reaching the green each time in two. The 24-year-old state champion, a finalist in the 1951 Western Amateur, tested out a number of new putters later and on a tip from Robbins, Jim Tom Blair believed he had discovered the answer to his putting troubles here. He could make a bid for the medal.

Young Brue, a near-sighted youth who intensely walks up and down each side of the line on his putts, added a 70 in the third round, but the best shooters of the day besides Bisplinghoff were Merriam and Cherry, each with 68. Welsh showed signs of tiring with his 73.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 21—The defending champion found it one of those days when the golf ball was square and trouble was everywhere in the semi-finals of the Women's State golf championship today. Mrs. Marilyn Herpel Conroy, shrugging off her woes and complimenting her opponent, Mrs. Marian Gault of Kansas City, took leave of her title.

Mrs. Conroy was defeated by Miss Gault, 5 and 3, this morning. In the other semi-final match, Jeanie Dobbin of Northwood defeated Mrs. Claude Hunt of Kansas City, 4 and 2. Tomorrow's final is a scheduled 36 holes, give or take some holes for an early or a late finish.

The final should have a mirror quality. Neither Miss Gault nor Miss Dobbin is long off the tee, but there is precision to counter-balance lack of power, and they find it a way to stay with or near par on the overall count.

Indiana Hills, the place where the women are doing their marching, is Miss Gault's home course. She was several strokes over par today. The medal didn't lend itself to a strict count, due to several conceded holes.

Early Lead by Miss Gault. There was none of the par-scoring golf that characterized Mrs. Conroy's game yesterday, in a match with Mrs. R. S. Johnson. Apparently finished then, she scored an eagle two on the seventeenth, to even the match, and made a long birdie putt on the eighteenth to win it.

All that didn't leave her tired or in an anti-climax mood, Mrs. Conroy said. Her losing try for a third successive title, and a record fourth title, in the Women's State was just a simple matter of poor hit, no field, she said. "I didn't hit the fairway, I couldn't chip, didn't get 'em close enough to the pin to make it up," she said.

Miss Gault, looking cool under a sun that didn't encourage such appearances, won the first hole with a birdie four. It became a battle for a while. Each won two holes, in the first five played. Mrs. Conroy had a bogey five on the sixth hole. Miss Gault had a par, and the Kansas City woman held an advantage throughout the rest of the match. She was 2 up after nine holes, and the turn was for the worse, to Mrs. Conroy. She lost the tenth hole, won the eleventh, but was no better and no worse off than she had been, but the twelfth was a genuine disillusionment.

Mrs. Conroy's ball found a home among the multiflora hedges that border the fairway on the par-5 twelfth. "I chipped and chipped and chipped," she said. It was one of those operations that required about a stroke per foot of progress to fight clear. She took a nominal 7 on the lost-cause hole. Miss Gault had a 5 and was 3 up. The fourteenth was Miss

Fuentes Wins In Dull Bout

NEW YORK, July 21 (AP)—Some styles make fights but the styles of Ramon Fuentes and Hector Constance don't.

Fuentes, 29-year-old veteran from Los Angeles, won a split decision over the 24-year-old lad from Trinidad last night at Madison Square Garden in a dull battle of counter punches. Nobody wanted to lead. When they moved inside at close range, they took turns slamming away. But most of the punches landed on arms and elbows. Judge Joe Angelo scored it for Fuentes, 7-5 and Judge Frank Forbes also scored it for the Californian, 5-4-1. Referee Al Berli saw it 5-4-1 for Constance. The AP card was 5-5 and it could have been 0-0-10 except for the one solid punch in the ninth. "I tried to get him in the belly but he tied me up," said Fuentes, explaining why he failed to follow up his opening in the ninth.

The fans who sang "Let Me Call You Sweetheart" gave Referee Berli the big cheers when he broke up the fighters at close range. After one round, one man yelled at Berli, who was marking his scorecard, "What are you writing. Nobody did anything." Another hollered, "Put on the emergency button."

Only one thing is sure—if there ever is a rematch, Trinidad can have it.

Platan Wins Equipose Mile

CHICAGO, July 21 (AP)—Hasty House Farm's Platan came from far behind in the stretch to win the $61,000 Equipose Mile before 19,647 fans at Arlington Park yesterday.

Second was Reverie Knoll Farm's Smokescreen, which like the early pacesetter, Maine Chance Farm's Jet Action, the 5-2 favorite.

Calumet Farm's Mark-Ye-Well, seeking to continue an Arlington comeback, was boxed most of the way and finished thirteenth in the field of 16.

Platan, 5-year-old son of Plater, got a splendid ride from veteran Johnny Adams and added $38,500 to the Hasty House coffers.

Platan was clocked for the mile on a fast track at 1:35, matching the Equipose Mile record set by With Pleasure in 1947 and equaled by Star Reward in 1949 and Oil Capital in 1950.

Platan returned $12, $5.80 and $3.80. Smokescreen, which like Platan came up fast in the stretch, returned $12.80 and $7.60. Jet Action, which set a fast pace but faltered under stretch pressure, returned $3.80 to show.

"I haven't holed out a sand shot in a long time," she said to a friend. She gave it a try, and when it missed, and Miss Gault's ball lay within 6 inches of the hole in 3, Mrs. Conroy conceded the hole and the match.

Easy for Miss Dobbin Again. The last thing Mrs. Conroy did was advise Miss Dobbin, "Play as you did Monday. You'll be all right tomorrow."

Monday's play, repeated, would do all right for Miss Dobbin. She was medalist then with a woman's par 74.

Her match today required her to play more holes than she had in any of her other matches. Her progress had been easy, with 5 and 4, and 6 and 5 victories.

Miss Dobbin won the first three holes today, and kept charge. She has been in the state final before, and she has met Miss Gault previously, too. She has no use for either match as a precedent, however. She lost to Mrs. Conroy, in her title try, and to Miss Gault in a state quarter-final.

State finals are no novelty to Miss Gault. She recalled four previous ones, and this time there is a familiar, hopeful note for her. She won the State once, at Indian Hills. St. Louisans Nancy Morris of Meadow Brook will meet for the first time today. Miss Morris defeated Mrs. George Sinderson, Kansas City, 5 and 4, and Miss Greenberg won over Mrs. W. H. Anderson, Westborough, 6 and 4, in the semifinals.

Five Lefties in Kutis Lineup for Cape Meet

Kutis North will have five left-handed batters in its starting lineup tonight against Holcomb in the Missouri semi-pro baseball tournament at Cape Girardeau. The other Munsy entry, Borbein-Young, will oppose Campbell in the second game. Tonight's contests will be the first in the two-losses-and-out meet.

Kutis, Munsy champion, is down to 10 players, but Borbein will be without only Catcher Ed Murray and Pitcher Dick Hatz. Dick Feilhaber will hurl for Kutis. Bob Burrichter will catch and Vern Stout will move in from center field to second base. Chuck Currinder will play left field.

Pirates Recall Hall.

PITTSBURGH, July 21 (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates today recalled pitcher-outfielder Dick Hall from Lincoln (Neb.), of the Class A Western League.

Hall, a right-hander, has a 12-5 record with Lincoln and a batting average of .304 in 329 AB's.

Thomans Win in Legion Playoff

Burda Star At Bat and On Mound

By John J. Archibald

When you have a center fielder who can suddenly become your second left-handed pitcher, field his new position like a veteran, and help you sew up the game with a bases-loaded triple—that's when you feel you can take on the world. Red-hot Thomans' Bob Burda had the many-skilled ballplayer last night, Bob Burda, and the team of many surprises won the district American Legion baseball title by beating city winner Aubuchon-Dennison, 7 to 5, at Ballwin.

Taking on the world one section at a time, the Thomans will play next in a four-team zone tournament at Washington, Mo. This two-losses-and-out event will be next Friday, Saturday and Sunday, July 29-31. The champion team will represent the eastern half of Missouri in the state tournament at Jefferson City.

The choice of Burda as a pitcher was unexpected. Bob, who had hurled a few innings in league play but not the past high school season, was Ritenour, was told about it when he reported before the game. Coach Bill Schaeffer had watched Aubuchon-Dennison swinging awkwardly against left-hander Andy Reed the previous night and figured that the righty with a curve might be appropriate.

Not Inevitable. But . . . Burda wasn't inevitable, but he held the Aubuchons to four hits and two runs during the first six innings. He had pitched more than three innings at a stretch before, however, and in the seventh, with his team ahead, 7 to 2, he tired. A single and four walks in that frame gave Aubuchon two runs, but Bob Wichmann (the expected starter) came in to get the side out.

From the start, Thomans-Booth played inspired baseball. There were fine catches, remarkable throws, and heads-up reactions. Right fielder John Meives, Thomans' second batter, gave his club a quick 2-0 lead when he cracked a home run inside the park to deep right-center, scoring behind Jerry Himmelsbach, who had walked. But Meives was just getting started.

Two innings later Meives stopped an Aubuchon rally with a one-bounce throw to the plate that caught a runner trying to score from second on a single. The next inning Meives nailed another Aubuchon runner trying to take two bases on a missed grounder. Meives' throw went to Shortstop Roland Kurtz on a line and Kurtz stabbed the ball and tagged the runner in one motion.

Himmelsbach, regular second baseman who was replacing Burda in center, held a potential double to a single by lunging at a low line drive in the fourth inning.

Reserve Stars, Too.

That's the way the county club was going. Even reserve Bill Allen, who was taking Himmelsbach's place at second, laid down two perfect sacrifice bunts, in addition to fielding faultlessly.

The score was 2-2 when Thomans-Booth batted in the first of the fifth. Aubuchon starter Tom Fassler, having control trouble all the way, started the inning by walking Himmelsbach and Meives. Meives was picked off first when Aubuchon Second Baseman Ed Meyer sneaked in behind him, but Bill Loveless singled, driving in Himmelsbach. Walks to Ray Wilson and Kurtz then loaded the bases and brought up Burda.

Burda, who had singled earlier, stepped into the first pitch and sent it to the wall in deep right for a triple. Three runs came in, and Burda scored a moment later on Allen's squeeze bunt.

Worley Takes Over.

After Burda's smash, Fassler was relieved by George Worley, who gave Thomans-Booth only one hit during the rest of the game. Worley, who appeared in all four of Aubuchon's tournament games but started only once, had a superlative pitching record in the playoffs. He pitched to one batter and got him to make the game-ending out in the opener with Stockham, then came back the next night to pitch a five-hit victory. In relief Tuesday night Worley pitched two and two-third hitless innings (though allowing one run on walks and a sacrifice fly), then held Thomans in the final.

The victory for Thomans-Booth was its tenth in succession—a feat which has established it as probably the most outstanding Legion comeback in this area when it is recalled that the club began the season by losing its first three games. The odds on such a team starting at that point and going on to win a district championship would certainly have been very, very long.

Mooney Defeats Bill Johnson In Junior Golf

WESTBOROUGH COUNTRY CLUB, July 21—John Mooney, of Sunset, played the role of giant killer in his quarterfinal round match with Bill Johnson of Algonquin, in the annual St. Louis District Junior golf tournament. Mooney, who yesterday upset Russ (Skip) Schoenberg, of Norwood, the 1954 runner-up, played steady golf in eliminating one of the tournament favorites, Johnson.

Because of his convincing 5 and 4 victory over the defending champion, Don Dupske, yesterday, Johnson was regarded as a hot choice to reach the final. Mooney, by his victory today, became a favorite over his semifinal rival, Alan Morrison of Westborough.

Morrison advanced by defeating Ken Krekemeier, Bellerive, 3 and 2.

In the lower half, Sidney Solomon III, Westwood, and Larry Roper, Glen Echo, became semifinals. Solomon was pushed to the final green to win from Larry Slattery, Normandy, 1 up. Roper was a 2-1 victor over

CRIPPLED PLANE'S PILOT RISKS FIRE AND WINS GAMBLE

PRESTWICK, Scotland, July 21 (AP)—A crippled United States Air Force weather plane landed at Prestwick airport today after winning a life or death gamble 500 miles out over the Atlantic.

Pilot Lt. James Jarrett of Memphis, Tenn., had to cut out two of the B-29's four engines—one because of fire and the other on account of a fuel leak. The plane lost altitude rapidly. Jarrett was forced to decide whether to come down on the ocean or risk restarting the fire by putting the seared engine back to work.

He chose the engine. It surged back to life. But it sent flames scorching across a wing just as the plane touched down—with another Air Force B-29 as escort.

Stepping off with his 12 crewmen, Jarrett said: "It was a big decision—a choice between a wet seat or the chance of an explosion. But it worked."

Ferris Wheel Stolen.
CHICAGO, July 21 (UP)—Andrew Pucara, a carnival owner, reported to police that his ferris wheel had been stolen. He said it was packed in a truck trailer and disappeared along with the driver.

Protein Foods Dispel Summer Lag

Many Excellent Buys in Meat Departments. Poultry and Eggs Exceptionally Low Now.

If your energy is at a minimum in the summertime, don't blame it all on the hot weather; lack of pep may be partly due to sketchy eating habits. Be sure that you and your family have well balanced meals; including, of course, important protein... meat, fish, poultry and eggs. This week you'll find many exceptionally good buys in all four.

There has been a sharp and unseasonable drop in the price of fresh eggs and you'll want to take advantage of the low cost in this important food. Serve egg salad or chop a few hard-boiled eggs in potato or vegetable salad. Omelets are appealing main dishes and take so little time to make they won't heat up the kitchen.

Poultry prices continue to be easy on the budget. Frying and broiling chickens are priced low. Try frying some in the cool, early morning hours and then serve it cold for dinner with your family's favorite potato salad. At their low price you'll want to eat them often now and buy extras for your home freezer. Small size fresh turkeys are excellent buys and they're real taste treats alone from roasteries, as well as fried or baked.

Beef Supply Good.
There is a good supply of beef in wide selection and many cuts are priced well within the budget. These include round steaks, pot roasts and briskets. Hamburger is very good value and, here again, you'll want to store some in your freezer. Besides hamburger steaks and meat loaf, try serving it stuffed in green peppers which are also a good buy now. Or try thick hamburger patties with slices of bacon wrapped around, pan-fried or done on the barbecue pit.

For a tasty and very economical barbecue, use rib boiling beef. Boil it in water until the meat pulls away from the bone. Brown it on the barbecue grill and baste with your favorite sauce.

Again, this week, veal is a good buy. There is an abundance of it on the market and you'll find it in shoulder, roasts, breast and chops very reasonably priced.

Besides ham, there is a great variety of table-ready meats in cold cuts and frankfurters. Easy and convenient to serve, they also contain needed protein. Don't overlook seafood as an important part of your diet. There are many types of fillets and fish sticks available which are tasty and easy to prepare. Crab meat is lower in price now than at any other time of the year and it is delicious made into salad or into patties and deep fried. Shrimp is available in good supply, a little higher in price, but so good in salads.

Plenty of Melons.
Watermelons are the big buy in the fruit department. They are dependably good and exceptionally low in price. Eat your fill of this refreshing, delicious, low-calorie fruit. Serve it for dessert or as a cooling treat any time of day.

California cantaloupes are on the wane and a bit high, but local shipments should be coming in soon at more reasonable prices. Casaba, crenshaw and Persian melons are available as are good quality honeydews.

There are not many local peaches on the market now, but a heavy supply of California peaches is expected within the next week and they will most probably be at the best prices you'll find this year for canning and freezing.

The market offers a good variety of small fruits such as Santa Rosa and Wickson plums, Bing cherries, apricots, nectarines and grapes. And there are small supplies of Michigan currants, sour cherries, blackberries and black and red raspberries.

There is a plentiful supply of homegrown corn of consistently good quality and reasonable prices.

Cauliflower Coming In.
Fine quality cauliflower is coming in from many sections and prices are easing off considerably. Cabbage of excellent quality is in good supply, priced low, and the firm heads are ideal for stew.

The market also offers good supplies of fine quality carrots, cucumbers, celery, eggplant, okra, mustard greens, kale, spinach and green peppers at reasonable prices.

Better quality iceberg lettuce is coming in now at lower prices than recently and there's a good supply of many other types of lettuce.

String beans of improved quality are coming in from outside and the price is stable. Louisiana sweet potatoes can now be considered a budget item. They are at their peak of supply and the price is very interesting.

Pickling onions are coming in now and this is the time to can them for next winter's good eating.

Onions and potatoes continue to be in plentiful supply and very, very low in price. Serve them often and help balance the budget.

Fancy Ice Cream Desserts

Once a food strictly for royalty, ice cream is today one of America's favorite desserts. Shown above are several ways in which it may be served. At the left, a cantaloupe round is filled with vanilla ice cream and topped with raspberries. The loaf in the center is a Ladyfinger Log. At the right are two parfaits. One is a combination of raspberry sherbet and butter pecan ice cream; the other is orange sherbet and vanilla ice cream. Both are topped with whipped cream.

NERO, who became Emperor of Rome in 54 A.D., was a boy who knew a good thing when he saw it. For it was Nero who ordered slaves to bring snow down from the mountains, to be mixed with fruit juices, pulp and honey in a frozen dessert. A crude forerunner, indeed, to the rich, smooth ice creams we all take for granted today.

Actually, the ice cream industry is only a little more than 100 years old in this country. Caterers and chefs had made ice cream for the carriage trade for some years, and it was on the menu planned by Dolly Madison for the inaugural ball in 1813. But it was not until the summer of 1851 that the first commercial ice cream plant went into operation in Baltimore.

Today there are more than 200 different flavors of ice cream, with approximately 250,000,000 pounds of fruits and nuts used annually in its production. But for all of its glamor, ice cream is basically a practical food since the nutrients of milk and cream are retained in its manufacture, and the calcium of ice cream is just as valuable to the body as the calcium of milk.

A year-around favorite, it tastes better than ever when the mercury zooms to the top of the thermometer. And what easier dessert is there to serve? Just a smidgen of imagination, and a minimum of effort, will turn it into something very special.

Consider, for example, the long low cake in the middle of the picture above.

Ladyfinger Log.
One dozen ladyfingers (or six slices of sponge cake).
One pint strawberry ice cream.

One-half pint whipping cream. Split ladyfingers in half lengthwise. Cut the ice cream into fourths, lengthwise (if in a brick). Place a layer of split ladyfingers on the bottom of an ice cube tray. Top with half of the strawberry ice cream, spreading out to the edges of the ladyfingers. Repeat layers and end with a layer of ladyfingers. Freeze until firm. Remove from pan to plate. Frost with sweetened whipped cream (tinted a delicate pink with food coloring, if you wish) and garnish with fresh or frozen fruits as desired.

SOME GOOD RECIPES FOR SUMMER MEALS

HERE are two cool and delectable luncheon or supper specialties to enjoy on sizzling July and August days—Vichyssoise and a new kind of deviled egg.

The former is a chilled soup which is a blend of potato and milk, subtly seasoned with chives, and a delightful way to start a summer meal.

The creation of the Ritz-Carlton's famous chef and named in honor of his birthplace (the "soise" is pronounced "swaz," for those timid about their French), it can be made easily at home either from frozen potato soup plus fresh whole milk, or starting from scratch like this:

Vichyssoise.
Four medium potatoes, diced.
Three medium onions, sliced.
One can condensed cream of chicken soup.

One tablespoon butter or margarine.
Three and one-half cups milk.
One-fourth cup cream.
Salt and pepper.

Sour cream.
Chopped chives.
Cook potatoes and onion in small amount of boiling salted water until soft. Press through sieve into double boiler. Add chicken soup, butter, milk, cream; mix well. Heat over boiling water, stirring until blended. Season with salt and pepper.

Serve hot or icy cold. If served cold, beat until smooth before serving.

Deviled Eggs Indienne are a glamorous version of the familiar picnic and supper dish. Cottage cheese and a dash of curry make the difference.

Deviled Eggs Indienne.
Six hard-cooked eggs, halved.

Three tablespoons mayonnaise.
Three teaspoons vinegar.
One-half teaspoon dry mustard.
One teaspoon curry powder.
Three-fourths cup cottage cheese.

Salt and pepper to taste. Remove egg yolks from whites. Mash yolks; mix with remaining ingredients until well blended and fluffy. Fill egg whites with yolk mixture. Garnish with paprika.

And for another summer dish, consider this brand-new recipe developed by the National Dairy Council.

Cottage Cheese Mold.
One and one-half tablespoons gelatin.
One-half cup cold water.
Three-fourths cup cream.
Three cups creamed cottage cheese.

Soften plain gelatin in cold water five minutes. Place over hot water and stir until dissolved. Blend into the cream, which is at room temperature. Add cottage cheese, salt; also nuts if desired. Blend well. Pour into an eight- or nine-inch ring mold. Chill until firm, several hours or overnight.

When ready to serve, run a knife around edge of mold, dip mold quickly in warm water. Shake to loosen and unmold on large salad plate.

Pile mixed vegetables, marinated for 15 minutes in French dressing, or mixed fruits in the center of the ring; garnish with salad greens. Fruits or vegetables should be well drained. Yield: six to eight servings.

Place over high heat. Add fruit pectin, mix well and continue stirring until mixture comes to a full boil. Pour in the sugar, stirring constantly. Continue stirring and bring to a full rolling boil. Boil hard for one minute.

Remove from heat, skim, pour quickly into sterilized glasses. Pour paraffin over jam while hot. Yield: About seven eight-ounce glasses.

Deviled Spread.
Dip or spread—take your choice, but here's the idea: combine deviled ham with one cup creamy cottage cheese, one-fourth cup chili sauce, dash garlic salt and other seasonings to taste.

Measure sugar into a dry bowl and set aside until needed. Measure the prepared fruit into a six- to eight-quart kettle, filling the last cup or fraction with water if necessary.

One-half cup chopped blanched almonds.
Salad greens.

GIVE CREAMED EGGS THAT EXTRA FLAVOR THEY NEED

"Spicy Creamed Eggs" have just the extra touches added to plain creamed eggs that turn a run-of-the-mill recipe into an extraordinarily good one. Big pieces of elegant ripe olives, some onion, a dash of curry powder, give the eggs distinctive flavor without becoming too definitely "curried" for palates unaccustomed to that exotic spice.

Serve the eggs on hot steamed rice, add a green salad for crispness, and you have a very tasty meal.

Spicy Creamed Eggs.
One-half cup ripe olives.
Three hard-cooked eggs.
One-fourth cup thinly sliced onion.
Three tablespoons butter or margarine.
Four tablespoons flour.
One teaspoon salt.
One-eighth teaspoon black pepper.
Three-fourths teaspoon curry powder.
One and one-half cups milk.
One bouillon cube.
Steam or boiled rice.
Cut olives into quarters. Cut eggs into eighths. Cook onion slowly in butter until tender. Blend in flour, salt, pepper and curry powder. Add milk and bouillon cubes, and cook and stir until thickened. Add olives and eggs, and cook a minute longer. Serve at once on fluffy hot rice. Yield: Four servings.

CANNED HAMS BOON TO SUMMER MEALS

There are many foods today that make summertime meal preparation a breeze for the homemaker. Typical of these is the flavorful, attractive canned ham that fits into simple family meals or more elaborate company entertaining.

The canned ham is especially popular because it is thoroughly cooked as purchased so you can serve it "as is" or simply heat it for hot service.

There is also a wide range of sizes from which to choose. The canned hams range in weight from about six and three-fourth to 13 pounds or you can buy part hams that are one and one-half to five pounds. Of course, there's no waste because these hams are boneless and you can use every bit of the meat. However, do buy a top quality, branded canned ham so you'll be sure of fine flavor and texture.

When serving a canned ham, first remove from the can and scrape off the jelly to be used for gravies or sauces. For a refreshing cold meat tray, just slice the ham into one-eighth inch slices and serve with favorite accompaniments. Cold ham, either ground or in thin slices, is also a popular sandwich feature. Or you can dice left-over ham and add to a potato or vegetable salad for extra heartiness.

For hot service, place the ham fat side up on a rack in an open pan, and pour the natural jelly over it. Heat in a slow oven 10 to 15 minutes per pound, pouring the jelly over the ham several times during the heating. For special service score the fat into diamond shapes, cover with brown sugar, and brown in a hot oven. Here is a recipe for luscious peach glazed ham, topped with almonds.

970,000 MORE SHOTS OF SALK VACCINE RELEASED BY U.S.

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP)—The Public Health Service today released approximately 970,000 shots of polio vaccine produced by the Eli Lilly Co. This brings to approximately 3,968,000 shots the amount of polio approved since revised testing requirements were adopted May 26. The vaccine will be turned over to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis for distribution. The service reported meanwhile that 565 new polio cases occurred in the country for the week ended July 16. It said this represents a 40 per cent increase over the previous week, but noted the increase is not "greatly different" from those in comparative weeks over the last five years. The spot added that the number is below the figures reported for the same week in each of the years 1950 to 1954, inclusive. Defendant Helps Jury. INDEPENDENCE, Kan. (UP)—After a jury deliberated four hours and reported it could not agree on a verdict, Jefferson Davis Duree helped out. The 61-year-old defendant pleaded guilty and was sentenced to one to three years in prison for felonious possession of burglary tools.

USE OF HOLMES'S ESTATE FOR COURT HISTORY FAVORED WASHINGTON, July 21 (UP)—The Senate Rules Committee has approved a bill to use the long-winded estate of Oliver Wendell Holmes to finance a history of the Supreme Court. Holmes, who died in 1935, made the United States the beneficiary of his will. The estate of the late Supreme Court Justice is now valued at about $225,000. The bill would set up a five-man permanent committee under the Librarian of Congress. The committee would use the fund to hire one or more distinguished scholars to write and publish a history of the Supreme Court.

2 MONTREAL NIGHT CLUBS ARE WRECKED BY GANGS MONTREAL, July 21 (AP)—Unidentified gangs raided and wrecked two downtown night clubs early today in what some police officials believe is an effort to gain control of Montreal's bustling cabaret circuit. Gunfire punctuated the attacks on the All-American bar and grill and the Montmartre cafe. There were no reports of injuries. Gangs carried out similar raids early yesterday on two other clubs, El Morocco and the Downbeat.

BOMB EXPLODES OUTSIDE SCHOOL OF PERON'S PARTY

Buenos Aires Alarmed by Blast — Government Radio Denounces Rumormongers.

BUENOS AIRES, July 21 (AP)—A bomb exploded early today in front of a Peronista political school in downtown Buenos Aires, shattering windows in the vicinity and damaging a nearby automobile slightly. There was no immediate report of any persons injured. Police put a cordon around the area of the school, which gives courses in the principles and political practices of President Juan Peron's dominant Peronista party. The post-midnight blast caused widespread alarm. It came after a day and night of all sorts of rumors sparked by the announcement yesterday that the Argentine fleet had sailed on its first maneuvers since the June 16 revolt by navy and marine corps flyers. Government Broadcast. Two government communiques broadcast last night by the government radio network denounced rumormongers and asserted "the nation is tranquil." "Nothing can alter the order," one of the communiques said. "Against the false and ill intentions of the rumormongers, there is being raised an invincible wall of normality and progressive peace, and of work organized for the well-being of all Argentines." Until the bomb blast, generally normal conditions had prevailed on the streets of Buenos Aires. The only unusual activity was the posting of extra guards at federal police headquarters and a few other strategic points for a few hours before dawn yesterday. Announcement that the fleet had to put to sea immediately recalled reports just after the June revolt that dissident naval units had fled aboard two of the navy's larger ships. These reports later proved untrue. The Government said recently that the navy is completely loyal, following a reshuffling of the top naval command and the arrest of three admirals charged with masterminding the revolt. Naval authorities said the maneuvers had been planned for two months, long before the revolt. Such exercises are customary at this time of year.

Resignation of Speaker. Congressional sources reported, meanwhile, that Antonio J. Benitez resigned yesterday as speaker of the House of Deputies. Labor members of the Peronista party in the House said they were resigning their appointed or elected posts in Congress, but keeping their legislative seats. Peron last week called for changes in his political party's organization. He said the revolutionary era of his administration had ended and that the tasks of running the nation's political activities would be turned over to political organizations. He also called for an ouster of party members who have grown slack in their jobs. A report from Montevideo, Uruguay, said Pan American and KLM airlines had canceled flights from there to Buenos Aires yesterday, giving as the reason that the weather over Argentina was bad. Reports from the Argentine capital said good weather prevailed there. Rumors circulated in Rio de Janeiro yesterday that President Peron had resigned and that a bomb had been found in the Argentine war ministry. A check with Buenos Aires disclosed no substantiation. ABSENTEE BALLOT BILL GOES TO HOUSE WITH SENATE OK WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP)—Thousands of United States voters now serving overseas could vote in next year's election by absentee ballot under a plan approved by the Senate yesterday and sent back to the House. The measure asks—but does not compel—states to simplify existing provisions for absentee voting for federal, state and local elections. A post-card form to obtain a ballot and Government payment of air-mail costs for its printing, distribution and return are among features of the legislation. In addition to members of the armed forces serving overseas and their dependents, the legislation lists the Merchant Marine, civilian Government employees and religious and welfare groups serving with the armed forces.

MARKET DAMAGED BY FIRE A fire which broke out last night in the rear of Mickey's Super Market, 5903 Southwest avenue, caused damage estimated at $5000 to contents and $2000 to the building. Firemen said the blaze originated behind a refrigerator but could not determine what caused it. Smoke and water damage totaling $400 was caused at a cleaning and dyeing establishment at 5905 Southwest and a hardware store at 5907 Southwest.

WATERVLIET, Mich. (AP)—Dwight Brink, Michigan's Rural School Teacher of the Year, disputes the idea that some children don't like school. RED CHINESE START WORK ON FIRST YANGTZE BRIDGE

TOKYO, July 21 (AP)—The Peiping radio said today that work began Monday on the first bridge across the Yangtze river.

A broadcast recorded here said pilings were being driven at Wuhan—the tri-city Hankow-Hanyang-Wuchang district in central China. The Communists expect to finish the bridge in three or four years.

The broadcast did not give dimensions, but the Yangtze at Wuhan is about a mile wide.

Previous broadcasts have said the bridge will be built high over the river so ocean-going ships can pass beneath.

The structure will be a double-decker road and railway bridge.
When completed, it will provide a direct railway link between North and South China.

RIOTERS SHOOT AT PRO-FRENCH MOROCCO CHIEF

Pasha of Marrakech Attacked as He Ends
Visit With Resident General.

MARRAKECH, French Morocco, July 21 (AP)—Demonstrators blocked the car of the powerful old pro-French Pasha of Marrakech, Thami el Glaoui, today and fired a shot at him.

Unhurt, the fiery Berber chieftain in his 80s—climbed out and tried to shoot back with his carbine but French police prevented him.

Moroccan police opened fire on the crowd and injured several persons. Finally the way was cleared and the Pasha was driven

France's new resident general in Morocco, Gilbert Grandval, who was making his first official visit to this city of 200,000 at the foot of the Atlas mountains.
Grandval's arrival aroused widespread excitement throughout the city. Demonstrators shouted "Ben Youssef! Ben Yousef!" at him, referring to the former Sultan, Sidi Mohammed Ben Youssef, whom the French deposed in 1953 because of his nationalist leanings.

Moroccan police killed two demonstrators in a crowd which set fire to a tobacco shop.

El Glaoui is the leader of the warlike Berber tribesmen who live in Morocco's Atlas mountains, behind Marrakech. A staunch supporter of French rule, he is hated by the ardent Arab nationalists who congregate mostly in the protectorate's cities.

The nationalist hatred has been particularly bitter since the Pasha in 1953 pressured the French into deposing Ben Yousef. In Ben Youssef's place the French put his aged uncle, Moulah Mohammed Ben Araf, who El Glaoui and his Berber tribal chieftains previously had designated.

El Glaoui escaped assassination in February 1954, when three grenades were tossed into a mosque in Marrakech while he and others were praying there.

A member of the Pasha's party and an aid to the imam of the mosque were killed.

There were reports yesterday in Casablanca that French officials are planning to depose Ben Araf.

Appeal Made to Hammarskjold to Help End Crisis
UNITED NATIONS, July 21 (AP)—The Arab-Asian group in the United Nations appealed yesterday to Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold to use his good offices at the Big Four meeting to end what it called the "grave situation in Morocco."

The group of 15 countries also decided to place the trouble in that French North African protectorate and in Algeria before the tenth U.N. General Assembly, convening here Sept. 20.

Morocco has been before the U.N. in previous assemblies, but the Arab-Asian group has not pressed for a U.N. decision in the hope France would act to settle the difficulties. The French have always refused to discuss the Moroccan situation here, on the ground it is a domestic matter.

MANY INJURIES REPORTED IN ECUADOR EARTHQUAKE

QUITO, July 21 (AP)—Numerous persons were reported injured yesterday in a sharp earthquake in north central

Interior Minister Cesar Plaza Giron reported the towns of Cotacachi and Atuntaqui were damaged heavily. He said there were "numerous" injuries but had no estimate of the number.
Cotacachi, a town of 4200 persons 46 miles north of Quito, was described as the epicenter of the quake. The tremor was felt here.

Rules Committee.

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP)—Representative Jesse P. Wolcott of Michigan, senior Republican on the House Banking Committee, said today he will press a substitute housing bill with no provision for public housing.

Wolcott's plans may force some action soon on a Banking Committee housing bill that has been bottled up in the House Rules Committee for several weeks.

If Congress should adjourn without doing anything on the subject, the Government's program of insuring mortgages for private dwellings would be forced to a halt.

Chairman Spence (Dem.), Kentucky, in a separate interview repeated that he will fight any move to circumvent the bill the Banking Committee approved by a substantial margin.

Representative Melvin Price (Dem.), Illinois, said it "definitely is not" his intention to "bottle up" bills designed to speed construction of this nation's first atomic-powered merchant ship. Price heads a subcommittee to which the parent Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee yesterday shunted all bills dealing with such ships.

Peace Ship Rejected.
The full committee did this after again rejecting 11 to 5 an attempt to send to the Senate floor for action Mr. Eisenhower's atomic "peace ship" proposal. A 12-10 vote then sent all pending atomic merchant ship bills to Price's subcommittee on research and development.

Lewis Strauss, head of the Atomic Energy Commission, says cuts in the agency's budget voted by Congress would force a slowdown in the production of weapons materials.

The Atomic Energy Committee has promised to seek an added $101,000,000 for the AEC. Other members of Congress said the AEC appropriation bill, already enacted into law, was inadvertently reduced more than was intended.

The Senate Appropriations Committee, considering a miscellaneous bill to which new atomic funds can be added, heard a plea for such action yesterday from Strauss.

With more than a dozen witnesses scheduled, the House Rules Committee hoped today to wind up a hearing on a request to clear the Upper Colorado project bill for floor action. If the request is denied, the bill will be stalled at least until the next session of Congress.

The hearing started yesterday, but due to floor action on minimum wage legislation only two witnesses were heard—Chairman Clair Engle (Dem.), California, of the House Interior Committee and Representative Wayne N. Aspinall (Dem.), Colorado, chairman of the Reclamation subcommittee.

Congress completed action yesterday on a bill providing $2,373,516,500 to run the Labor and Welfare departments in the current fiscal year. The amount is about $600,000,000 less than the President had requested.

About $1,900,000,000 of the total is earmarked for the Welfare Department and the remainder for the Labor Department.

The House Judiciary Committee approved, after materially amending, legislation already passed by the Senate to compensate those who suffered losses in the 1947 Texas City disaster.

More than 570 persons were killed and 3500 injured when ships loaded with ammonium nitrate fertilizer exploded and burned April 16 and 17, 1947. Property losses ran into millions of dollars.

The effect of the action by the House Committee was to take care of "the little fellow."

The Senate passed by voice vote a bill more than doubling the amount of surplus farm commodities the Government may sell for foreign currencies. It raised the authorized total from $700,000,000 worth to $1,500,000,000 worth in a bill amending the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act passed by Congress last year.

The measure, which now goes to the House, also gives the Secretary of Agriculture authority to determine the commodities to be sold and the countries with whom agreements shall be negotiated.

STEER LOSES 250 POUNDS

ORD, Nebr. (INS)—A steer on the Henry Lange farm, near Ord, survived nearly 30 days without food or water this summer while trapped in an eight-foot dry wash. The critter, found after a four-week search, had dropped in weight from 600 pounds to 350 pounds.

EFFORT TO GET BACK SON OF JAPANESE ACTOR FAILS

TOKYO, July 21 (AP)—Agents for comedy actor Tony Tani of films and television tried a midnight ransom pay-off last night but failed to make contact with those holding Tani's 6-year-old son, police reported today.

Following instructions in a telephone call, Tani's secretary and a friend went to a rendezvous at a suburban Tokyo bus stop. They waited an hour without any contact.

There were reports yesterday that phone call offers had been made to reduce the original 2,000,000 yen ($5555) ransom demand to 500,000 yen ($1389) and then to 300,000 yen ($834) because the boy was ill with dysentery. Tani's son last was seen last Friday when he walked away from his school with an unidentified man.

15 Minutes on KETC

Possum Trot Farm Visits the City Via TV

By Leonard Hall

LAST Friday evening I stood in front of a rail fence out in KETC's television studio and talked for 15 minutes about farm ponds. On the wall were photographs of our Big Pond and the 10-acre watershed that feeds it.

On a nearby table was a small container in which swam a couple of tiny largemouth bass and bluegills, while a handful of cat-tails completed the properties for the program.

If anyone had told me a few months ago that it would require well over 60 hours of time on the part of a dozen people to create and produce a thing as simple as this, I'd have laughed at them. For farm ponds are something with which I am fairly familiar. We've built seven of them of varying sizes and for various purposes at Possum Trot. Especially at the Big Pond we've spent long hours at all seasons, picnicking and fishing and just observing the many forms of wildlife that use it. And I've written about all of these.

The trouble is that familiarity with a subject doesn't make a television program. We read not long ago a discussion of the problem of securing talent to fill all the TV time that goes on the air. A producer was asked where it was possible to find enough good writers, actors, directors and technical staff to do the job. "Enough good talent," he replied. "Why—there isn't even enough mediocre talent to turn out all the shows we must have."

THIS PROBLEM IS CREATED BY THE VOLUME, immediacy and transience of television. Before one show is finished, you're hard at work planning the next; while each show fills just a few minutes in a week during which nearly every moment must be filled. Moreover, except in the rarest of instances, once the individual program has been seen by the viewer, it is far more completely finished than yesterday's newspaper. But the hardest thing for anyone inexperienced in the medium is to understand this matter of the time and effort involved to create and produce even the simplest program.

I'm sure that in this regard, there's little difference between commercial and educational television. The latter, however, has certain obligations that hardly apply to the commercial program which must satisfy the sponsor and entertain the viewer. Educational television involves a sort of "mutual learning process" in which both those who produce it and those who see it are involved; and this is true of the "in school" program and those created as a service to the public at large. If the programs do not involve this learning process, there is no excuse for them and little reason for the station to exist. But the programs must also be interesting enough to build and hold an audience or, again, the producers will have failed in their task.

THE GENERAL THEME OF OUR PART OF KETC'S NATURE SERIES, which we call "Almanac," is simple enough. It is that all men are a part of the great community of Nature; and that man's eventual survival depends upon how well he helps maintain the harmony and equilibrium of this community. Each week we try to show some simple aspect of this relationship and something of the way in which the whole community operates. Thus a good many hours were spent before the program started in deciding on the theme and on aspects of it which might be interesting enough to present. But at this point, the real work has just begun.

Each weekend following the week's program, I rough in a lot of general ideas for the subject of the following week. Then on Monday or Tuesday, Mayo Simon and Martin Schneider who produce the show drive down to the farm. We hike out through the woods or along the creek or across the fields and, as we go, I propound all the ideas and make all the observations possible on the subject at hand. Gradually, as we discuss these, the most vital or dramatic points begin to come into focus; and we agree that around these the program will be built. Then we try to select one or two simple visual objects which will help dramatize it.

ALL THAT REMAINS NOW is to set down the final ideas and edit them for interest and timing; and to find and collect the visual objects. This is a task which I must fit into the rest of the week between even more important tasks of farming and writing. On Friday I drive to the city at about noon and we spend several hours at the studio, trying to round out the show so it will be as effective as possible. The ultimate responsibility here, of course, actually lies with the producer. Finally, at 10 o'clock the show goes on the air and is over before we know it, certainly before there's time to think of all the things we might have done to make it better. This generally comes in a half-hour session of skull practice afterward.

Educational television, it seems to me, is the extreme outpost in a relatively new medium which itself is a frontier in the art of communication. The task of educational television is largely experimental. It is not only to create and put on film the so-called "in-school" programs for the classroom. It is also to explore the possibilities of television as a means of increasing knowledge at all levels. Thus it can take the farmer into the city, the city dweller out to the country, the stay-at-home into far places and the politically uninformed into the councils of government. It can explore the fields of drama and music and literature—and do many other things. And all along the way, it can teach. To do this, it needs all the creative talent it can find—plus the backing of communities and schools and individuals who have the interest and courage to explore and innovate.

Try and Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

THERE'S a tough supervisor with a voice like a forghorn in a California airplane factory who has his crew of workmen thoroughly cowed. A couple of softies from the East are particularly scared of him. One morning a minor earthquake shook the plant. While the startled workers were discussing the tremor, the super sneaked up behind them and roared: "Back to work, you varmints, or I'll do it again!"

FOUR-YEAR-OLD LAD had stayed too long on the beach, and was brought home with a sizzler of a sunburn. In due course it reached the peeling stage. The torrid tyke was observed studying himself intently in the mirror and muttering, "Only 4—and wearing out already!"

THE DOCTOR AT A summer resort gave a tourist a hasty checkup and said, "Give up red meats and raw fruits. They're awful for you." Next day the tourist felt worse and rushed to the same doctor who didn't recognize him. This time the doc advised, "What you need is more red meat and raw fruits."

"But, doctor," protested the tourist, "you told me just the opposite yesterday."

"So what!" said the medic. "You'd be amazed how science has progressed in the past 24 hours!"

Delicious Ears, Tails and Tongues

Variety Meats Are Rich in Nutritive Value—They're Also Good Eating

By Hoyt Alden

FOR no good reason, as we have been declaiming lately, a lot of Americans wrinkle their noses at the idea of eating what are known as variety meats. Yet tripe, kidneys, tongue, hearts, sweetbreads and so forth are not only rich in nutritive value but, when properly prepared, provide some of the best eating on the animal.

Liver, sweetbreads, heart, tongue and tripe have almost as much protein as steak, as much or more calcium, and nearly all of them are higher in vitamin B and niacin.

We've already written in recent articles about sweetbreads and hearts and kidneys. There's not much use going into things like pigs' ears, because it is highly doubtful if anything I could say would persuade anyone to try them. But if anyone should want to, scald the ears, simmer them until tender, brown them in fat with a large fried onion. Then add some flour, salt and pepper, and simmer them for an hour in a cup of the liquid they were boiled in.

Bed them down on a large plate of noodles and see for yourself. Then you might try pigs' feet and sauerkraut, a classic old dish. Just scrub the feet in cold water, then cover them with salt water and let them simmer two or three hours until they're tender. Bed them in a bowl of cooked kraut and you'll see why they're highly regarded in many quarters.

THE oxtail is one of the most under-rated of the variety meats. No one can appreciate this fact until they've tasted a good purchase of braised oxtails.

First get two oxtails and have them disjointed in fairly small pieces. Wash them and wipe them dry and dredge them with flour seasoned with salt and pepper. Then heat two tablespoons of grease in a heavy stewpot or an iron skillet with a cover and brown the oxtails thoroughly over low heat. When they're about half browned add one cup of chopped onions.

IT'S HARD TO GET ANYONE TO TRY PIGS' EARS.

Then when they're browned, add two cups of tomato juice, a minced clove of garlic, two slices of lemon, one bayleaf, a fourth teaspoon of allspice, a cup of chopped celery, a half cup of chopped potatoes and a half cup of chopped carrots.

Cook the whole works over low heat for three to four hours. Add water if necessary. The vegetables should cook to a puree, making delicious gravy. Put the meat on a heated platter, skim the fat off the gravy, thicken it a little if you want, season it to taste and pour it over the meat. There isn't a lot of meat in oxtails, but what there is, is tender and delicious. One of the best soups on the list, and one that makes a whole meal, is country squire oxtail soup. Serve it up with plenty of toasted crackers, a chef's salad and a dessert, and you've got a wonderful meal.

Like this: Have two oxtails disjointed in short pieces, wash them well and roll them in flour seasoned with salt and pepper. Brown them in fat in a heavy pot, then add a couple of cloves of minced garlic, a couple of bay leaves and two cups of water.

Let it simmer for three hours. Then skim off the fat and remove all the meat from the bones. Put the meat back in the broth and add six cups of water, a half teaspoon of thyme, three chopped stalks of celery, leaves and all; a cup of diced carrots, a half cup of chopped onion and one large leek cut in one-inch pieces. Let it all simmer until the vegetables are tender, which will take about half an hour. Then blot the surface of the liquid with a paper towel to get the remaining fat. You don't want this soup to be greasy. Then add and stir in a fourth of a cup of catsup. Pour it into hot bowls and sprinkle a little chopped parsley on each, and you have something.

SMOKED TONGUE is good, but I'm a man who likes boiled fresh tongue, well seasoned. For some reason a lot of women will order tongue sandwiches in a restaurant, but they go into a tizzy if friend husband brings home a fresh tongue and suggests she cook it. Handling it like it was electric eel, she throws it in a pot of water, boils it and serves it up, and it isn't good for anything except possibly as a weapon to hit the wife over the head with.

Here's how to fix a tongue: Wash it well and put it in a large kettle and cover it with water. Add one large sliced onion, two celery tops, four sprigs of parsley, two carrots quartered the long way, a fourth teaspoon of bruised peppercorns, two whole cloves and a teaspoon of salt. Bruise the peppercorns and the cloves.

Let it simmer for two and a half to three hours until it's tender. That, of course, is for a beef tongue which will weigh three to four pounds. Pork, veal and lamb tongues take only about 30 minutes.

If the tongue is to be served cold, let it cool in the liquid. Then skin it in strips from the root to the tip. Cut out the root and throat portions, and then carve it in thin, diagonal slices. It can be served either hot or cold, and is delicious with horseradish or mustard.

A wonderful meal to build around might be baked stuffed potatoes, creamed spinach, hot rolls and a fresh fruit pie.

The Need for Qualities of Citizenship

By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK. CONTINUING our discussion on prisoners of war, I have read in the Saturday Evening Post that R. Adm. D. V. Gallery said "we should tell our children... they may sign any document the Communists want them to, or appear on TV and deliver any script the Reds hand them." In saying that, he probably felt that if this was understood beforehand by the Reds might have to say would have no effect and, therefore, there would be little use in the Reds trying to make them do these particular things.

On the other hand, Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd said "The F.W. says a statement of an extension of the battlefield where they must be taught to carry on the struggle with the only weapons remaining—faith and courage."

FROM MY point of view Gen. Shepherd's program is the better one, but men can't be expected to learn what he suggests while they are being given Army training. They must have a background of real understanding as to why being a citizen of the United States is something to be cherished, something for which we are willing to live and die, something which has given each one of us a heritage that we know about and understand and that we would not change for anything else that can be offered to us in the world.

BEFORE LEAVING for the summit meetings in Geneva, President Eisenhower asked this nation of prayer for success. And in every church, I am sure, regardless of denomination, prayers were offered for success last Sunday.

But what is it we hope will come out of these meetings? A decision on the part of all powers that war is suicidal and, therefore, can no longer be indulged in?

Yes, but beyond that we are hopeful that there will be an acceptance at this meeting of the right of every individual to choose his way of life, his government and to do so without

Let's Explore Your Mind

1. THERE IS A PARTICULAR AGE WHEN WOMEN TEACHERS ARE UNHAPPY. TRUE ☐ FALSE ☐ 7-21

Answer to Question 1. APPARENTLY, yes. Psychologist Leigh Peck studied the personalities of 100 teachers and found that between the ages of 26 and 30, more of them were unhappy and maladjusted than at any other age—some in need of psychological counsel. He thought this was because in those years women teachers have difficult decisions to make about marriage, securing permanent positions, etc. The other hardest year was their first year of teaching.

Answer to Question 2. Yes. Psychologist Richard Centers found that persons in any occupation where they can wear good clothes do work that is considered socially important class themselves as "workers," not "laborers." White-collar workers think it is absurd to be called "laborers" and consider themselves as "workers." Psychological attitudes set people off in classes and profoundly affect what they will do in asserting what they think are their "rights" and "interests."

Answer to Question 3. Yes. By imagining your heart is beating faster or slower, you can raise or lower its rate seven beats per minute. You can feel the ends of your fingers tingling. If you try hard enough. That is why worry has such intense effect on your health and in time changes some of your bodily functions. Imagine you are very angry at someone and tell him where to get off, and you will feel your pulse jump in five seconds.

As an individual, that all that is done is to increase the well-being of the people of our country, will give an assurance and an incentive which will help to create faith and courage.

The basic qualities develop from early youth; without having those qualities and the understanding that must back them, taking the Army oath can have little meaning.

The Army is right that men who lack decency and loyalty to their country and their fellow compatriots deserve punishment, but I wish it could be constructive punishment, with the hope held out for rehabilitation along the way.

The Hill Spirit

By Hal Boyle

GATLINBURG, Tenn., July 21 (AP).

"I SAYING hill folk live with dignity, I feel that I am not making a misstatement, for indeed they do." So said a woman here of whom I inquired what peculiar virtues mountain people have.

HAL BOYLE

up building the pioneer Mountain View Hotel. It lies here in a cup in the hills, now one of America's leading summer resorts.

Jack loved the mountains and didn't want to lean on his pappy. So he decided he'd build a lodge of his own atop Le Conte, one of the highest peaks in the Great Smokies, then reachable only by footpath. This was before the Federal Government took over the area and made it into one of the nation's most popular public parks.

JACK BUILT THE LODGE largely with supplies he toted up first on his own back, then on the backs of horses. He now has enough cabins there to sleep 48 people overnight comfortably. Ernie Pyle figured in 1940 that Jack had climbed some 15,000 miles in creating his mountain eyrie. During most of his trips up the seven and one-half mile journey he shouldered a 50-pound pack.

His description of the magnificent view at the top of the peak intrigued his mother. She was crippled. Jack built a special-back chair, and put his mother on it. She weighed more than 90 pounds, but her son carried her up the steep slopes with her favorite kitten sitting purring in her lap.

He thought it was a privilege to do this for his mother, not a hardship. But it still has left him with a deep regret. For the weather turned bad. His mother spent several days on the peak and her rheumatism finally forced her to come down again, and she later died, never having seen the sun rise or set from the peak that Jack loved.

HER SON has never forgotten. Jack doesn't pack supplies up the trail on his back anymore. His father died four years ago, and now he has to run the big prosperous hotel here in town.

He worries about the service... says it's hard to find people anymore who want to do a job right just because they feel that's the way a job should be done.

Jack takes his exercise now golfing... his doctor tells him his heart isn't what it was 20 years ago. But his spirit is, and now it's valley-bound. He makes plenty of money, I would guess, but his eyes shine when he talks about the past, and they dull when he talks about the present.

He is a tall, lean, big-eared, courteous, friendly man hungry for yesterday, lonesome for the youthful prime when his mind was free and all his troubles were on his back. He misses climbing, going uphill, building in a new place.

WHEN I ASKED HIM about the mountain top, he said: "Up there you never find two days the same. It changes. You can see far. Every moment is different."

Growing older and wealthier in the town below, Jack Huff remembers being happier younger and higher up.

But hereabouts he will always be honored because he once carried his mother up a stony road to watch a sunset she never lived to see. It gives him a respect beyond any bank account.

Freedom at Last for Canadian Flyer

Communists Release Him After Two Years—He Tells of Living With 3 Captured Americans

Fifth and final installment of Canadian Air Force Squadron Leader A. R. MacKenzie's dramatic account of the treatment he endured during the two years he was a prisoner of the Chinese Communists.

ONE day, after about three weeks of working on the statement I had agreed to give to the Chinese, and as it was nearing its final form, the prison commanding officer came to see me.

"There is one thing I must tell you," I said to him. "In my statement I have said that I was shot down over China and I am quite willing to go along with this, but I must warn you that this statement may not stand up. While in custody in Korea I contacted three American flyers who were with me at the same time. These men are probably back in the United States now, and consequently they will say that I was shot down over Korea and not over China."

The officer was visibly disturbed. "We will have to do something about this," he said nervously and rushed out.

In about 10 minutes the interpreter came back with my statement. "Tell me about this change in your statement which you were discussing with the commanding officer," he said.

I told him that I had been captured five miles south of the Yalu river near the Suhoo reservoir in North Korea.

"All right, put that down," he said, "if it is true."

I said: "Fine. But how do I get from being shot down five miles west and two miles north of the Suhoo reservoir to a point five miles south of it? In other words, how did I get shot down in China and picked up in Korea?"

He replied quickly, "Well, you actually did it. You tell me how you did it." This completely confused me. We bickered back and forth. I was waiting for a hint. I suggested that perhaps the wind had blown me, although I knew that the wind at the time was from the southwest. But he seized on this and said:

"Yes, I imagine that helped you. But what else did you do?" After another 15 minutes of jockeying, I finally asked, "Did I slip my parachute?"

He said: "Well, of course, you must have slipped your parachute. You know what you did."

But even this wasn't sufficient. "Tell me now what you did as soon as your parachute opened?" he asked. "How did you know the direction to slip?"

"I had looked down, seen the Yalu river, looked for the sun, knew by the sun which direction was south, and reached up with both hands and pulled down the parachute cords on the south side," I said. I held this out of my chute down during the whole descent from 40,000 feet, and in this manner I managed to slip approximately 12 miles from China into Korea.

This story pleased him very much, although I was amazed that anyone in his right mind would accept such nonsense. In the first place, I had no oxygen and was very weak. I had been almost unable to raise my hands above my head when I bailed out of my fighter, much less have strength enough to have

"We were taken back to our cells to pack up our clothing now commenced eight months of comparatively relaxed living. held the parachute cords down for the 15 minutes it took me to descend.

For several days after that the reading material given me changed. It now referred to germ warfare. There were writings by the Red Dean of Canterbury, magazines and newspapers containing excerpts of "confessions" by United States Air Force and Marine officers. I realized immediately the Chinese were after a new angle.

Four days later the interpreter came back. The minute he walked into the cell, I confronted him.

"I know what you are after now," I said. "You are never satisfied. Now you are on the germ warfare angle. If I die here, I'll never give you that because I could never live with my wife and children after that."

Then for the first time, I lost complete control and seemed to go berserk—running around the room crying and laughing at the same time, and banging my head against the wall. My outburst seemed to unnerv the interpreter. He grabbed me, sat me down on the bed.

"YOU are worrying unnecessarily," he said. "Don't never do this and your conscience is clear, then you have no worries. These people whose statements you have read have actually done this. They have told the truth!"

He went out and the next day returned with the statement finally approved and now cut down to seven pages. He told me I was to copy out the statement word for word, in my best handwriting, with a minimum of errors. I took two days to do it, rewriting it three times before he was satisfied. I ended the statement by signing my name and the date.

About three weeks later, on April 8, 1954, I was taken from my cell into a large interrogation room where I found my three American companions. They were Capt. Harold E. Fischer, of Swea City, Ia., Lt. Lyle W. Cameron of Lincoln, Neb., and Lt. Roland Parks, of Omaha, Neb., three of the four American pilots who were finally released on May 31 last.

The senior officer addressed us in this manner: "The time has now come when the four of you from now on will, I hope, live happily together. We will do everything possible to improve your conditions and make you have a happy life while you are here. We have special rules and regulations which will be read to you. You will each be supplied with a copy. When you return to your area you will find that already improvements have started. That is all I have to say to you."

We were taken back to our cells to pack up our clothing now commenced eight months of comparatively relaxed living. After the endless months of solitary we were like a bunch of schoolboys in our exuberance. You can't imagine what this meant to us—especially to me—to be able to talk to fellows I had known and, after the periods during which I hadn't even been allowed to rise from bed, to be able to move around freely, and bring them all into one of the vacant cells, which was to be our dormitory. My cell became our clubroom (by the time we had returned there was already a pin-pong table there); Fischer's cell became the library, and Parks' and Cameron's cell (they had been living together) was turned into a mess hall. Doors were left open and we had full run of our area. There

Next morning our captors brought in crepe paper and glue, and told us to decorate the rooms. We were eager to work, just to have something to do. The identical words the senior officer had said to me, followed by this statement:

"The rest of you will probably ask why MacKenzie is being released and you are not. At this time all we can answer is that it is the decision of our high authorities."

AS THE commanding officer announced that I was to be released, my three companions jumped up, crowded around me, shook my hand and congratulated me. They were overjoyed that I was being released but I knew that they felt as I did, depressed and bitter that they, too, were not being freed.

We held a small farewell dinner to which our captors brought special food, two bottles of beer and a bottle of white wine. For the first time one of the interpreters sat down at the table with us. After the meal I packed a few things, and faced my companions to say goodbye. We shook hands all round.

Even though I was excited and happy to be going home, I must admit that I was downcast as I looked back over my shoulder and saw them waving a last farewell.

the next few months that Lt. Col. Edwin Heller, formerly commanding officer of the 116th Fighter Squadron, was in a hospital near us. Heller was one of the four pilots released on May 31. The Chinese allowed us to write and to receive letters from him. He told us that he had had four bone-grafting operations on a broken leg, that his progress after the fourth and final operation was encouraging and he hoped he would come to live with us soon. His cast was removed Sept. 28, but up to the time I was released he had not arrived.

Our routine had now become regular and fixed. Most of our daily conversation centered around when we would be released and what we would do when we got home. On Nov. 1, about 50 pounds of parcels arrived and we had a huge feast.

On Nov. 27, we were sitting around the library when the captain of the guards (the Chinese did not call them guards, but working personnel) came in and instructed me to button up my pilot jacket, put my hat on and follow him. This was always an indication that some senior officer wanted to see us.

The first officer whom I encountered was: What do they want now? I was taken out into another building, which was used as a sort of administration headquarters, and into a small room.

As I entered the door I saw the senior officer, whom I encountered many times before, sitting behind a desk. For a change he had a rather pleasant look on his face.

I was directed to sit down on a chair in front of the desk. At his side sat an interpreter and the prison commanding officer. I sat tensely for a moment or two, and then the senior officer began to speak. He said:

"MacKenzie, you have been a prisoner of the Chinese people for almost two years. You have been held for a crime of invading the sacred air of China, to which you yourself have confessed. During this period we have been investigating your case. We have now decided to release you."

As he said the word "release" I felt tears come into my eyes, and the only words I could utter were, "Thank you."

"You will return," he said, "to your quarters to prepare yourself for your journey, and you will leave here in approximately two hours."

My head was in a whirl. Accompanied by the commanding officer and the interpreter, I returned to our quarters. My companions were summoned to the library where the commanding officer read from a slip of paper the identical words the senior officer had said to me, followed by this statement:

AS THE commanding officer announced that I was to be released, my three companions jumped up, crowded around me, shook my hand and congratulated me. They were overjoyed that I was being released but I knew that they felt as I did, depressed and bitter that they, too, were not being freed.

Even though I was excited and happy to be going home, I must admit that I was downcast as I looked back over my shoulder and saw them waving a last farewell.

I was taken outside, placed in a jeep and driven to a railway station. We were four in number—the officer in charge, an interpreter, a guard and myself. We got on a train, traveled for four days and four nights to Canton, where we stayed at a small refugees' hotel for another four days.

We left at 8 o'clock on the morning of last Dec. 5 for the Hong Kong border by train. At the border line there were Red Chinese troops on one side, about 30 feet of neutral territory with barbed wire on both sides, and on the other side the Hong Kong police.

As we walked toward the border, my traveling companions expressed their happiness that I was returning to my wife and children, and that in the traditional form would I wave them a farewell half-way into the neutral territory.

I said I would and shook hands with them all and walked away. When I reached the half-way point, I turned and waved to them. They waved back.

A few paces more and I was in the arms of my brother-in-law, Royal Canadian Air Force Wing Commander Don Skene. He and the chief of the Hong Kong police had been waiting for me. We embraced warmly.

After an imprisonment that began on Dec. 5, 1952, when my plane was shot down over North Korea, I was free at last.

Mid-Summer Holidays For St. Louis Families

By Margaret Allen Ruhl

HOT, HUMID DAYS in St. Louis have speeded travel plans for many families who spend their summers elsewhere. Among the most recent to depart were Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon Brookings Wallace, 100 Sunningdale avenue, St. Louis Country Club grounds, who with their daughter, Miss Audrey (Tollie), and son, Mahlon B. III, have gone to Harbor Point, Mich., for the rest of the season. They left here Tuesday.

At the Homestead, Hot Springs, Va., which always has a full quota of St. Louis guests, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Elliot, 35 Westmoreland place, and her daughter, Miss Georgia, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Bascom, 52 Portland place, are ensigned for the summer. They plan to be away until mid-September.

Across the continent at Pebble Beach, Calif., Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Johnson, 38 Portland place, and their daughter, Irene, are at their summer home, as is their custom.

Mr. and Mrs. George S. Roubush, 6316 Washington boulevard, University City, are on a Caribbean cruise. With their daughters, Miss Susan and Mary, and their son, George Jr., they left here earlier in the month for a five-week stay in San Juan, Puerto Rico, and on short flights to nearby islands.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Riesmeyer have returned to their home, 4624 Pershing avenue, after a trip East. They went to Nantucket, Mass., for the wedding June 25 of Miss Wendy Evans Thorsen, daughter of Mrs. Evans Dame, Boston, to Richard Camman Gifford of New York, and the reception afterward at Dunover, summer home of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Gwynne Evans of St. Louis.

Later the Riesmeyers stopped briefly in Andover, Mass., to visit Mrs. Donald McDonald, formerly of St. Louis, and accompany her to her summer home on Governor's Island, Hampstead, N.H., where they were her guests. In Rye Beach, N.H., they saw their young granddaughter, Wendy Riesmeyer, at the home of her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William O. Shock. The Shocks bought an old house in Rye Beach last year and have remodeled it into an attractive summer place.

Mrs. Richard S. Hawes left St. Louis a few days ago to spend the summer at La Valencia Hotel in La Jolla, Calif. Her son, Millard Watts Smith, and his family live in La Jolla; her daughter, Mrs. Robert Osborne, the former Miss Martha Corbin Smith of St. Louis, lives in Phoenix, Ariz., but will spend part of the summer in La Jolla.

Mrs. William Dee Becker departed Saturday with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence H. Stern, and their daughters, Joanne and Judith, twins, for Colorado. They will spend the next three weeks at Phantom Valley Ranch, 12 miles from Grand Lake, where they vacationed last year.

Mrs. Becker returned a few weeks ago from Savner, Wis., where she was the guest of Mrs. Walter J. Knight at her cottage on Lost Lake. Later in the season she plans to visit in Highlands, N.C.

Martha Carr's

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF. OPINION

Dear Martha:

MY brother is an invalid and is so cranky and hard to get along with that my life isn't a happy one. Our parents are dead and we make our home together. I work downtown every day and rush right home to prepare dinner. He never wants any company and makes it impossible for me to bring guests home. A few months ago I met a man I had known some years ago. He has been married but his wife died and he has moved back to St. Louis to work. He has been taking me to lunch—I haven't told my brother about it—and has been talking about my marrying some day. He is kind and thoughtful and I know we could be happy together, but I don't dare mention his name or my brother would make it so difficult for me that I would just give up and put him out of my life. Please help me.

MEG.

You certainly have a right to be with your friends, but if your brother is so ill that he can't enjoy company at all, it would be better to meet them elsewhere. Your concern for him, however, doesn't mean you have to be a slave. You should have the right to marry and lead your own life, although this right doesn't relieve you of the problem of your brother's care. Perhaps adjoining apartments, a duplex, or a nurse-companion for him would be the answer. If this man really cares for you he will understand your dilemma and make some sacrifice to permit you to give attention to your brother, and work out a solution that will mean happiness for you without neglecting either one.

Dear Martha:

MY HUSBAND has been out of work for several weeks and can't seem to find another job. He has become gloomy and irritable and will hardly talk with me about it, although he does go out and try to find work every day. I have been trying to persuade him to let me get a job but he won't do it and gets mad when I suggest it. What can I do? We have to eat.

MISERABLE.

Yes, the money has to be provided in some way, but in order to keep his spirits up and make him know you have faith in him, don't insist on getting a job unless it's absolutely necessary. Cut down on expenses without letting him know. Make him feel like a failure, unable to provide for his family, and he'll have a harder time than ever selling his abilities to a potential employer. However, keep watching the papers for jobs he might handle. Suggest he go to the Missouri State Employment Service. Or, if he thinks he might have talents in another field, suggest he make an appointment with the Vocational Counseling Service of Greater St. Louis, 3936 Lindell boulevard, OLIVE 2-6500. He might then be encouraged to apply for work he has never before considered.

IN ANSWER TO BETSY: Those who receive invitations to wedding receptions send a gift if they accept, but need not send one if they regret. However, if they are close friends of either family, they probably will wish to send a gift whether or not they can attend.

What to Wear

By Louise Trescott

IT is only good sense to prepare for a vacation with all possible foresight. Questions on Canadian vacations flow in constantly. The popularity of Banff, Lake Louise and nearby Canadian parks increases yearly. But they are not much fun if you haven't comfortable clothes. Some warm things are essential, especially in the case of Mrs. W., who writes from the West Coast.

"We expect to motor north in August, sticking to the coast pretty much until we cross into Canada. I am familiar with what we will need for that part of the trip.

"But we have reservations at a ski lodge near Lake Louise for three days in the middle of the month. We expect to take a trip from there to the Columbian Ice Fields and Jasper Park. I have had varying reports on what we should wear. How cold is it and what should we plan to wear?"

GENERAL DAYTIME TEMPERATURES in August around Lake Louise average in the 70s, falling to 45 at night. As you go farther north they drop a little more. Your rooms at the lodge are not likely to be cozy heated, so warm sleeping things and robes would be very welcome.

Wear reasonably warm clothes, as heavy cottons or lightweight wools for the trip to Ice Fields and Jasper. Take extra sweaters or topcoats, or both, for your visits to glaciers. You will no doubt get out and walk and perhaps take a trip in an iceboat. Sometimes there is a high biting wind, accompanied with rain. Some people use raincoats as further protection against cold as well as wet. The grand sight is well worth the weather.

IF YOU HIT AN UNUSUALLY WARM SPELL, you may not need all the bundling I prescribe. But be prepared, for it is much easier to shed clothes than to add ones you haven't got.

When you dine at the ski lodge or elsewhere, except at large hotels over a weekend, sportswear is the order of the day. A classic shirtwaist dress with matching cardigan sweater in your favorite pastel is always right.

Etiquette Questions

By Amy Vanderbilt

THIS time of year especially I get many letters concerning trips by car and the courtesies expected. First, I want to inveigh against the horrid practice of honking, even for a close friend, outside of her door. If time is short and there really is no place to park, this is, of course, permissible. But it is more polite to warn the person by phone that you will have to do this so that he or she will be prepared for your arrival.

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: I have a legal separation, but do not plan on obtaining a divorce in the near future. May I revert to my maiden name but retain 'Mrs.' before it? I am over 30 and feel a little old to be 'Miss.'—L.C.R., Mineral Wells, Tex."

You are still married and must officially use your married name. Until you are divorced you are "Mrs. John Smith."

Something New in Furniture

By Elizabeth Hillyer

PLASTIC DRAWERS ARE FEATURED IN THIS NEW FURNITURE.

and damage resistance. The furniture speaks for itself in the sketches as being varied and adaptable with the combination of two pieces to form a room divider, chairs in lounge, pull-up and dining styles, a number of tables and sofa units which may be long and lean or come in shorter sections.

A NEW BED that isn't seen is hardly less notable than the plastic drawers. It has no box-spring. Instead it introduces a floating platform, a slab of plywood suspended on hook ended spring, so although you sleep on the firm, flat surface recommended for posture sleeping, there's resilience for comfort.

The new furniture is designed by Ladislav L. Rado, whose collaborators are Hans G. Knoll, so well-known all over the world for contemporary furniture, and William S. Drake Jr., lumber and production expert, the manufacturer. Together they take a realistic approach to volume production and new techniques, and intend to continue a progressive program of design. (Knoll-Drake furniture, sketched in the Merchandise Mart.)

The Dean Speaks Up

Mother Turned Even Lilacs to Charity

By Adele Starbird

AS a distributing agency, my mother takes the cake. At least she might take the cake, but she certainly would not keep it. Things are hardly permitted to light in her house before they are on their way to someone else.

Recently she received a certificate of appreciation from the Near East Foundation for her 25 years she had never failed to send them a check. The certificate says that her "continued interest in the Foundation work has made possible a better life for thousands of people in the Near East."

She started long ago with the starving Armenians—they were never referred to simply as Armenians—and she sent every dollar she could get her hands on. If anybody in our family complained that the cuisine at the Villa Chateau was falling below standard, he was reminded of the starving Armenians.

Though she never abandoned the people of the Near East—witness the certificate—other causes claimed her interest. Periodically there was flood relief in China. I believe the Belgian Congo was in the picture at one time. Lately it has been the Korean orphans. And there are always missions, both home and foreign.

ONE YEAR when our lilacs were particularly fine, Mrs.

Hexter, proprietor of Fairfax House in Clayton, wanted to buy them for the restaurant. My mother said she would be glad to give them away, but she couldn't sell them.

Her attitude was typical of Missouri. You didn't sell unless you were in business. Only a florist could sell flowers. The attitude was defined for me for the first time by Mrs. Montgomery Myers, an old lady who was a friend of my grandmother's. She returned from a journey to another state with her black eyes snapping scornfully.

"I wouldn't live there if they gave me the whole place. They sell 10 cents worth of tomatoes over the back fence to their neighbors!"

So my mother couldn't sell her flowers. And Mrs. Hexter, equally punctilious, could not accept them as a gift, because she was in business. It was a stalemate.

Suddenly Mother remembered the refugee children for whom she was saving up—Danish, I think they were that time. Mrs. Hexter could have all the lilacs in return for a contribution to the refugees. It worked out beautifully.

IN ORDER TO HAVE drama, there must be a conflict of wills. Our household was not lacking in drama. It happened that my mother's mother, who lived with us, took a dim view of her far-flung generosity. My grandmother had an intense clan feeling. You took care of your own. Charity was supposed to begin at home, and end there. It was because she loved her grandchildren so fiercely that she resented any scattering abroad.

Mistakes That Some Wives Make

By Ruth Millett

IT is always a mistake for a wife to: Contradict her husband in front of other people. If she feels she must set him straight about a matter, she can do it in private.

Comment on her husband's baldness, his bay window, or the fact that he isn't as young as he seems to think he is. Other women aren't going to be that blunt, so why should the wife think she can get by with deflating her man's ego?

Tell her husband that he is a poor judge of character. He may be and she may be able to size people up more shrewdly. But that should be her secret.

BRAG TO OTHERS about how, if her husband had only listened to her, he would have avoided a mistake he made. Some women never forget the times when they were right and their husbands were wrong.

Keep on talking after her husband has obviously quit listening. If he isn't, why purposely bore him?

Keep her husband waiting when she has agreed to meet him some place. A man may wait good-naturedly for a girl before they are married, but after marriage a man waits with impatience and resentment. Knowing that, it's foolish of a woman to keep a husband waiting and expect him to be in a pleasant frame of mind when she finally shows up.

KEEP REMINDING her husband to do something he is obviously in no hurry to do. That makes a man feel like a kid, and men like women who make them feel like kids.

Talk constantly about her economic, but she doesn't have to talk about her penny-pinching. Since these are all obvious mistakes, it's wonder so many women do these same things over and over, and then wonder why their husbands are so hard to get along with.

Poppyseed French Bread Cut slices of French bread on the slant and spread one side of each slice generously with butter; sprinkle the butter with poppyseeds. Toast in a very hot oven after you have placed the bread, poppyseed side up, on a cookie sheet.

New-Fashion Styling

YOU'LL love the simplicity of this striking design. It's cut the princess way, with the new high-and-wide neckline, and the briefest of sleeves, or alternately, in a version for cooler weather, with a soft collar, and cuffed three-quarter sleeves. You'll admire the suave and easy way it flows in the back, with a waist-whittling back-belt, and a deftly placed inverted pleat—unobtrusive dealing to lend distinction. It's casual enough for daytime, marvelous for theatre or parties... bound to be your favorite.

Fabric Suggestions: Dark and silky cottons, or an unexpected note of bright solid color in a textured or smooth fabric are attractive. Rayons, bengaline, or a nubby-textured cotton will serve as a season-spanning fabric to carry you well into fall.

Star Pattern No. 219 is cut in sizes 10, 12, 14, 16, 18, 20. Material Requirements: Size 16: Short-sleeved style, 5 1/2 yards 35-inch. Three-quarter sleeved style, 6 1/2 yards 39-inch.

For a Star Pattern send 50 cents in coin to Star Pattern Department, St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Box 350, Madison Square Station, New York 10, N.Y. Please include pattern numbers.

Television Notes and Gossip

BEGINNING late in October, NBC-TV is planning to present five hour-long dramatic shows a week in color from Hollywood. The hour will be in mid-afternoon. Albert McCleary, the show's over-all producer, says the program will be "a theater on a national scale." One of the plays already contracted for is "Dark of the Moon," a successful American folk play on Broadway several seasons ago.

In the Damon Runyon Theater play on KSD-TV next Monday night, the actor who plays the role of "Big Feet" Thompson wears size 9 A shoes, but "Little Joe" Malone in the same play wears 15 EEE.

Julius LaRosa says he has 36 shirts now, all made for him, and 16 custom-made suits. "But," he says, "everything I want to wear is in the laundry just as it was when I had only one suit with two pairs of pants."

The sponsor of KSD-TV's Thursday night Theater has signed up Arlene Dahl and Rhonda Fleming for next season and is negotiating with Laraine Day, Irene Dunne, Merle Oberon, Janet Leigh and Kim Novak.

Lucy and Desi are thinking of filming some "I Love Lucy" shows in the Caribbean, especially Antigua. Desi also would like to film a couple of the series in his native Cuba. Production of next season's films will start in September, with the first show on TV Oct. 3.

George Jessel is negotiating a deal for NBC for a spectacular based on his contemplated film of "Rip Van Winkle," with Jimmy Durante and Helen Traubel as stars.

While the number of television sets in the United States has passed the 36,000,000 mark, radio isn't forgotten. In 1946, there were 57,700,000 radio sets, but now there are 132,400,000.

Mary Hartline of "Super Circus" keeps her hair 22 to 24 inches long. She says she cut it short only once in her life, when she was a high school sophomore. Mary is from Hillsboro, Ill.

The Bell System television network now totals more than 69,000 channel miles, and of these 47,000 miles are equipped for color TV which can be broadcast from 247 stations in 138 cities.

Uncle Ray's Column

By Ramon Coffman

BRAZIL was the chief center for the world's rubber before the outbreak of the First World War. Several other tropical countries produced some rubber, but Brazil—with its Hevea trees—was the leader.

Then came a change. Brazil fell behind in the race, and southern Asia took the lead.

The story behind that change started 79 years ago. An Englishman, William Wickham, was the hero in the drama.

Brazil, at that time, had a rule against the export of Hevea seeds. The men at the head of the country wanted to control the rubber industry, and they feared that Hevea trees might grow well in other lands.

WICKHAM WENT to Brazil and started a rubber plantation there. The plantation failed to pay, but the Englishman decided to send seeds to his native land. About 100,000 Hevea seeds were gathered and placed aboard a steamer which had entered the Amazon river. The seeds were hidden in the midst of banana leaves.

Returning to Great Britain, the steamer took the seeds to London. There they were placed in the hands of workmen at the Kew Gardens. A few thousand of the seeds grew into small plants.

The next step was to transport the young plants, or seedlings, to the Orient. Nineteen hundred of them were sent to the beautiful island of Ceylon. There they grew very well.

THE YEARS PASSED, and many of the seedlings became mature trees. Their seeds were sent to the Malay States, Indonesia and elsewhere.

At the present time Asia produces 93 per cent of the world's natural rubber. The chief rubber countries are the Malay States and Indonesia. The island of Ceylon is far behind them, but it provides the world with three and a half times as much rubber as Brazil.

We may wonder what would have happened if Hevea seeds had been kept in South America. Perhaps southern Asia would then have grown other kinds of rubber trees, producing smaller amounts of rubber.

No relief was in sight for St. Louisans from hot and unusually humid weather, Meteorologist Harry F. Wahlgren said today. High temperatures in the middle 90s this afternoon and tomorrow were predicted with a low tomorrow morning of 75 degrees. Likelihood of scattered thunder showers tonight and tomorrow offered little hope of respite from the heat because little or no wind was expected, Wahlgren said.

High temperature yesterday was 91 degrees recorded at 3:30 p.m., first 90-or-above temperature here since July 13. Sixteen days of 90 degrees or more have been recorded up through yesterday compared with 37 to 42 days for similar periods in the last three years, Wahlgren said.

A total of .04 inches of rain fell yesterday in the downtown area. Webster Groves reported .08 inches and .31 was recorded at the Carondelet Park area.

Warm, dry air from the South yesterday raised temperatures to 100 degrees and more in the Dakotas, Montana and Wyoming.

High in the nation was 106 degrees at Glasgow, Mont. Low in the county this morning was 35 degrees at Fraser, Colo.
